PEACE AGREEMENT SIGNED AT JUAREZ

Immediate Word Sent to Military Commanders on Both Sides to Stop Fighting.

REBELS MAY IGNORE ORDERS

Have Not Heeded Armistice in Sonora and Sinaloa—Orozco's Men Move, but He Remains Dissatisfied.

JUAREZ, Mexico, May 21.—A peace agreement that Francisco I. Madero, Jr., the Provisional President of Mexico, declares officially ends the civil war in the country, was signed on the steps of the Juarez Custom House, Madero's Provisional Capitol, at 10:35 o'clock to-night. Judge Francisco S. Carbajal, the official representative of the Mexican Federal Government; Dr. Vasquez Gomez, the Provisional Minister of Foreign Affairs and Señor Francisco Madero, for the Provisional Government, put their names to it.

José Pino Suarez, the third representative of the Provisional Government, did not sign. Just before the Commissioners left El Paso for this city he disappeared, and his colleagues are now looking for him to have him affix his siginature. A mistake in time and not a disinclination to sign the document is the reason given for Señor Suarez's failure to appear at the Custom House.

The signing of the agreement was picturesque. By some mistake, as yet unexplained, the Custom House was locked when the Peace Commissioners arrived. Mr. Gomez pounded on the door for a minute and then gave it up as a bad job. There was a short conference and it was decided to sign on the steps. The question of lights came up and the problem was solved by the lamps of the automobiles which had brought the Commissioners and the newspaper men to Juarez. There were four machines and two headlights were focussed on the steps.

Señor Madero produced a fountain pen and handed it to Judge Carbajal. As Judge Carbajal adjusted his glasses a street car rolled in between the automobiles and the Custom House, and one of the Commissioners said an angry word. Then the street car ambled on its way toward El Paso and the agreement was signed Immediate word was sent to military commanders to stop fighting.

Though covering only the principal points negotiated thus far, the agreement practically records the concessions by the Government of those demands which started on Nov. 20, the last armed revolution in Mexico. Constitutional restrictions prevented the inclusion in the agreement of the fact that the rebels will be permitted to suggest to various State Legislatures the names of provisional Governors, and likewise the fact that six of the eight members of the new Cabinet have been chosen by the revolutionists, but the agreement records that President Diaz and Vice President Corral will resign and that the Government is to concentrate its attentions upon desired reforms. It reads:

Text of the Agreement.

In the City of Juarez, on the 21st day of May, 1911, in the Custom House, Senor Don Francisco S. Carabajal, representing the Government of Gen. Porfirio Diaz, Dr. Francisco Vasquez Gomez, Don Francisco I. Madero, and Don Jose Maria Pino Suarez, as the representatives of the revolutionary forces, having gathered to treat about the method of effecting a cessation of hostilities in the entire National territory, and considering:

1. That Senor Gen. Porfirio Diaz has manifested his resolution of resigning the Presidency of the Republic before the end of the present month, and,

2. That bona fide news is at hand that Ramon Corral will resign the Vice Presidency of the republic within the same period, and,

3. That by the administration of law, Senor Francisco Leon de la Barra, at present Minister of Foreign Relations of the Government of Senor Gen. Diaz, will assume for the interim the power of the Executive of the Nation, and will call the general elections according to the terms of the Constitution, and

4. That the National Government will study the conditions of public opinion to satisfy these conditions with the provisions of the Constitution and will come to an agreement conducive to indemnifying the losses directly caused by the revolution.

Therefore, the two parties represented in this conference, in view of the previous considerations, have agreed to formulate the following agreement:

From to-day on hostilities which have existed in the entire national territory of the republic shall cease between the forces of the Government and those of the revolution, these forces to be dismissed in proportion as in each State the necessary steps are taken to re-establish and guarantee tranquillity and public order.

Transitory provision;

As soon as possible the reconstruction or repair of telegraph and railway lines hitherto interrupted shall be begun.

End of Fighting, Says Madero.

Señor Madero announced late this afternoon at his home in Juarez that the agreement would be signed at 10 o'clock, and added that it would mean the official termination of the civil war in Mexico. He explained that as soon as the agreement was signed by Dr. Vasquez Gomez, representing the Maderists, and Judge Carbajal, telegrams would be sent to the insurrecto chiefs throughout Mexico informing them of the fact and saying that all hostilities should cease immediately. The understanding here, however, is that the violation of any clause in the agreement by either the Federal or insurrecto authorities would mean an immediate resumption of fighting.

Señor Madero was asked to give out the text of the agreement, but pleaded as an excuse that he did not have a copy of it. The only insurrecto copy, he explained, was in the possession of Dr. Gomez, his provisional Minister of Foreign Affairs. He added that he saw no reason why Dr. Gomez should not make the document public. Dr. Gomez took a different view of the matter and refused to give out the text until after the signatures had been affixed.

Señor Madero said that there was only one clause that had not been agreed upon, but added that even without that clause—which is said to be the one with reference to the payment of the insurrecto troops—the agreement would be signed and the differences settled afterward. He would not discuss the nature of the clause, but there is good reason for saying that it is the one that deals with the payment of the insurrecto forces throughout Mexico. The amount that will be needed for this purpose will be very large, as the payment will include all the rebel forces in Mexico with the exception

FEAR FOR FRANCIS JOSEPH.

Prof. Neusser, Famous Specialist, Summoned to Austrian Emperor's Side.

VIENNA, May 21.—Some alarm was caused to-day by the announcement that the specialist, Prof. Neusser, had been summoned to Goedoelloc, where Emperor Francis Joseph is at present sojourning in the Royal Chateau. An authoritative statement issued to-night says that the Emperor's health is good, and that Dr. Neusser's mission was to ascertain the effect of the treatment which he advised some time ago for a cough from which the Emperor was suffering.

The projected meeting between Emperor Francis Joseph and King Peter of Servia, at Budapest, was deferred last April, owing to the Emperor's ill health. A bulletin was issued about the same time stating that the only reason the Emperor's engagements were cancelled, was that his physicians had ordered complete rest at the Goedoelloc Chateau. More recently the reports of the Emperor's failing health have been renewed.

WOMAN DIES AT MASS.

Falls in Pew and Is Carried Out While Priest Finishes the Service.

Persons in the rear pews of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church, at Manhattan Avenue and Milton Street, Greenpoint, at early mass yesterday saw Mrs. Sarah Farady of 858 Franklin Street slip forward in her seat. Several women stepped quietly to her, and, seeing that the woman was half senseless, assisted her into the vestibule.

Mrs. Farady was moaning and in such evident pain that some one brought Dr. A. L. Gabriel from his home, at 144 Milton Street. Dr. Gabriel examined Mrs. Farady hastily, and then asked that a priest be summoned.

"She will die in a moment," he said. "It is heart disease."

From within the church, sounded softly the ringing of the bell at the elevation of the Host. Nine times the chime of the bell rang through the church, and then there was almost complete silence as Mgr. P. F. O'Hare finished the mass. Father Cioffi, assistant priest at the church, meantime had come to the vestibule, and administered the last rites of the Church to Mrs. Farady. An instant afterward the woman died.

None within the church except those who had helped Mrs. Farady out knew that a woman had been overcome, and had died while the service was in progress. Her body was removed to an undertaking establishment.

SCHMITZ PENNILESS.

San Francisco ex-Mayor Stranded in Mexico, His Fortune Gone.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—Former Mayor Eugene Schmitz, who escaped going to State prision with Abe Ruef on graft charges through a flimsy technicality and is now at liberty under heavy bonds, is reported to be stranded and penniless in Mexico. It is said that he has dissipated his ill-gotten fortune, estimated at $500,000, in hazardous mining and business ventures. and now lacks money to pay for his fare home.

When Schmitz was trying to get out of jail on bail, he obtained the assistance of William J. Dingee, an Oakland capitalist. In return Dingee induced Schmitz to invest many thousands of dollars in a large cement factory, near Santa Cruz, in this State. This company came to grief when Dingee failed last year, and Schmitz lost every cent he invested in it. Then a mine at Oroville in Butte County, in which Schmitz invested considerable money, turned out a failure after showing some rich ore.

In despair Schmitz then started for Sinaloa, Mexico, where his brother is interested in a mine, but a letter has been received by one of his friends, saying this mine is also worthless and that Schmitz is in the straits described. All he now has is the fine Schmitz home here, which, however, is in his wife's name.

THEIR AUTO TURNED TURTLE.

Pleasure Party Come to Grief in the Park, but Aren't Much Hurt.

By the narrowest kind of a margin a pleasure party of two women and three men missed death or serious injury early yesterday morning when a touring car in which they were riding skidded in the roadway in Central Park, jumped the sidewalk, and, after crashing into a lamp post, turned completely over. The car was turned in such a manner and with such force that the five occupants, instead of being crushed beneath the heavy body and engine, were thrown into the roadway clear of the auto.

The two women in the car were cut and bruised slightly, and after being attended at the Presbyterian Hospital were taken to their home in a taxicab. Beyond a few bruises the men were uninjured. The automobile was wrecked.

The machine was owned by an auto manufacturing concern. It was driven by E. S. Robinson, a demonstrator for the company, according to the police. With him in the car were Gertrude Mason of 437 West Twenty-fifth Street, May Campbell of the same address, Raymond Warner of 26 West Eighty-sixth Street, and William Ross of 246 West 126th Street.

VERDICT AGAINST R. L. GERRY.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., May 21.—A Supreme Court jury in Delaware County has given a verdict of $500 against Robert L. Gerry of New York and in favor of Mary L. Sanford because Mr. Gerry's brilliantly colored automobile, while dashing along the highway at Andes on July 25, 1910, frightened a team, which ran away, throwing Mrs. Sanford down a bank.

The action was based on the ground that proper precaution for the safety of others was not used, and this included the brilliant coloring of the auto as well as the manner of its operation.

WOMEN HURT IN AUTO SMASH

An automobile owned and operated by A. W. Smith, of 538 Grove Street, Brooklyn, carrying four women passengers collided last night with a trolley car at Hamburg Avenue and Grove Street. The automobile was overturned and the occupants spilled out.

Mrs. Annie Stover, of 429 Grove Street, received a severe scalp wound, and Miss D. Wilson, of 488 Madison Street, bruises about the head and body. They were taken to the German Hospital in an ambulance. The two other women in the automobile escaped uninjured.

ALBANY NIGHT BOAT AGROUND ALL DAY

240 PASSENGERS LANDED

Lifeboats Manned for Them and They Come to Town by Train—The Homer Ramsdell Burns at Newburg.

In a dense fog that cut off all view of land and so dimmed signal lights that they could scarcely be seen, the big steamboat Central Hudson of the Manhattan Navigation Company, running from Albany to this city, went ashore on the mud flats in Haverstraw Bay, opposite Grass Point and about half a mile south of Stony Point, at 4:45 o'clock yesterday morning.

The tide was on the ebb, and it was found impossible to float the boat again until high tide at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. In the meantime 240 of the 252 passengers were landed by means of the lifeboats at Stony Point, and came on to town on the West Shore Railroad. The others remained on the stranded craft, which was practically undamaged. She docked at the foot of West Houston Street at 8:30 o'clock last night, more than twelve hours behind schedule.

The Central Hudson, in charge of Capt. G. W. Taylor, who has navigated crafts on the Hudson River for more than twenty years, left her pier at Albany on Saturday night at 8 o'clock. The fog began to close in as she neared Kingston, and speed was reduced to about nine miles an hour. Creeping along at this rate, the boat finally reached Stony Point. No danger lights could be seen, Capt. Taylor said.

Most of the passengers by this time were taking a lively interest in the trip as the big fog horn, which was sounded every minute, had awakened them. At least a score of men and women were on deck.

"We were but a short distance beyond Stony Point when we must have run about fifteen feet off our course," said Capt. Taylor. "The fog was thick and it was almost impossible, even by the use of the compass, to tell where we were going. Then I felt the boat ground. I backed her up about two hundred feet and went ahead again, trying to break loose, but by that time the strong tide—it was flowing like a mill race—swung her about half way round. I knew then that we were stuck good and hard and would stay there until the high tide."

When the passengers hurried to the decks, alarmed by the grounding of the boat, they could see nothing but a dense wall of fog on every side. They were told by the Captain and crew that there was no danger; that they were only thirty-five miles from New York, and that those who wanted to leave the boat would be landed as soon as the fog cleared away. It was still thick, however, when at 8:30 o'clock three of the twenty-five-foot lifeboats were lowered away and the work of disembarking the passengers was begun.

Most of the passengers, who had had breakfast and were assured that all expenses would be met by the company, seemed to enjoy the novel experience of climbing down ladders to the lifeboats. All of the 240 were landed without accident.

Capt. Taylor and Pilot Harry Drake were in the pilothouse when the boat went aground and six men where placed on lookout duty. "It was simply one of those things which no one could prevent," said Capt. Taylor. "The mud flats in Haverstraw Bay are treacherous at ebb tide. Fortunately the boat landed with but little jar, and there was no excitement among the passengers."

Because of the fact that the Central Hudson docked so late last night and the frieght could not be taken off in time for the regular return trip, the passengers who had been booked got passage on the Trojan of the Citizens' Line. The Central Hudson left her dock at 11 o'clock for Albany, carrying freight, but no passengers.

HUDSON BOAT BURNS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, May 21.—The steamer Homer Ramsdell of the Central Hudson Steamboat Company burned to the water's edge at 10 o'clock to-night, causing a loss of over $250,000. It is thought that the fire was occasioned by the explosion of a lamp. The flames were soon sweeping the boat from stem to stern after the alarm was made.

Of the four men on the boat three got ashore safely, but the fourth, Morris Wald, thought he could extinguish the flames by setting the pumps at work, and remained on board. He was compelled to jump overboard, but could not swim and was drowned.

The boat had no freight on board, having just been taken to the dock for loading to-morrow. It has been in service twenty-four years, and has a record for fast traveling. She ran between Newburg and New York City. A new vessel will be built to replace her.

The storehouse and dock were on fire a number of times, but were saved from destruction.

CANALBOAT CUT IN TWO.

Ferryboat Rams Her, and Her Captain Loses His Life.

The canalboat Lester E. Thamer was cut in two early yesterday morning by the Lackawanna Railroad ferryboat Bergen, and Patrick Joyce, Captain of the canalboat, was drowned. The Bergen was on her 2:45 o'clock trip from Twenty-third Street, Manhattan, to her slip in Hoboken, when, owing to the dense fog, she got out of her course.

The canalboat was moored to the Wilson Line pier, at the foot of Seventh Street, Hoboken. The ferryboat rammed the Thamer, cutting her completely in two, and she sank at once. Capt. Joyce, who was asleep in the cabin, went down with his boat. The ferryboat backed away about fifty yards and remained for about fifteen minutes while a search was made to see if any one was floating in the river, but as no one was found the boat proceeded to her slip. Capt. Joyce's body was not recovered. The police say that, so far as they can learn, Capt. Joyce was the only person on the sunken boat.

Ship Runs Short of Food at Sea.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 21.—The tug T. A. Scott, Jr., left here to-day to cruise off Montauk Point, in a search for a three-masted schooner bound from the Azores for New Bedford with 800 Portuguese aboard, and who, it is understood, are suffering for want of food and water. The condition of those on board the schooner was made known here by a wireless message sent out by a steamer which spoke the schooner. The name of the schooner was not given.

LYNCH SIX NEGROES; TRICK SHERIFF'S SON

Ten Men Present to the Boy a Forged Telegram and He Gives Prisoners Up.

TIED TO TREES AND SHOT

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE CITY, Fla., May 21.—Six negroes suspected of complicity in the murder of a prominent citizen were taken from the jail here early this morning, carried to the suburbs of the city, tied to trees, and riddled with bullets. The negroes were taken out of the jail by ten men, who pretended to be officers and who presented to the seventeen-year-old son of the Sheriff a false telegram, which ordered him to release the negroes.

The boy had been left in charge of the jail by his father, and, thinking the telegram was genuine, he at once allowed the ten men to take the six negroes. The ten men had automobiles, in which they put the negroes, and then sped to the outskirts of the city, where other members of the mob were waiting. The negroes were bound to trees, and at a given signal the members of the mob, some thirty in all, opened with rifles and pistols. Volley after volley was fired until the negroes were literally shot to pieces. When citizens went to the scene about 7 o'clock they found it almost impossible to identify the negroes.

The victims of the mob were Man Morris, Jerry Holmes, Sam Phillips, Henry Jones, Zeke Chandler, and Tom Billups. They had been brought here from Tallahassee to foil a mob which had threatened to lynch them. They were accused of killing Robert B. Smith, a wealthy lumberman of Leon County, and of murdering two other white men.

The feeling against the negroes was intense in Leon County, and to avoid lynching the negroes were hurried here a few days ago. It is said that the men who lynched the negroes came from Tullahassee, over 100 miles away, and that they made the trip on Saturday night in automobiles to avoid creating suspicion. They evidently knew that the Sheriff of this county was away and that only his 17-year-old son was in charge of the jail. The message which the leader of the mob showed to the boy purported to be from the Sheriff of Leon County and ordered the delivery of the negroes to the bearer. The boy, just aroused from sleep, complied at once.

The first the people of Lake City knew of trouble was when volley after volley of shots were heard about sun up. The firing continued for a long time, and when investigation was made the lynching was disclosed. The men who went to the jail were not disguised, and the boy thinks he could identify some of them.

LYNCHED TWO IN TEN DAYS.

Swainsboro, Ga., Mobs Hang and Shoot Murderous Negroes.

SWAINSBORO, Ga., May 21.—Ben Smith, an old negro preacher, was lynched late last night after he had shot his wife and fatally wounded Deputy Marshal Neal Canady.

The Deputy was summoned following the first shooting. As he approached the negro's cabin the preacher opened fire and then fled. Canady fell, mortally wounded. A crowd pursued the negro, caught him in a swamp, and hanged him and filled his body with bullets.

This is the second lynching that Swainsboro has had within ten days, the other being John McLeod, the negro who shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Benton Woods.

MONK TAKES A PRISONER.

Dog Leads Police, Outdistanced in Chase, to Man Who Shot Relative.

The reports of five revolver shots were heard yesterday evening by the men in the Ozone Park Police Station, and the reserves, led by Policeman Weeks and his big dog, Monk, which he has taught to do the work of Belgian police dogs, rushed from the station. A block away they saw John Garafano of Grafton and Lawn Avenues lying on the pavement, wounded in the right arm and right hip. Running off was Pasquale Di Donato of Broadway and Park Place, Woodhaven, Garafano's brother-in-law.

Di Donato had too great a lead for the policemen to overcome, but Monk bounded away after the fleeing man, gaining on him at every leap. The chase disappeared around the corner into Grafton Avenue, and when the police puffed up they found Monk barking in front of a house.

Weeks and the others entered the place, Monk bounding ahead of them when the door was opened and leading the way to an upper room, where, in a corner behind a pile of clothing, they found Di Donato.

Di Donato was taken back to where his brother-in-law had been helped into a store, and there, according to the police, Garafano accused Di Donato of shooting him in revenge for a fancied wrong which he thought Garafano had done him by keeping him out of a job. Di Donato was locked up, and Dr. Hyland took Garafano to St. Mary's Hospital in Jamaica.

ORDER MUZZLES ON DOGS.

Special to The New York Times.

YORK, Penn., May 21.—All dogs seen at large on the streets of York and in certain parts of York and Adams Counties are wearing muzzles. In order to prevent the spread of rabies, which is prevalent in some sections of York County, the State authorities have placed a quarantine of 100 days on all dogs.

In this city a dog catcher, John Hickey, has been appointed, and is under instructions to impound all dogs he finds on the streets without muzzles. He has already taken hundreds of them. Those not recovered through the payment of the required fine he kills ten days after their capture.

NO LONGER ON BENCH, TIGHE KILLS HIMSELF

Had Brooded Over Failure to be Reappointed After 23 Years as Magistrate.

NEW PLACE READY FOR HIM

Deeply disappointed to find in his old age that he was not, as he had hoped, to end his days on the Police Court bench, where he had sat for twenty-three years, ex-Magistrate James G. Tighe committed suicide yesterday morning at his home, 183 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, by inhaling illuminating gas.

Although he had brooded constantly since May 1, when Mayor Gaynor appointed Fourth Deputy Police Commissioner Louis H. Reynolds to succeed him on the bench, none of his family or friends had the slightest suspicion that Judge Tighe thought of taking his own life. He was to have started in to-day as counsel to the Deputy Excise Commissioner in Brooklyn, but it is supposed that these duties did not appeal to him.

The ex-Magistrate arose at 6 o'clock yesterday morning and took a bath. Requesting his daughter, Mary Tighe, to call him at 11 o'clock, he returned to his bedroom and study, on the second floor of the three-story and basement house. At 11 o'clock, as Miss Tighe was ascending the stairs to call her father, she smelled gas. Finding the door of his room locked she became alarmed and hurrying downstairs told other members of the family of her fears. Dr. Thomas C. Leitch, who lives next door, was called in and the door of Mr. Tighe's room was forced. He was found dead on the floor. In his mouth was a rubber tube which was connected with a gas jet.

The suicide of the ex-Magistrate was a great surprise and shock to the many who know him. Early on Saturday afternoon he had luncheon with his son, William Tighe, and several friends, at the Clarendon Hotel and then went down to the Sheepshead Bay Rowing Club. He remained there talking with old friends until 7 o'clock. when he returned to his home. He spent some time reading in his study and retired at 10:30 o'clock.

James G. Tighe was one of the best-known men in public life in Brooklyn, and was also a familiar figure in the sporting world. As some viewed it, he was rather easy with a certain class of violators of the law, but he was peculiarly human in most of his dealings, and the sympathetic ear of "Jimmy" Tighe, as he was called, was often sought by families members of which found themselves in the hands of the police. His wide personal acquaintance extended to all classes of people in the borough.

As his last term of office was drawing to a close County Leader McCooey and other men of influence politically sought to bring about his reappointment; but when the list of appointees was given out by the Mayor it did not contain the name of James G. Tighe, though four of his fellows on the bench, Magistrates Dodd, Harris, Naumer, and Dooley, were reappointed.

Friends of Mr. Tighe say that he was a changed man after the announcement. Last week he was appointed by James S. Regan, the new Deputy Excise Commissioner in Brooklyn, as counsel, at a salary of $3,500, and it was thought that this would cause him to forget his disappointment.

Mr. Tighe was 68 years old and a native of Manhattan. He followed the sea for several years, then studied law in Brooklyn, and was admitted to the bar in 1871. He became active in Democratic politics in South Brooklyn, and from 1877 to 1882 served in the State Assembly. In 1888 he became a Police Judge. At his retirement he was the oldest Magistrate in point of service in Brooklyn.

In January, 1904, Capt. F. Norton Goddard, head of the Anti-Policy Society, preferred charges against Magistrate Tighe before the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. Capt. Goddard's complaint was that the Magistrate while on the bench had willfully failed to enforce the law against policy playing. He alleged that prisoners taken in raids on policy shops were discharged by the Magistrate, despite the protests of the agents of the society.

George G. Reynolds, who was appointed referee in the case, practically sustained the charges in his report. The Appellate Division, however, exonerated Magistrate Tighe, holding that it had not been shown that there was any intention to violate the law. The ruling, in effect, was that the Magistrate's acts were errors of judgment, but that there was no cause for his removal from office.

Two years later Magistrate Tighe's name figured in a trial before Police Commissioner Bingham of an Inspector and a Captain on charges of neglect of duty in failing to suppress an alleged poolroom, which was raided over their heads. This room was in an office building in Remsen Street. At the trial of the police officers the agent of this building, testifying for them, said that when the alleged poolroom man rented the office he came with a letter of recommendation from Magistrate Tighe. When the Magistrate was asked about the matter he said he knew the man as a real estate broker and had no knowledge that he was engaged in any other business.

Magistrate Tighe was widely known among amateur oarsmen. He was one of the founders of the Varuna Boat Club of Brooklyn, and was later a leading spirit in the Sheepshead Bay Rowing Club. He had served as an official at most of the big rowing regattas in the metropolitan district and in Philadelphia. In his younger days he was himself an oarsman of reputation. He was also known as a swimmer, and even late in life would frequently take Winter swims in Sheepshead Bay. Several years ago in midwinter, on a wager, he swam 100 yards through icefloes in Sheepshead Bay.

Mr. Tighe is survived by three sons and three daughters.

TWO ARTISTS SUICIDES.

R. C. Swayze in Ill-Health; F. C. Chamberlain Insane from Heat.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—Two artists, one a newspaper cartoonist, the other a magazine illustrator, ended their lives by shooting themselves in this city within the last twenty-four hours.

Robert Clyde Swayze, at one time a well-known cartoonist, whose work appeared in the newspapers of San Francisco, New York, Philadelphia, and other cities, killed himself last night at the home of his brother in this city. He had been in poor health for the last four years.

Frank C. Chamberlain, aged 84, a magazine illustrator, shot himself through the head in his home in West Philadelphia tonight. His wife and three of his sisters were in an adjoining room. When they reached him he was dead. They believe that he was made insane by the excessive heat of the last three days.

Brewery Machinists Threaten Strike.

A demand for the eight-hour workday has been made on all the breweries by District No. 15 of the International Association of Machinists, whose members are on strike. The proprietors of the breweries have until next Monday to grant the demand, failing which the brewery

POSTAL BANKS IN DEMAND.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Postmaster General Hitchcock is so well pleased with the eagerness of communities to have postal savings banks opened at the local postoffice that he has decided after this week to raise the number of weekly openings from 50 to 100. To-day he announced the opening of 50 new depositories which will be ready to receive deposits on June 19.

BIGGER THAN ROOSEVELT DAM

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—Announcement was made here to-day that the Great Western Power Company will build at Big Meadows a reservoir that will surpass in capacity the Roosevelt Dam and Reservoir in Arizona. Sufficient water will be stored for the irrigation of 300,000 acres.

Among the Eastern stockholders are Edwin Hawley, President of the company; A. W. Burchard of the General Electric Company, and A. B. Bedford, Treasurer and Director of the Standard Oil Company.

MRS. J. L. GARDNER ILL.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 21.—Mrs. John L. Gardner is critically ill in her home in the Fenway, and has cancelled all of her social engagements pending her recovery. Mrs. Gardner's health has been poor for some time and two weeks ago, while on a visit in Gloucester, she was seriously indiposed.

During the past season's Mrs. Gardner's social demands have weighed so heavily upon her that she has in all cases possible delegated her part to some of her friends, contenting herself with lending her name to help along many social affairs.

Her illness took a sudden turn for the worse a few days ago, and since that time she has been obliged to give up her daily drive.

LIMITS WATCHERS AT POLLS.

Too Many, It Is Charged, and They're Paid Too Much.

ALBANY, May 21.—The only legislation amendatory of the corrupt practices acts, to be sought by the Association to Prevent Corrupt Practices at Elections, this year, is a bill introduced by Senator Wainwright and Assemblyman Levy, limiting to four the number of workers or watchers in each election district.

Investigations made by its representatives of the election statements on file at the office of the Secretary of State have led the association to believe that the law is being extensively evaded through the payment of large sums of money to "workers and watchers," many of whom do but little work except that of voting the party ticket.

CASTLE BESIEGED BY NATIVES

Capt. and Mrs. Von Wolf Are Barricaded in Their African Stronghold.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 21.—From South Africa come the news that Mrs. Hans Heinrich Von Wolf, a former Lenox society girl, and her husband, Capt. Von Wolf, are fighting rebellious natives, besieged in a castle they have built there like a mediaeval stronghold.

As Fanny Humphreys, daughter of an American millionaire, Mrs. Von Wolf won distinction as the first woman in Lenox to ride a horse astride. Four years ago she met Capt. Von Wolf in Washington, married him, and went to live with him in South Africa.

The castle they occupy has massive towers and is surrounded by moats. The couple are described as reigning in feudal fashion over the blacks, who are now besieging their walled home.

WORLD SIGNS FOR BOYS.

Scout Leader Working on Language That Every One Can Understand.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 21.—A scout sign language for the world is being evolved by Ernest Thompson Seton, Chief of the Boy Scouts. Before leaving Baltimore to-day he made the announcement of this latest plan to put the movement on an international basis.

After studying the crude signs of many peoples, particularly of the American Indians, Mr. Seton has found a great similarity in all. He believes that it will be an easy matter to work out a code of signs that will be of value not only to the Boy Scouts but to all travelers. This code will make it possible for a man to communicate simple ideas to any one in foreign lands. This new code will be only an extension of the signs now readily grasped by even the smallest boys in the Scouts' organization.

700 COAL CLAIMS INVALID.

Land Office Agents Ready to Report on Alaska Situation.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 21.—Final report has been made by the Field Division of the General Land Office on 700 of the 1,100 Alaska coal claims, and notice of the findings will be sent to the claimants in due course. The report has not been made public.

So far as known none of the claims in the various Alaskan coal fields has been found valid. In the Tanania field all the locations have been canceled because no application for patent was made. In the Cape Lisburne field, where a bluff of coal overhangs the shore of the Arctic Ocean, all but two of the locations have been canceled.

In the indictments returned by Federal Grand Juries in Detroit, Chicago, Spokane, and Tacoma against the promoters of various Alaska coal groups charges are made that large groups of coal claims in Alaska are controlled by a few persons, and that individual locators have no interest whatever in the claims.

NEW YORK A SPENDTHRIFT.

So Kansas City Man Thinks When He Sees Park Lights in Daytime.

A. J. Ferguson of Kansas City, who is staying at the St. Regis, said yesterday that, in his opinion, New York is the most extravagant city in the world.

"In Kansas City we are content to save electric light in our parks on moonlight nights, but here there are not only double lights at night but a row of electric lights in Central Park all day. I walked through the Park this afternoon between 1 and 2 o'clock, and, to my surprise, saw the lights burning the same as if it had been night.

"I went up to a policeman and called his attention to the waste of the ctiy's money. He just looked at me and grinned. 'Say, where are you from?' says he. 'Kansas City,' I replied, locking him square in the eye. 'Durned if I didn't think so,' said the policeman. Then he chased some kids off a flower bed [illegible]

AIRSHIP KILLS WAR MINISTER; PREMIER HURT

M. BERTEAUX BADLY MANGLED

M. Monis Was Buried in the Wreckage, and Had a Leg and His Nose Broken.

PREMIER'S SON ALSO HURT

Train, the Aviator, Who Carried a Passenger, Lost Control—Both Escape Injury.

200,000 WITNESS ACCIDENT

PARIS, May 21.—Minister of War Berteaux was killed, and Premier Monis and several other persons were badly injured to-day, when an aeroplane got beyond control of its driver and dashed into a crowd of spectators at the start of the Paris to Madrid race for heavier than air machines.

THE DEAD.

BERTEAUX, HENRI MAURICE, Minister of War.

THE INJURED.

MONIS, ANTOINE, son of the Premier.

The accident occurred on the aviation field at Issy-les-Molineux, and 200,000 persons witnessed it. M. Train was piloting the monoplane which struck the Ministers. With him in the car was M. Bounier, a passenger. Neither of these men was injured, but the machine was wrecked.

M. Berteaux Badly Mangled.

Minister of War Berteaux was badly mangled. The swiftly revolving propeller cut off his left arm, which was found ten feet away from the spot where he was struck, the back of his head was crushed in, his throat gashed, and the whole of his left side cut and lacerated.

Premier Monis was buried beneath the wreckage of the monoplane. He was taken out as quickly as possible, and examined by military surgeons, who found that he had suffered compound fractures of two bones in the right leg; that his nose was broken, his face badly contused, and that there were bruises on the breast and abdomen.

M. Deutsch and the Premier's son were not seriously hurt. Among those who had narrow escapes from injury was M. Lepine, the Prefect of Police.

Premier Monis and Minister Berteaux and their party arrived at the aviation field about 6 o'clock this morning, soon after Roland Garros, M. Beaumont, and M. Gibert had started in the race, headed in the direction of Angouleme, capital of the Department of Charente.

The great line of spectators bordering the flying field was held back by a large force of soldiers, who permitted the Ministerial party and some half hundred other persons of distinction to walk across the field to a point where they could get a better view down the course, and see the airmen as they rose from the starting point and flew in their direction.

Party Saw One Airman Fall.

While the great assemblage cheered madly, the Ministers saw Pierre Vedrine, who had been picked by many as the probable winner of the race, mount easily from the ground and head down the aerodrome, only suddenly to capsize and fall, but emerge unhurt from the wreckage of his machine. Aviator Train, whose monoplane caused the disaster, meanwhile had taken his place at the starting line, levers in hand, and with M. Bounier beside him.

The breeze had been steadily freshening, and the meteorological observer in the Eiffel Tower telephoned that his gauge showed a velocity of eight meters a second, or close to thirty miles an hour. The members of the Aviation Committee were discussing the adverse conditions.

Train, however, left the ground. Ascending swiftly he circled the great field, curving round to the starting line, and then flying down the course at a forty-mile-an-hour gait, the machine rocking in the gusty wind. At this moment it was observed by the commandant of of the troops that the crowds were breaking the line formation on one side of the field, and he dispatched a troop of Cuirassiers to get them back in order.

Train's monoplane here swooped toward the earth under the impulse of an air flurry, and it appeared as though the aviator was about to dash into the cavalry. The pilot's attention seemed momentarily to have been diverted from his course, and he made a quick turn to the left, toward where the party of officials were standing. Then he lost control of the craft altogether, and it dashed violently into the group of Ministers.

The impact knocked M. Berteaux ten feet away, where he lay in a pool of blood, while under the wreckage of the monoplane lay Premier Monis, his son, and M. Deutsch. Train and M. Bounier emerged from the wreck uninjured.

Cavalry Clear the Field.

Great confusion followed the fall of the monoplane. From all parts of the aviation field arose cries of alarm, and tens of thousands of persons broke through the lines, and moved toward the scene of the accident. The cavalry, however, by repeated charges, managed to clear the field, and the injured men were given first aid to the injured treatment by the field surgeons. From the first it was seen that M. Berteaux was mortally hurt, and that M. Monis was seriously injured. After the Ministers had been cared for the surgeons dressed the wounds of those who had suffered minor injuries.

There are various versions as to the cause of the accident, but every one seems agreed that it occurred with such frightful rapidity that there was no time for M. Berteaux, M. Monis, and others to escape. M. Hersand, a nephew of former Premier Dupuy, whose newspaper, the Petit Parisien, arranged the race, said:

"M. Berteaux was just asking me who would be the next starter, and I was consulting my programme to answer him, when, glancing upward, I saw the monoplane plunging and careening toward us.

"'Look out!' I cried, and the next instant the wing of the aeroplane grazed my side. Looking around I saw the Minister of War lying in a pool of blood ten feet away, his arm severed from his body as though by a surgeon's knife. The Minister's head was horribly crushed, and blood was flowing from a cut in his throat. Premier Monis lay motionless, face downward. I though him dead. M. Deutsch, his face ghastly pale, was trying to lift him to his feet."

Son Saved M. Monis's Life.

M. Monis, Jr., said that he thought he saved his father's life by pushing him violently to the ground the moment he saw the machine plunging through the air. The Ministerial party was hidden from the pilot's view by a detachment of Cuirassiers. In avoiding these Train crashed down upon the group like a bolt from the sky.

M. Dupuy, immediately after the disaster, gave out word that the race should be suspended. M. Lepine issued a formal order to that effect, declaring that it would be impossible to continue, for a large part of the aviation field was already covered by vast crowds. Late this afternoon, however, the Aero Club decided that the six airmen who had not started to-day should have an opportunity to do so to-morrow morning.

M. Berteaux's body was put in a closed automobile, and escorted from the field by a squadron of dragoons with swords at salute. Tens of thousands in that part of the field through which the automobile passed uncovered. Gen. Maunoury, Military Governor of Paris, sent his aid to tell Mme. Berteaux that her husband had been injured. Then a hurried consultation was held as to how the news of the death should be broken. Paul Doumer, ex-President of the Chamber of Deputies and the oldest and most intimate friend of the family, was requested to communicate the truth to the dead Minister's wife. M. Doumer said afterward that Mme. Berteaux had shown admirable courage. The body of the late Minister of War lies at the Ministry in the same room from which recently his predecessor, Gen. Brun, was buried.

The body was put in a coffin and is now lying in state. It has been viewed by the members of the family, the Ministers, and intimate friends. The funeral, which is expected to take place on Friday, will be conducted with full national honors. M. Cruppi, Minister of War ad interim, has issued a general order that the army shall observe mourning for one month.

Premier Monis, while being taken from the field in an ambulance, repeated over and over again in a low voice: "It is nothing; it is nothing," and when he had somewhat regained a clearer consciousness, said that his injuries must not interfere with the race. He did not know that M. Berteaux was dead. Mme. Monis had planned to give a children's party at her house to-day. The rooms were full of flowers, and the Premier's wife was arranging these when the ambulance arrived.

Victims of French Aeroplane Accident.

Henri Maurice Berteaux, Minister of War, Who Was Killed.

Premier Likely to Recover.

The latest statements from the attending physicians to-night indicate that, in all probability, Premier Monis will recover. Prof. Lannelongue and Drs. Tussier and Crouseon issued a bulletin to the effect that the abdominal pains had diminished, and that the condition of the patient continued excellent. Prof. Lannelongue, in a more detailed statement, said that the injuries to M. Monis, although serious, were not very grave. He gave it as his opinion that the Premier would be able to walk in two months.

The only point, he added, calling for reserve in the prognosis, was the pains in the abdomen. The Premier had been struck a violent blow in the region of the liver, and while the first examination showed nothing to indicate the existence of an internal lesion it would be two or three days before the physicians could pronounce on the outcome to a certainty. The examination, however, revealed diabetic symptoms. Referring to these Prof. Lannelongue said:

"I am optimistic about the patient, but at the same time I am worried by these traces of diabetes. It will necessitate our watching the patient closely night and day, so as to avoid the possibility of complications."

President Faillières called on both Mmes. Berteaux and Monis, and the King and Queen of Denmark, who were leaving Paris in the forenoon, sent their Minister of the Household to express their grief. The American Ambassador and the other foreign representatives left cards of condolence and sympathy.

M. Fallières summoned his Cabinet, and M. Cruppi, Minister of Foreign Affairs, was designated to fulfill the duties of Minister of War pending further developments, and temporarily to act as head of the Cabinet. Various reports were circulated to the effect that Premier Monis might resign and the Ministry be reorganized. President Faillières decided that it would be better for the King of Servia to postpone his intended visit, and sent a special mission to Basle, headed by M. Coullard-Descos, the French Minister at Belgrade, to inform King Peter officially.

It is not believed that the Ministerial crisis will be either long or difficult of solution. M. Monis is still the Premier, and this evening signed the decree charging M. Cruppi with the duties of the War Ministry. In view, however, of his prolonged absence from activity, it is believed in political circles that it will be found most suitable for the whole Cabinet to resign. Already the chances of a combination, headed by ex-Premier Clemenceau, M. Millerand, and M. Poincare, are being discussed.

Aviator's Story of the Accident.

Train, the pilot of the monoplane, who has not been prominent in aviation circles, and his passenger, Bounier, were examined by the State Attorney, who is investigating the cause of the accident. Train was heartbroken that a national calamity was due to his efforts to avoid injury to the troops. In explanation of his manoeuvres he said that his idea when he started was to make two or three turns around the grounds to assure himself that his machine was in working order before beginning the scheduled flight.

Immediately he was in the air it was apparent to him that his motor was not pulling properly, so he prepared to land in order to regulate it, after turning the end of the field.

"At that moment," said the pilot, "I saw a troop of cuirassiers galloping across the track. I tried to turn sharply back on myself and land well away from the soldiers, but my motor slowed more and more, making it impossible for me to accomplish the circle. I then decided that the best course would be to fly over the cavalry and land on the other side, and I turned the plane upward.

"At this juncture a group of persons, previously hidden by the cuirassiers, scattered in all directions. I tried the impossible and risked the life of my passenger to prolong the flight over them, and I had almost succeeded when the machine gave a lurch and collapsed heavily. I jumped out, as did Bounier also, convinced that I had avoided all accident. It was only when I was on my feet that I saw the terrible catastrophe."

Train is a small constructor, who made a machine for his personal use with which he flew to Mourmelon recently. He had already received an order to construct fifteen machines for the Ministries of War and the Colonies. His monoplane had a lifting surface of 20 square meters. Its length was 11 meters, and its spread 8. Train was looked upon as a careful, skillful, and experienced pilot, and was well thought of by the military aviators at Chalons.

Only One Starter Reaches Angouleme.

The Paris-Madrid race, which is for a principal prize of $20,000, was organized by The Petit Parisien to start from Paris on May 21. The race is divided into three sections. The first, from Paris to Angouleme, and the second, from the latter city to San Sebastian, (the Spanish seaside resort,) were comparatively easy. The real danger was said to be in the third stage, (from San Sebastian to Madrid,) because the aviators had to fly over sixty kilometers of mountains, 4,000 feet high.

In addition to the $20,000 offered by The Petit Parisien, the Spanish Aero Club offered prizes amounting to $10,000, and King Alfonso a special prize for the fastest time made over the Spanish section from San Sebastian to Madrid.

Twenty machines were entered for the event, with Vedrines, who made the fast time from Paris to Pau in April, as favorite. Among the other competitors were Bobba, Divetain, Prince de Nissole, Pierre Barillon, Frank Barra, Lelasseur, de Ranzay, Amerigo, and Train. The last named is the aviator whose areoplane killed M. Berteaux.

Of the four aviators who started in the race to-day only one, M. Garros, arrived in Angouleme. Gibert reached Pontlevoy, where he learned of the catastrophe, and decided to proceed no further. Beaumont landed at Azaysurindre to inquire the way. On attempting to reascend a gust of wind dashed him against a tree, damaging the left wing of his machine. Lelasseur was lost in a fog and came down near Cosne.

PARIS OVERCOME BY NEWS.

Papers Publish Editions Half-Hourly —Hopeful for Monis's Recovery.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 21.—Had a bombshell exploded in the middle of the Place de l'Opera it would have caused less sensation in Paris than the news that quickly spread early this morning that M. Berteaux was killed by an aeroplane and that Premier Monis was badly hurt at Issy les Molineux at the start of the Paris to Madrid race.

The vast throng of spectators had gone there in picturesque confusion, filling brakes, omnibuses, automobiles, and cabs, or riding bicycles, while thousands of enthusiasts walked miles from distant suburbs.

Premier Monis and the other Ministers present got an enthusiastic reception when they drove up to the reserved stand.

The Premier did not lose consciousness despite his serious injuries, and showed great courage, talking cheerfully to the doctors and friends, once installed at the hospital. He issued an order that the race continue, despite the accident.

A bulletin issued late to-night gives a hopeful outlook for his recovery.

The excitement all over the city is indescribable. All day long special editions of the newspapers were printed half hourly, and sold for double price.

The press in general, and political opponents especially, unite in paying a tribute to M. Berteaux.

TAFT SENDS CONDOLENCES.

Notifies Ambassador Jusserand of Regrets for Minister Berteaux's Death.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The Washington Government took quick action tonight upon the news of the aeroplane accident at Issy les Molineux and sent a message of condolence to the French Government. Official Washington was advised of the accident through press dispatches. President Taft immediately addressed a note to Ambassador Jusserand of France, expressing his sympathy in the bereavement of the French people through the death of Minister Berteaux, and his earnest hope that Premier Monis, who was one of the injured, may recover. This official expression from the President was sent to the embassy, and the Ambassador promptly cabled it to his home Government.

Ambassador Jusserand was in America when M. Berteaux assumed office, but knew a great deal of the record of the War Minister. M. Jusserand had nothing to say to-night regarding the accident, merely explaining that he had forwarded the President's message to his Government.

The news of the accident spread quickly in this city and there were many inquiries regarding the details. Secretary of War Dickinson was particularly interested in the news, both because of the similar portfolio held by M. Berteaux and by the fact that he himself, when in France about a year ago, made an ascent in an aeroplane.

AN AVIATION ENTHUSIAST.

French Army's Pre-eminence in Flying Credited to M. Berteaux.

Henri Maurice Berteaux was born on June 3, 1852, at Saint Maur-les-Fosses, (Seine,) and was for many years a banking and exchange agent, with offices at 2 Rue des Quatre Septembre, Paris. He lived at 115 Avenue des Champs Elysées and had a country home at 17 Rue Labelonve Chatou, (Seine-et-Oise.) M. Berteaux was a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, a Deputy from Seine-et-Oise, a former President of the Budget Commission, and a member of the Railways Consulting Committee. He had been Minister of War previous to his appointment to that office by Antoine Ernest Monis on March 1 last, on the resignation of the Briand Cabinet.

M. Berteaux represented what are called in Paris the Radical Socialists, and was credited with having precipitated the fall of the Briand Cabinet. He favored the re-employment of the railroad strikers, who had been stigmatized as the enemies of public order.

The late French War Minister exhibited a keen interest in aviation, and as early as 1905 made an ascent in the Lebaudy military balloon. Much of the credit for the French Army's pre-eminence in aviation was given to Berteaux.

PREMIER MONIS'S CAREER.

He Succeeded Briand—Is Classed as a Radical Republican.

Antoine Ernest Emmanuel Monis, Premier and Minister of the Interior of France, who came into power on the fall of the Briand régime on March 1 this year, was born at Châteauneuf-sur-Charente (Charente). He is a lawyer and was for many years an advocate in the Court of Appeal at Bordeaux. He was Minister of Justice from 1899 to 1902, has been Vice President of the Senate, where he sits as Senator of the Gironde, and was a former Deputy. He was decorated with the Grand Cross of the Order of the White Eagle of Russia. His home in Paris is 87 Boulevard St. Michel.

M. Monis is classed as a Radical Republican in French politics. He took a prominent part in the overthrow of the Bourgeois Ministry in 1896. As Minister of Justice in the Waldeck-Rousseau Cabinet he signed the decree convoking the High Court to try the Royalist plot against the Republic in 1899.

DEATH LIST NOW 47.

Of This Number of Persons Killed by Aeroplanes 16 Have Been Frenchmen.

The death of Henri Maurice Berteaux brings the roll of those killed in aeroplane accidents up to 47, beginning with the death of Lieut. Thomas E. Selfridge, the first person killed by an aeroplane, on Sept. 17, 1908. Out of the list only three others were Americans—Johnstone, Moisant and Hoxey. The others were English, French, Italian, Dutch, German, Peruvian, Russian, Hungarian and Spanish. Sixteen of those killed were Frenchmen. Here is the list:

SEPT. 17.—Lieut. Thomas E. Selfridge, Signal Corps, United States Army, killed at Fort Myer, Va., while flying with Orville Wright in a Wright biplane. Mr. Wright had a narrow escape and was badly injured. The accident was probably due to a broken propeller.

1909.

SEPT. 7.—Eugene Lefebre, the French aviator, killed at Juvisy, France, while flying in a Wright biplane.

SEPT. 22.—Capt. Louis F. Ferber, French Army, killed at Boulogne, France, while flying a Voisin biplane and trying to make a landing.

SEPT. 22.—Ena Rossi, killed in a machine of his own construction while flying near Rome, Italy.

DEC. 6.—Antonio Fernandez, a Spanish aviator, but a French citizen, killed at Nice, France, while flying a machine of his own construction, designed after the Wright model. A motor cylinder exploded when he was at an altitude of 500 metres, hurling Fernandez to the ground in his machine.

1910.

JAN. 4.—Leon Delagrange, one of the most famous of French aviators, killed in a Bleriot monoplane, near Bordeaux, France. Delagrange was making a turn at a high speed when a wing of the monoplane broke.

APRIL 2.—Hubert Le Blon, another well-known French aviator, killed near Sebastian, Spain, while driving a high-powered Bleriot monoplane, which, from some unknown cause, turned turtle.

MAY 13.—Hauvette Michelin, another French aviator, killed when about to ascend at Lyons, France, in an Antoinette monoplane. The machine was running along the ground before rising, when it struck a pylon.

JUNE 18.—Thaddeus Robl, a German aviator, formerly a professional bicycle rider, killed near Stettin, Germany, while flying a Farman biplane. A high wind prevailed.

JULY 3.—Charles Louis Wachter, the French aviator, killed at Rheims, France, in an Antoinette monoplane. One of the wings of the machine broke when Wachter was in flight 500 feet above the ground.

JULY 10.—Daniel Kinet, a Belgian aviator, while flying a Farman biplane, fell at Ghent, Belgium. The rudder of the machine broke.

JULY 12.—The Hon. Charles Stewart Rolls, youngest son of Lord Llangattock, killed at Bournemouth, England, while flying a Short-Wright biplane. The front control of his machine broke, hurling him to the ground.

JULY 13.—Oscar Erbsloch, near Leichlinger, Germany.

JULY 15.—J. Zosely, at Budapest.

AUG. 3.—Nicholas Kinet, Belgian, was flying 650 feet up when a rear wire in his Farman biplane became entangled in the motor mechanism, stopping the engine. The machine dropped.

AUG. 20.—Lieut. Marquis Vivaldi of the Italian Army, killed near Rome in a Farman biplane. In descending he lost control.

AUG. 27.—Van Maasdyk, a Dutchman, was making a cross-country flight in a Sommer biplane when the motor stopped, causing the machine to turn turtle.

SEPT. 23.—Georges Chavez, Peruvian, had flown over the Alps from Brigue, Switzerland, for a prize of $20,000 for a flight to Milan. He tried to make a landing within thirty miles of Milan. He was within thirty feet of the ground when the wind caught his Bleriot machine and dashed it to the ground. Chavez died Sept. 27.

SEPT. 25.—Edmond Poillot, Frenchman, killed at Chartres, France, while flying with a passenger, who escaped with slight injuries. The machine was up 90 feet when a piece of canvas was ripped from one of the planes, causing it to turn turtle.

SEPT. 28.—Flockmann, German, was in a machine that collapsed near Muhlhausen, Germany, at a height of 150 feet. He died the next day.

OCT. 1.—Herr Haas, German, killed at Wellen, on the Moselle River, Germany, by a fall from his aeroplane.

OCT. 7.—Capt. Mazlewitch, of the Russian Army fell from a Farman biplane at St. Petersburg when up 1,640 feet.

OCT. 23.—Capt. Madiot of the French Army at Douai, France, was flying 100 feet up and tried to stop his engine and plane to the ground. The engine refused to stop and the machine upset.

OCT. 25.—Lieut. Mente of the German Army killed near Magdeburg, while planing to the ground in a Wright machine. It turned turtle and he was instantly killed.

OCT. 26.—Fernando Blanchard, Frenchman, at Issy les Molineux, France, was preparing to land at the finish of a 140-mile flight from Bourges. He was going at great speed about 120 feet up when he lost control of his monoplane.

OCT. 27.—Lieut. Saglietti of the Italian Army was killed at Centoselle, Italy. The aeroplane tipped and Saglietti was unable to right it.

NOV. 10.—Herr Peeters, when machine was wrecked near Brussels.

NOV. 17.—Ralph Johnstone, flying partner of Hoxsey, at Denver, was making a spiral glide at a height of 800 feet, when the lower left plane of his machine broke.

Dec. 3.—Lieut. Cammarata of the Itlian Army, while flying with a soldier near Rome, in a Farman biplane, lost control of the machine, and it dropped. Both were killed.

Dec. 4.—Walter Archer, at Salida, Col.

Dec. 22.—Cecil Grace, a nephew of ex-Mayor Grace of New York, disappeared while flying on a return trip across the English Channel from France. He was flying a Wright biplane.

Dec. 25.—D. Piccollo killed in an Antoinette machine at San Paulo, Brazil.

Dec. 28.—Alexandre Laffont fell 200 feet on what was to have been the start of a flight to Brussels in company with M. Paulla, who owned the machine. The latter was also killed.

Dec. 30.—Lieut. Caumont of the French Army Aviation Corps, while testing a new monoplane at Versailles, fell sixty feet and died soon afterward.

Dec. 31.—John B. Moisant, the American aviator who won the State of Liberty flight prize, killed while trying for the Michelin prize, near New Orleans, La. He was flying a Bleriot monoplane.

Dec. 31.—Arch Hoxsey, the famous Wright aviator, killed at Los Angeles, Cal.

FEB. 6.—Lieut. Stein of the German Military Aviation Service was instantly killed while making a flight over the military aviation field at Doberitz. The aeroplane dropped from a height of 65 feet. The officer's skull was crushed.

FEB. 9.—The Aviators Noel and Delatorre were killed while conducting a trial of a military aeroplane before officers from the War Department at Douai, France, previous to its delivery to the army. Noel was the pilot and Delatorre a passenger. The aviators were planing down from a height of 250 feet when suddenly the wings folded up and the machine fell headlong to the earth. The men were taken out dead.

APRIL 14.—Lieut. Byasson of the French Navy was killed by a fall from an aeroplane at Chevreuse, France.

APRIL 18.—Capt. Carron of the French Army Aviation Corps fell 250 feet from an aeroplane at Versailles, France, and was instantly killed.

100 Injured as Aeroplane Falls.

ODESSA, May 21.—It is reported from Kursk, capital of the Government of the same name, that an aeroplane fell among a crowd of sightseers on Saturday, injuring 100 persons. Five of the injured are not expected to recover.

ARRESTS GANG LEADER.

"Bosco" Lynch Held in a Policeman's Lone Fight on the "Carbarn" Toughs.

Patrolman William Porter of the East 104th Street Station, who has only been on the police force for a few months, is trying single-handed to break up the upper east side "Carbarn" gang. He has been attacked several times, and a short time ago Joseph Murphy, a gangster, tried to shoot him at Fifth Avenue and Ninety-fourth Street. Porter captured Murphy and Judge Mulqueen sentenced him last week to nine years and six months in prison.

Since this occurred members of the gang have made threats against Porter. Last night the policeman met the leader of the gang, "Bosco" Lynch, at First Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street. Lynch is under $2,000 bail for having attacked Porter and other policemen.

"We'll fix you for getting Murphy," said Lynch.

Porter took Lynch to the Night Court, where Magistrate Kernochan held him without bail for examination to-morrow night on a charge of threatening a policeman.

HOLD WOMAN AS JEWEL THIEF

Didn't Steal Diamond Pin, She Says, but Took It in Jest.

Mrs. Ada S. Brooks, a widow, was held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury by Magistrate O'Connor in the West Side Court yesterday on a charge of grand larceny for stealing a diamond pin. The complaint was sworn to by Miss Lillian C. Armstrong of 150 West Eighty-fourth Street, with whom Mrs. Brooks had lived as a companion for some months. J. P. Marshall, agent of a London wine house, also accused her of taking seven stickpins, a gold matchbox, an open link chain, a French watch, two rings, and a solid gold key—all family heirlooms.

Mrs. Brooks admitted having the diamond pin, but said it was held in a jest, and that there was no intention of theft. She said she had found it under a bed in the owner's room on Monday and wore it for two days. Later it was discovered in some clothing in the owner's room.

Miss Armstrong was about to give a tea on Wednesday afternoon when she found that her silver spoons were missing. She called in the police.

BOY'S PRANK CAUSES DEATH.

Throws Stones at Young Man, and Mother of Boy Is Killed in Quarrel.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 21.—A seven-year-old boy throwing stones at Fred Newton, a young man calling on his sister, resulted in Newton killing Mrs. Bettie Baldwin, mother of the boy, this afternoon, at Harriman, Tenn.

Newton remonstrated with the boy for throwing stones, and finally slapped him. The boy told his mother, and when Newton appeared at the house after taking a walk with Miss Baldwin, Mrs. Baldwin met him at the door with a pistol in her hand, it is said.

Newton drew his pistol and fired three shots, killing Mrs. Baldwin instantly, though the girl tried to interfere. Newton was released on bond.

Here to Study Colonization.

Prof. Otto Köbner of the Chair of Colonial Science, Berlin University, and Dr. Hans Hammann arrived yesterday on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. Prof. Köbner is bound for Canada, where he will study the system of colonization, with a view of improving the method of colonization in German South and West Africa. Germany, he says, is anxious to avoid the errors into which this country fell in disposing of our farm lands, permitting the holding of large tracts of land for speculative purposes.

Despondent Man Hangs Himself.

TRENTON, N. J., May 21.—Despondent because his mother was returning to their native land, after a brief visit with him, Joseph Porawiski, a former officer in the Austrian army, committed suicide today by hanging himself with his belt to a cherry tree in the rear of his home. The tree was so small that it was necessary for the man to bend his knees in order to keep his feet from touching the ground.

DEFENDS THE LAW TO END DEATH AVE.

Samuel Untermyer Urges the Mayor to Sign It in Justice to the People.

COURT DECISION HELPS

In Removing All Doubt of Constitutionality of the McManus-Boylan Bill, He Says.

Samuel Untermyer has written a letter to Mayor Gaynor, suggesting that the latter sign the McManus-Boylan bill recently passed by the Legislature for the removal of the New York Central tracks on Eleventh Avenue. In the letter Mr. Untermyer gives the reasons for his views at some length. Here is the letter:

Saturday, May 20, 1911.
Greystone-on-Hudson.
(McManus-Boylan Bill.)
Hon. William J. Gaynor:

Dear Sir—In the light of yesterday's decision by the Court of Appeals in the case of New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company vs. City of New York to enjoin the removal of the company's tracks from the surface of certain streets I have rendered an opinion, and I have also been asked to address you on the constitutionality of the act known by the above title recently passed and which is now before you and upon which you granted a public hearing, but before the decision above referred to was announced.

I respectfully request that in reaching your conclusion you will take into consideration such of the views here expressed as shall appeal to you.

The act is exceptionally clear, simple, and direct in language and purpose. It is in four sections. The first section repeals the permission heretofore granted by the Legislature to maintain an operate the road at grade on the streets and avenues in question, and leaves the vast franchises between Albany and New York City and in the city otherwise undisturbed.

The second section nullifies and revokes any assent or concurrence heretofore given by the city to the maintenance and operation of such railroad at grade on the streets named, and prohibits the city from giving any such consent, (i. e., to maintenance or operation at grade,) except as provided in Section 3.

The third section reserves to the city the right at any time before Nov. 1, 1911, to agree with the company for the relocation of the tracks, "but off the surface of any of its streets or avenues."

By Section 4 the act takes effect immediately as to Section 3, so as to permit the making of the agreement, and on Nov. 1, 1911, as to the other sections.

Prior to the announcement of yesterday's decision the company claimed before you that this act violated its rights both under the Federal and State Constitutions in that it constituted a taking of property without due process of law and without just compensation. I have examined the interesting arguments submitted to you by counsel for the contending parties on this proposition. Whatever doubt, if any, may have existed on this subject, at the time of the submission to you, has, in my judgment, been disposed of by the decision above referred to, which leaves no ground for questioning the constitutionality of the law.

It is true that the only question then directly before the court was to the right of the city to revoke the ordinance which it had passed pursuant to the act of the Legislature, and which required its concurrence, and that the court held that the city had exhausted its power when it gave the necessary consent, and that the Legislature alone could alter, amend or revoke the franchise thus created.

The court, however, also expressly and very emphatically decided against the argument and insistence of the company to the contrary, (based mainly upon the authority of People vs. O'Brien, 111 N. Y., and kindred cases,) that the grant by the Legislature in this case in so far as concerned the use of the streets of the city was a mere repeal of the privilege to use the surface of the streets, which was well within the power of the Legislature without compensation or other provision, and that was plainly distinguishable from the attempt in the O'Brien case to forfeit the entire franchise to maintain and operate a railroad.

The Chief Justice, in his concurring opinion, adopting the personal views expressed by Justice Bartlett went significantly out of his way to announce that the Legislature had the power to do precisely what it has done by this bill, "modify or regulate the franchise given by the State for the location of the plaintiff's railroad in the City of New York."

In support of his reasoning he calls attention to the fundamental distinction between the O'Brien case and what is intended to be done here.

> There is no franchise in this case to do the business of a street railroad, and the permission to occupy the streets was solely as a means for running from one terminus of the road to the other; nor did the franchise to maintain the road include any unqualified right to maintain it on the surface.

The particular thing accomplished by this act is precisely what the court pointed out could be done and strongly intimated should be done to as to remove the constant menace and danger to life occasioned by its (the railroads) operation.

In the light of the previous adjudications of our highest court on this subject and of the significant expressions in this last case practically pointing the way that has been adopted in this bill, I am unable to discover any plausible argument against the constitutionality of the law.

Permit me further to suggest that in no event is the bill open to any such substantial objection as would entitle you to refuse to the people the opportunity of this much-needed relief, having regard to the plain intimation that has come within the past few hours from our court of last resort.

If by your action the bill fails the people are deprived of the opportunity of a hearing on its legality. If, on the other hand, you are content to follow the dictum (if you choose to so regard it) of the Court of Appeals as to the propriety and necessity of removing these tracks in the way accomplished in this bill, it is still open to the company to protect all its legal rights in the courts. It has lost nothing by your approval except the chance to deprive the people of a hearing, which ought to be given. The people on the other hand, would lose much by the failure of the law through your action in taking the question of its legality from the courts and deciding it now in favor of the railroad. Why not allow the courts to pass upon the question, especially in view of the plain intimations from the Court of Appeals? Very respectfully yours, SAMUEL UNTERMYER.

Huguenot Society Officer Dies.

Paul Mirabel, Assistant Secretary of the Huguenot Society of America, died yesterday of heart disease in the French Hospital, after an illness of a few weeks. He was born in Paris forty-five years ago and came to this city in 1903, since which time he had devoted himself to the affairs of the society.

Leg Broken in Football Game.

In a lively football scrimmage at Celtic Park yesterday afternoon, John Gorman of 334 East Twenty-fifth Street received a fracture of the leg above the ankle, both bones being broken. He was taken to St. John's Hospital, Long Island City. The game was being played by members of the Philo-Celtic Association of New York, which had a picnic at the park.

CROWD OF 200,000 AT CONEY ISLAND

"DARE-DEVIL" AUTOIST HURT

And Pony Trainer Is Kicked by One of His Pets—Happy Crowd Drops Conductor Off His Car.

It looked like the middle of Summer at Coney Island yesterday. There was a Summer crowd in Surf Avenue and the Bowery all day, and most of the evening, in point of numbers and in quality of wearing apparel. It was estimated that more than 200,000 persons visited the Island and all the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines were operated on Summer schedules.

It was not until evening that the weather began to remind the crowd that it was not really Summer yet. A heavy mist blew in from the sea. It was foglike in its density, and the few straw hats which had appeared, white and crisp, earlier in the day, began to take on the appearance indigenous to the last days of August.

But despite the inclemency of the weather which settled over the island with every appearance of being there to stay for the rest of the night, it was a happy crowd which flocked about from amusement to amusement, for Coney Island really opened up for the season on Saturday, after several weeks of half-hearted efforts to give the impression of being in the height of the season.

The most exciting event of the day, however, occurred beyond the view of the crowd. It was when the accident which every one who has seen the act has been expecting befell Harry L. Curran, or "Dare Devil" Curran, as he calls himself with perfect propriety. Curran is the man who used to loop the loop on a bicycle, and now he has a wooden automobile track, shaped like a saucer and only eighty-five feet across. The track is fifteen feet in width, and about this narrow circle Curran and two associates have planned to race automobiles. The show is in Luna Park, and up to date Curran and his assistants have contented themselves with practicing. Only two autos are run at once, but these have to keep up a pretty high speed to stay on the track at all, so there is always danger of accident.

Curran was trying out a car alone on the track yesterday afternoon, and there were only a few employes and invited guests watching him. Suddenly one of the front tires picked up a nail from the track. An instant later there was a whistle of escaping air and the tire went flat. The shock as the car fell on the rim threw it out of its course. Curran was tossed from his seat to the platform inside of which the track is hung. He was cut and bruised in innumerable places and lay unconscious until some of the onlookers picked him up and carried him to the emergency hospital, where Dr. John W. Pierce patched him up. The auto fell to the bottom of the track, where its machinery was finally stopped, and it was hauled out for repairs.

Dreamland, too, had its weekly accident although this time the lions took no part in it, wearied perhaps by the unnatural attacks on their keepers, which a shortage of important news from the animal show had made necessary for the last two weeks. Capt. Henry Smith was the victim. Capt. Smith has heroically risked his life on the occasions when the lion handlers have been attacked by their usually kindly beasts, but in the haste of getting the news to the front, the press dispatches have made no mention of his name. Yesterday, however, the Captain got down behind one of the tiny ponies, which he put through their paces in his act, and one of the affectionate animals kicked him in the face. He was rushed to the emergency hospital where they put bandages about his jaw and assured him that the incident should be recorded.

Walter Dowling, a conductor on a Bath Beach train, had an accident which would have been worth money to any performer at the island. The happy crowd, speeding to the island for a day's holiday, pushed him off his train while it was running along New Utrecht Avenue, near Sixty-first Street. Then the pleasure seekers stopped the train, arranged to have Dowling taken to the Norwegian Hospital, where they found him full of astonishment and bruises, and continued on their way to the island.

Commissioner Walsh of the Department of Weights and Measures was an unwelcome visitor to the island. With a staff of assistants he went about testing the "guess-your-weight-within-three-pounds" machines, and condemned most of them. Luna Park's machines all suffered, and Frederic Thompson immediately issued a statement declaring that, of course, the machines didn't weigh within several pounds of the correct weight.

"How many women do you suppose would ever try it again?" asked Mr. Thompson. "A woman's weight is just like her age. She doesn't like to see it increase."

BABY KILLED UNDER TRUCK.

Falls from Carriage He Had Climbed Into and Rolls Into Street.

Nathan Kaplan, 3 years old, left his elder brother Samuel as they were going through Broome Street yesterday afternoon and began to clamber up the side of a brand new baby carriage that stood next the curb, near Suffolk Street. Hermann was supposed to be "minding" his little brother, but just at that moment he was looking somewhere else.

The little fellow climbed to the seat of the baby carriage and waved his hands. A big truck belonging to the Columbia Ice Cream Company of 8 Cannon Street was coming down the street in charge of Samuel Sammerhausen. As it neared the spot where the baby carriage stood, passersby were alarmed to see the little vehicle sway. They shouted to the driver to pull up, but he thought they were telling him something had fallen off his wagon and looked back. Just as he was passing the baby carriage, it overturned. The child rolled under the truck and two of the wheels passed over his body.

Policeman Brennan sent a hurry call to Gouverneur Hospital, but when Dr. Reynolds arrived the child was dead. Witnesses protested to the policeman that if the driver had been more careful the accident would not have happened, and he was locked up in the Eldridge Street Station on a charge of homicide.

No Offer by Bankers to Stevens.

"There's not a word of truth in it," declared John F. Stevens, formerly President of the Hill lines in Oregon, when asked last night to confirm a report that he had received an offer as fiscal agent with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and J. P. Morgan & Co. "I have not received such an offer, don't expect to, and am loafing around now taking things easy on a vacation," he concluded.

TWO SLAIN IN GUN FIGHT.

Italians Who Went to Plant Flowers on a Mountain Stayed to Shoot.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., May 21.—Frank Guercia of 16 Van Houten Street, and Frank Scarpello, whose home was on Garret Mountain, in Little Falls Township, were killed this evening in a gun fight in the woods at the base of the mountain.

Guercia recently bought land near the mountain, and with a party of friends went there to-day to plant flowers. After the planting the party visited a section of the mountain known as "Regina Roost" and began shooting at targets. Scarpello, whose home was near, protested, and a general gun fight followed. Several witnesses declared that Scarpello was the first to pull a gun and that Guercia challenged. All the stories agree that at least a score of shots were fired and that Guercia's friends took part in the firing. When the shooting ceased Scarpello lay dead with several bullets in his body and one in his head.

Guercia lay on the grass with blood flowing from several wounds. He died before medical aid reached him. Peter Scarpello, attracted by the shooting, carried his dead brother to his home. The Paterson police arrested five men and a woman as participants in or witnesses of the affray.

Seven Hurt in Trolley Crash.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., May 21.—Seven passengers were slightly hurt last night when two trolley cars crashed together at Valley Road and White Streets because of slippery tracks.

A closed car was standing at the crossing when an open car came at a rapid pace down the grade from St. Mark's Church. When Motorman Thomas Jones applied his air brakes the wheels locked and the car slid along the rails, and hit the closed car. Mayor Samuel A. Muta, who lives a block away, cared for the slight injuries of those who were brought to him. None was taken to the hospital. All the injured were in the closed car.

RIVALS FIGHT WITH KNIVES.

Alabama Men Quarrel Over a Woman and Stab Each Other Till Overcome.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., May 21.—Rivals for the affections of a young woman, Forest Scott and Britton Young fought a duel with knives, each holding the other's left hand the while to prevent clinching. When both had been seriously wounded and almost blinded from the flow of blood they quit fighting, declared friendship, shook hands, and staggered into a near-by drug store for medical attention.

The quarrel over the girl took place when they met on the street early this morning.

"Let's stab it out to a finish," suggested Scott. Young agreed. They then coolly arranged the details, clasped left hands, and stabbed and slashed each other for nearly twenty minutes, bystanders being afraid to interfere.

Wounded and breathless, they finally fell apart.

"You're game," gasped Young.

"You, too," replied his antagonist.

Both were arrested charged with assault with a deadly weapon. They are in adjoining cots in the hospital.

LIGHTNING KILLS A DOG.

Man Who Went to Unchain It Paralyzed When Tree Is Hit.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 21.—George Cathcart, a cider manufacturer of Yardley, Penn., near here, was paralyzed, his pet dog killed, and a tree split to-day by lightning.

The dog was chained to the tree when the storm broke, and Cathcart went to release it. As he grasped the chain, lightning hit the tree, passed along the chain, and tossed dog and man into the air.

The animal was dead when it reached the ground and Cathcart was stunned. The lightning tore the soles from both of his shoes, ripped a leg of his trousers, and left that leg useless.

PEACE AGREEMENT SIGNED AT JUAREZ

Rebels Ignore the Armistice.

Despite Señor Madero's statement that the agreement will officially end the war reports that reached here to-day show that the armistice signed last week is not being observed to the letter in parts of the States of Sinaloa and Sonora, the Provisional Governments of which are to be recognized by the Government under the terms on which the armistice was signed.

Manuel Bonilla, the Provisional Governor of Sonora, who has been recalled to accept a Cabinet post in the new Government, himself wired the news to the Provisional Government here that all was not tranquillity. He reported that only the immediate resignation of the Federal Governors of Sinaloa and Sonora would appease the rebel troops, and named the towns of Nogales, Alamos, and Hermosillo, in Sonora, and Culiacan, in Sinaloa, as places now surrounded by rebels who were not ready to accept the armistice until the Federal Governors gave up their posts.

Señor Madero is trying to communicate with the commanders of the insurrecto troops at these places and get them to accept the armistice.

Further evidence of a continuation of hostilities in certain parts of Sonora was furnished by the Southern Pacific Railroad, which complained to Señor Madero that its bridges in certain parts of Sonora were being destroyed by rebel troops. He gave the road assurance that he would immediately communicate with the insurrecto forces responsible, and would issue an order that the property of the railroad be not interfered with in any way.

Gen. Pasqual Orozco, who is slated to command the insurrecto garrison at Casas Grandes, and who it was officially announced would leave for that place with his troops to-day, is still here, and there are reports that the reason of it is he refuses to go until he receives the cash which he considers is due him for the part he has played in the insurrection. There is said to be much grumbling among the troops over the slowness with which they are receiving the monetary rewards they consider their due, and this discontent is as apparent among the officers as it is among the enlisted men. The 1,000 troops that left for Casas Grandes to-day, received some money, but the amount is said to have been less than $5 American per man.

All this leads many pessimists to believe that Madero has not the control over the revolutionary forces that he was considered to have a few days ago. He is doing his best to get the rebels throughout the republic to live up to the terms of the armistice, and one of the reasons believed to be at the bottom of the hasty decision reached to-day to sign a definite peace agreement is that by so doing Madero believed the way would be made easier to get his men everywhere to respect the armistice signed last week.

Madero's Journey to Capital.

Señor Madero was again asked to-day to name the day on which he expected to leave for Mexico City. He shook his head as if annoyed by the question, but finally replied, "In about eight days." His intention is still to proceed via Chihuahua over the Mexican Central lines as soon as the line to Mexico City is reopened to traffic.

A newspaper item that recently appeared in American newspapers to the effect that the United States Army had suffered a loss of over 1,200 men, mostly from the division now in Texas, by desertion, and that a majority of these men had crossed the border and enlisted in the insurrecto army, made Señor Madero indignant. He declared the report without foundation, and said that there were less than 100 Americans in his army. Under no circumstances, he added, would he authorize or permit the enlistment of any man who had violated the oath he took when he enlisted in the regular army of the United States.

REYES STILL AWAITS CALL.

Hears That His Wife Is Ill, but Remains in Havana.

HAVANA, May 21.—Gen. Bernardo Reyes, who is here on his way from Europe to Mexico at the call of President Diaz, spent the day in his apartments at the Hotel Sevilla, receiving visits from the Mexican Minister and various Mexican residents of Havana. He said this evening that he had not received any additional information from Mexico, and would remain here, awaiting further orders from the Secretary of War.

Gen. Reyes was greatly shocked this afternoon on receipt of a cablegram announcing the serious illness of his wife, whom he left in Paris. The natural impulse was to return to Paris instantly, but he realized that it was his duty as a soldier and a patriot to subordinate personal inclinations to the obligations which he had undertaken in the service of the republic. He was greatly gratified to-day at messages which he received from the United States, congratulating him on the excellent impression which his most recent statement had made.

REBELS KILL CHINESE BANKER.

Drag Him in Streets of Torreon—Hard Fighting for Three Days.

LAREDO, Texas, May 21.—A few details of the heavy fighting a week ago which resulted in the capture of the important city of Torreon by the Mexican rebels reached here to-day. The fighting took place May 13, 14, and 15.

The reports from Torreon were brought out by an American locomotive engineer, who escaped on a horse, and later found a hand car, on which he reached Jaral, Coahuila, and by a conductor who got to San Luis Potosi after four days' travel. Four railroad men who arrived in Laredo to-day had talked with the two refugees, and found that their stories tallied in every detail.

The railroad men declared that at least 200 Federal soldiers were killed during the battle, but they did not attempt to estimate the rebel losses. It is stated that seventeen Chinese were killed. The wrath of the revolutionists was kindled against the Chinese because they fired upon the rebels who approached large truck gardens where the Chinese were at work.

After the capture of the city Dr. J. W. Lim, a Chinese banker, was dragged, at the end of a rope which had been tied around his neck, around the plaza until his body was badly crushed. He was then shot and killed. He was one of the wealthiest Chinamen in North Mexico and was at the head of a banking institution controlled by Chinese capitalists.

Another report said that one of the Sternau brothers, hotel proprietors at Torreon, was hanged by rebels after a number of Spaniards had fired at revolutionists from doors and windows in the hotel.

Statements that the Chinese hotel, the railroad station, and other buildings were burned were made. So far as known, no American was injured, though it is said that a man named McCarty died from fright.

OROZCO AT CASAS GRANDES.

Rebel Forces Distributed, but Could Soon Be Reunited.

CASAS GRANDES, May 21.—With the arrival here to-night of 1,000 insurrectos who came 150 miles by train from Juarez, a report became current that the revolutionists, despite apparent peace, were moving southward to effect a "peaceful" invasion of Chihuahua, with a view of occupying the capital city as a guarantee until the revolutionary programme has been definitely established in Mexico City.

The insurrectos who are encamped here, fully armed and equipped with horses and supplies for a long march, are under Gen. Orozco. At the same time 500 other insurrectos under Col. Villa are to march southward along the route of the Mexican National Railroad. All of Gen. Madero's forces which are thus removed from the United States border are being distributed so that they might easily be united.

At Santa Ysabel, thirty miles southwest of Chihuahua, are 800 more insurrectos. Near Jiminez, south of the city, a still larger number are located. Except for the small garrison in Juarez, the insurrectos are concentrating around the capital city. Concerning the southward movement of the troops, an official of Gen. Madero's staff in Juarez, before the departure, said:

"Peace is certain, but if there were to be any more fighting, it would be for the possession of Chihuahua. That city was our destination when the Federal Government announced it would surrender."

From Chihuahua came word to-day that the residents are becoming impatient over the prolonged peace negotiations. Although Juarez and other points in Mexico for more than a week have been enjoying an effective peace arrangement, Chihuahua City is practically under siege, since no trains have been able to reach there with supplies and no outside communication has been possible.

FIGUEROA IN CUERNAVACA.

Federal Garrison Evacuates City Near Capital and Rebels Enter.

MEXICO CITY, May 21.—In the name of peace, Gen. Ambrosio Figueroa this morning took possession of Cuernavaca, which was deserted just before dawn by Col. Mungula and his force of fewer than 200 men. Technically violating the terms of the armistice by moving his forces, the rebel leader justifies his action by the statement that he entered the State capital solely for the purpose of maintaining order.

The story of the evacuation and subsequent occupation was brought to Mexico City this afternoon. Refusing to believe the statement of Col. Asunsolo, one of Figueroa's officers, that the city would not be attacked until after the expiration of the armistice, Col. Mungula last night determined to abandon the place. When the residents awakened this morning and learned that he and his men had gone there was a rush of citizens and civil authorities to follow him on his march to the capital. Word was sent to the city that by 11 o'clock the rebels would be in possession of the place. From the remaining residents a committee was hastily named and sent to meet Figueroa. This committee appealed to him to use his forces in the maintenance of order.

Promptly at 11 o'clock the rebels, more than one thousand strong, marched into the town. Not a shot was fired. Guards were immediately thrown out, and substitutes named to act temporarily for the fleeing civil officers.

REBELS KILL BANDIT CHIEF.

Wealthy Leader of Insurrectos Stops Outlawry in Aguascalientes.

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico, May 21.—After a brief career as a leader of bandits, Nicolas Torres, who attempted to justify his acts by shouting "Viva Madero!" to-day was formally executed by Chief José Perez Castro in the village of Asientos, the scene of a raid recently by Torres.

Castro is one of the three wealthy young men of the capital noted more as leaders of cotillions than as rebels. Determined that the State in which his activities were laid should not be infested with bandits, he and his men last week started in pursuit of Torres and his gang. They were captured Saturday night.

With Torres were executed two of his men. Castro gave them a brief trial and furnished them the services of a priest.

A Revolution in Men's Shirt Prices

Men's Soft Shirts—values 2.00 and 2.50
Monday and Tuesday at 1.45

¶ More important than the Mexican Revolution is this revolution in shirt prices. The first won't do you any good, but the second will.

¶ We have 325 dozen men's shirts, made of soft mercerized cloths, also of silk and linen fabrics, that are light in weight and equally light on the pocket.

¶ Patterns are neat stripes, and colors include plain blue, tan, helio, grey and white. Some have collars to match—but the values are matchless, otherwise we would not talk about them.

¶ And but for the fact that you are entitled to run your own affairs, we should deliver half a dozen of these shirts to you personally, on the altruistic theory that we should love our neighbor as ourselves.

¶ We'll deliver them, anyhow, if you will say the word.

¶ If you can't come in at once, telephone us your size, sleeve length and color preferences, and we will set a few shirts aside for you.

SAID one manufacturer: "Why should I advertise? My factory can't fill its orders now."

There is no earthly reason—if your future is certain. Is it?

Suppose the growing tendency toward consolidation should enter your field, and your market should be disputed by a competitor with resources far greater than your own. Are your goods in such demand that you could hold your trade at a price preference? Or are your profits so large that you could smile at a price war?

Suppose any of the cogs of your selling machinery—jobbers, wholesalers, retailers, should slip and fail you. Are your goods so superior that if they should cease to be found on retail shelves, the consumers would rise up and insist on having them?

Suppose the price of raw materials should materially change. Suppose the bars against foreign goods should be let down. Are you so securely entrenched that you can scorn the eternal ghost of tariff revision?

Suppose a period of trade depression should come. Would it pass you by?

Suppose one or more of your competitors, through aggressive advertising, should start an increasing stream of customers into stores all over the country asking for their goods. Would the retailer's and the jobber's attitude toward your goods remain unchanged?

National advertising is answering these questions for manufacturers in nearly every line of business. Wouldn't it be well if you at least knew what these answers were? If you think so, we should like to send you gratis our 40-page book on modern merchandising.

HEARS PORTUGAL FACES REVOLUTION

Messages to London Say Strikes in Oporto Will Usher in a Royalist Uprising.

MUCH DISORDER IN LISBON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 21.—A dispatch from Paris to The Daily Mail says there is reason to believe that the monarchists have completed their preparations for a serious rising in Portugal. According to private messages received in Paris to-day, a counter-revolution will begin in the north, where the anti-Republican feeling is strong and where the discontent with the new régime has been manifested in strikes at Oporto.

If Lisbon, as expected, should follow the example of the north, the counter-revolution will be a most serious affair and will certainly be attended with much violence and bloodshed, as Lisbon is the stronghold of the Republican forces. Disorder has long been rampant in the capital. Robberies and housebreaking are of almost daily occurrence, and the authorities seem powerless. Arms are at a premium, and the demand for foreign, especially British, flags reveals an unexpected number of citizens who claim foreign protection.

At Oporto all business is at a standstill, and dangerous encounters are reported between strikers and the military. Inland-bound vessels have been stopped, the Custom House is occupied by Republican guards, and all work has been paralyzed by thousands of strikers, who seize every opportunity to do damage to shipping. There is uneasiness everywhere, and many Portuguese are leaving Oporto for a foreign asylum. The majority of these fugitives are suspected of Royalist and Clerical views. Their lives would be in danger if an uprising should take place. Several regiments in the north are staunch to the republic, but others cannot be depended on by the Government.

The organization of the counter-revolution in Oporto is in the hands of three men, who are unknown to the people whom they are preparing and arming for the purpose of restoring the monarchy. Every man enrolled is ready to fight at a few hours' notice. Arms and ammunition have been collected, and the movement is said to be well-equipped and supported. Private letters say the revolution will begin in a day or two, even before the elections, which are fixed for May 28.

FOR LIBEL LAW REFORM.

Recent Big Damages Bring Protests from English Press—Judge's Comment.

LONDON, May 21.—Some recent awards of juries in libel actions against newspapers, in which the newspaper proprietors have been mulcted in heavy damages, have started an agitation for the reform of the law of libel. Mr. Justice Scrutton of the King's Bench Division, High Court of Justice, in a recent speech, remarked that public opinion had been shocked by some verdicts given in libel actions. "But," he added, "the juries alone gave the verdicts, and it is not always the Judges who are responsible for the misfortunes of newspaper proprietors."

When the law of fair comment was thoroughly established, he thought, newspapers would occupy a better position than they do now. An innocent expression of opinion, although the jury disagreed with it as fair comment, out to be allowed, even though derogatory to certain persons concerned.

Although the sums newspapers have to pay as the result of the decisions of juries are extremely heavy, they are nothing compared with the amount paid annually to settle threatened actions. Hardly a day passes that London newspapers do not have to pay out large sums in settlement of claims for alleged libel, doing so because it is considered cheaper than fighting a case against a man who might not be able to pay the costs if he happened to lose.

Only last week an illustrated paper paid a waitress $500 in settlement of a claim for damages based on a comic picture labeled "The Stout Waitress." A waitress in a city restaurant brought an action, claiming damages for "ridicule" and the paper was advised to pay, although the artist was ready to bring forward the model, who sat for the picture, and was prepared to swear that he had never seen the City waitress, who claimed that the picture was a caricature of her.

This is only one of thousands of cases that never reach the courts. Those that do go before a jury generally end in the assessment of heavy damages against the newspaper, sometimes for the most trivial comment.

There are a number of newspaper proprietors in Parliament, and they have undertaken to urge a reform of the law.

KAISER RELAXES HONOR CODE

Now Rules That an Army Officer May Retire with Honor Before Trial.

BERLIN, May 21.—The Emperor, it is reported, is considering a modification of the present severity of the officers' code of honor, under which there is no honorable ecape for an officer, even of the reserve, from certain classes of difficulties, mild enough according to American standards, except a duel with probably fatal results.

Following his recent decision in the case of Count von Pfeil that an officer is responsible only to God for an attempt at suicide, and that such an attempt should not prejudice an officer's standing, the Emperor has ruled that an officer whose case is before a court of honor may resign and retire from the army with honor, providing the date of the trial has not been fixed.

Under the old system an officer had no volition in affairs of honor, and must accept the decision of the court, whether a duel was necessary or not, whereas the new rule will permit him to determine in most cases whether his honor has been affected, and if not to retire with his good name, and devote his life to his family in a suitable civilian calling.

MONTREAL STEAMER HELD UP

Gothland's 228 Passengers Quarantined in Fear of Smallpox.

MONTREAL, May 21.—A case of suspected smallpox on the steamer Gothland, from German ports for Montreal, caused the detention of the steamer and the landing to-day of her 228 passengers at the Grosse Isle quarantine station.

The steamer, after having been thoroughly fumigated, was allowed to procede to Quebec. The Gothland is the third steamer to be held up by the health authorities for a similar reason within the past two weeks. Her passengers are mostly Scandinavian and German immigrants.

PRISON FOR SHIP AGENT.

H. B. Parker, Jr., Convicted of Taking Contract Laborers to Colombian Mines.

COLON, May 21.—H. B. Parker, Jr., agent of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, who was convicted yesterday of being implicated with a West Indian named Owens in hiring contract laborers for the Colombia Mines, was sentenced to three and a half years' imprisonment. Owens received a sentence of five years and three months. Parker has appealed from the decision. The laborers recently sailed on the steamship Clyde.

The steamship Clyde of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, which sailed from New York on April 29, was held in Colon for some hours on May 9, while the local officials carried on an inquiry as to the destination of a large number of deck passengers. Owens, who was recently released after serving a two years' teerm in prison in the Canal Zone for forgery, and exiled, was taken off the ship. The ship's Captain, however, refused to permit the officials to take off the alleged contract laborers.

ROME DINES AGRICULTURISTS

American and Other Delegates Honored—Marquis Cappelli Toasts Taft.

ROME, May 21.—The American and other delegates to the conference of the International Institute of Agriculture, which ended yesterday, were entertained at dinner to-night. None of the French delegates was present because of the death of Minister Berteaux.

The American Ambassador, John G. A. Leishman, gave a toast to King Victor Emmanuel, while Marquis Cappelli toasted President Taft. The other speakers included Mayor Nathan of Rome and Gen. Champlin of Boston.

After being strangely missing since May 11, Charles A. Brady of 9 Broad Street, Newark, was heard from on Friday. There is no explanation for his act other than a loss of memory brought on by nervous trouble and severe headaches and worry over business troubles. He is now at Stamford, Conn., with friends.

Brady was employed in this city, and made his home with his sister-in-law, Mrs. F. S. Brady, at the Broad Street address in Newark. He left there a week ago last Wednesday morning, ostensibly to go to work, but failed to reach his office. It was also learned that he had not been seen by a young woman in Stamford, Conn., to whom he is engaged.

Relatives and friends made a search for him, and then appealed to the Newark police. Late on Friday night he telephoned to a friend that he was in the Lackawanna Station at Hoboken. The friend hastened to him, took him to the office of a New York physician for treatment, and then to Stamford for a rest and further treatment.

Brady's sister-in-law said yesterday that she gathered from his conversation that after leaving her house he lost his memory and did not know who he was or where he was going. While in that condition he went to Norfolk, Va., where he saw a picture of himself in a New York newspaper and a story of his disappearance. This restored his mental balance, and he hurried back to New York.

B'RITH ABRAHAM MEETS.

The twenty-fifth annual convention of the Independent Order of B'rith Abraham, an organization which has more than 152,000 members, opened yesterday in Tammany Hall. About 1,200 delegates from every State in the Union were present. Gov. Dix and Mayor Gaynor had been invited, but neither was able to be present.

The hall was decorated with American flags, and when the convention, which will last four days, was opened at 10 o'clock all the available seats and boxes were occupied. Judge Leon Sanders, Grand Master of the organization, opened the convention with his annual message, in which he reviewed the work of the year, and in which he pointed out the necessity of increasing, for the protection of the members, the reserve fund, so that in five years it may amount to $1,500,000. A special request was made that the order celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary in February, 1912. The afternoon was taken up with the reports of the various committees. To-morrow an election of officers will be held.

During the year just past the society has paid out $458,479 in death claims and $7,904 for charitable purposes.

HOSPITAL'S DONATION DAY.

Thousands of dollars in supplies and money were received by St. John's Hospital in Long Island City yesterday, the annual donation day. Up to a late hour last night those in charge of the institution had not completed an appraisal of the gifts, so no report could be given, but it was said that it was the largest in the history of the institution.

A meeting was held in the chapel of the hospital yesterday afternoon, at which Dr. James J. Walsh, Dean of the staff of Fordham Hospital, outlined the work of the institution and told how necessary was St. John's Hospital to the Borough of Queens. At the conclusion of his address donations were asked for.

In the institution are several hundred patients. To this institution are sent all persons injured on the Long Island Railroad.

THINK DEATH LURKS IN ICE CREAM CONES

GET SAMPLES FOR ANALYSIS

Delicacy Is Made of Sugar and Paper, and Cheap Milk Is Used, Health Officers Believe.

The recent death of two children from ptomaine poisoning, the illness of a third child, and reports from Yonkers physicians of much stomach trouble among children, has caused the Board of Health of that city to obtain samples of ice cream, ice cream cones, and wafers from all dealers in the city, and City Chemist Charles Sloan is making an analysis of them. If any are found to contain impurities, dealers from whom they were obtained will be punished and driven out of business. Dr. Sloan expects to have his report ready to submit to the Board of Health by next Tuesday.

There are more than 200 ice cream dealers in Yonkers, besides many peddlers, those under suspicion being the proprietors of small grocery stores and street peddlers. From such dealers agents of Health Officer William S. Coons have obtained many samples of cones which they declare are made of sugar and paper, and hence not fit to eat.

The first death from ptomaine poisoning was that of two-year-old Charlotte Du Bois, who died about a week ago. The case first was diagnosed as gastritis, but later it became plain that it was one of ptomaine poisoning, and an investigation showed she had been eating ice cream cones bought at a grocery store near her home. Her sister Harriet, who also ate of them, is ill with the disease in St. John's Hospital, and is in a serious condition. Physicians said yesterday she may recover.

Monroe Adler, a schoolboy, of 551 Van Cortlandt Park Avenue, died last Saturay in his home in great agony. He went out Friday night after eating a hearty supper, and on his return suffered great pain. It was believed he had eaten ice cream while he was away from the house, as no other members of his family were made ill. Dr. David John of 57 Rudford Avenue, who performed an autopsy, said yesterday he had found curdled milk in the stomach, but would not say he had got ptomaine poisoning from impure ice cream.

Dr. Coons said yesterday that a majority of the children made ill by eating ice cream from cones obtained it from grocers. The cones, he said, had appeared in Yonkers recently in great numbers, and grocers had found them highly profitable. Dr. Coons had samples of cones which had been obtained from several dealers, and he was confident the cones were made of sugar and paper.

"The Yonkers City Charter gives the Board of Health great powers to act where the public health is endangered," he said, "and if the report of the city chemist shows that children are being made ill by eating ice cream in sugar and paper cones we shall take vigorous and immediate action. It is possible that the ice cream is made of cheap milk. Such milk curdles easily, and a child might very easily contract ptomaine poisoning from eating it in any form.

"It may be that cans or boxes in which the ice cream is kept are unsanitary. As for cones made of sugar and paper, they cannot be healthful for children. We have been singularly free from plagues or epidemics, and I am hopeful that this scare will come to nothing."

A majority of the stores where ice cream is sold to children were closed yesterday, but at several which were open for business the proprietors said that they purchased their ice cream and supplies in this city, and admitted that they got them at as low a prive as possible, without questioning the quality.

COL. WATTERSON HOME AGAIN

Believes Taft Will Be Renominated, but Says No One Can Predict Election.

Col. Henry Watterson and Mrs. Watterson were among those who arrived yesterday afternoon on the fogbound Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. The Colonel and his wife have been resting in the South of France. They will remain a week in New York before going to Louisville.

As the Kaiserin came slowly up to her pier through the mist the Colonel talked of the weather and many other things.

"Have I heard that the Hughes Presidential boom has been launched by La Follette?" said the Colonel. "That is probably the dream of a space writer. You will hear many of those things before the beginning of the campaign."

Asked if Col. Roosevelt was "coming back," Col. Watterson replied shortly that he was not his brother's keeper. He gave as his opinion that President Taft would be renominated, but added that no man could predict his election any more than he could predict the weather or the crops eighteen months from now.

The Colonel said that the action in sending troops to the Mexican border was justified by the results.

"The Mexican situation is interesting folks abroad," said Col. Watterson. "They have confidence in President Taft, and the capable way he has handled the situation. There was some fear at first for foregin capital invested in Mexico, but that has given place to security. There will undoubtedly be peace not so far off in Mexico."

The Colonel did not put much faith in the report that Japan was trying to get a coaling station in Mexico. He advocates this country selling the Philippines and buying Magdalena Bay.

Snake Scare on Long Island.

The report that a nest of copperhead snakes has been discovered is disturbing a part of Long Island. The foreman on the North Shore Land Clearing Company's job at stump pulling on the extension of Hulse Avenue to the Sound, at Baiting Hollow unearthed the reptiles on Saturday. While many were sure the snakes were copperheads, others declared they were adders of the flathead type. Joseph Bement, one of the workmen, killed several of the snakes, but many got away from him. The copperhead is very scarce on Long Island.

SETTLEMENT NEEDS HELP.

Harlem Federation House Wants Funds for an Extension.

The annual meeting of the Harlem Federation Settlement House was held yesterday at the headquarters, 238-240 East 105th Street. Some 200 persons witnessed the exercises of the 400 children of the settlement. Dr. Maurice Harris of Temple Israel presided, and Isidor Straus made a speech telling of the needs of the Settlement. He said the house adjoining was necessary for the building of a big auditorium, and that $12,000 would be required to obtain it.

The audience contributed $500, and Alfred Heinsheimer added $1,000 to the fund. It was announced that Jacob H. Schiff had written, pledging $5,000 more. It is expected that the needed $5,500 will be raised this week among friends of the Settlement.

POLICE HUNT A RUNAWAY BOY

Youngster Fled Rather Than Apologize for a Trifling Fault.

Harold Woolf, a 13-year-old boy, has been missing from his home, 1,229 Clinton Avenue, the Bronx, since last Monday. He had then committed a small fault and was being taken by his father to apologize, when he ran away from him in the street and has not since been seen. His parents have reported the case to the police, but no trace of him has been found.

The lad's aunt, Mrs. Grunauer of 14 East Ninety-seventh Street, said yesterday that if the boy would come to her she would be only too glad to receive him and look after him.

DR. WISE ATTACKS FIFTH AVENUE CLUBS

WARNING SERMON TO JEWS

Against Becoming Peace-at-Any-Price Advocates—Why He Won't Attend Lake Mohonk Conference.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue warned his congregation in Carnegie Hall yesterday morning of the danger of becoming "peace-at-any-price" advocates. Rabbi Wise was speaking on the text, "Peace, peace, when there is no peace."

"One of Israel's prophets has for all time stigmatized pseudo peace advocates in telling of the false prophets who cry peace, peace, when there is no peace," said Dr. Wise. "These are the peace-at-any-price men, ready, as it were, to barter away the immediate jewel of their soul, not so much for peace as for that spurious thing which Milton calls ignoble ease and peaceful sloth. These forget that while the prophet has proclaimed that the work of righteousness shall be peace, the work of peace is not always righteousness.

"The fathers in Israel rightly held that such peace is not life's highest good, and they commended certain forms of discontent and spiritual strife as goodly and godly. Because the Jew has been burdened by the centuries with woes innumerable he is in peculiar peril of crying out peace, peace, when there is no peace, and he must sedulously guard himself against this morally imperiling temptation. The depth to which peace-at-any-price men are ready to descend was shown forth at the time of the Dreyfus affair, when some Jews stooped to the base expediency of counseling silence even at the cost of the martyrdom of one Jew, rather than subject all Jews to the possibility of danger. These panic-stricken beings seemed not to understand that a supreme moral principle was at stake rather than the life and fortune of an individual; that if they suffered this principle to go by default, nothing was worth saving, for the life and honor of Dreyfus's people were in the balance.

Why Fear to Organize Jewish Clubs?

"Such as cry peace, peace, when there is no peace are greatly alarmed because the plan has been mooted to organize a Jewish university club in this city, on the ground that this would furnish the armory of anti-Semites with an additional weapon. But would the organization of a Jewish university club be a token of Jewish exclusiveness or a protest in self-respect on the part of Jews uniformly excluded from the university clubs of the land?

"It is honoring to be shut out of some Fifth Avenue clubs in our city—the qualifications for admission to these being apparently a capacity for unlimited idleness and for an almost unlimited measure of strong drink.

"But it is another thing everywhere throughout the land to exclude the sons of Israel from the nominally democratic fellowship of the academic atmosphere. And the dishonor is in no part that of Israel!

"Not long ago the Lake Mohonk Peace Conference cordially invited your minister to be one of its guests and speakers at the annual meeting of the coming week. Upon making inquiry, I learned that the Lake Mohonk Mountain House, the proprietor of which is the host of the conference, 'does not solicit Hebrew patronage'; in other words, denies accommodation to Jews during the Summer months.

Rebuke to Peace Conference.

"I thereupon wrote to a number of well-known Jews who in past years have been regular in attendance at the conference, saying that I would not for a moment think of accepting for myself in May the hospitality which is denied to my people in July and August. I added that no self-respecting Jew ought to be willing to acept such hospitality even for an hour.

"Attempts at explanation followed on the part of those Jews which were not explanations at all, but lame and impotent excuses for the attitude of the hotel. The Secretary of the conference, while cordially renewing the invitation, merely alleged that the hotel at Lake Mohonk and the conferences at the same place are entirely distinct institutions conducted by separate offices, and added that the owner of the hotel and the host of the conference, one and the same person, 'deplored what seemed to be a business necessity in that it seemed to discriminate against such men as yourself and (other names mentioned) in the matter of hotel accommodations.' Nothing was left for me to do but to write to my fellow Jews and to the Peace Conference as follows:

> "It is vain to hope for a cessation of war as long as men suffer racial antipathies and religious animosities to go unchallenged. War, after all, is not a thing of arms and armies. War is a thing of the human heart, and arms merely execute the purposes of the souls of men. If we can get slaughter out of the hearts of men war will speedily cease.
> "I have long cherished a deep admiration for Mr. Smiley as a high-souled servant of the race, as a noble example of American citizenship, and therefore it is a real grief to me to find him yielding, even in the least degree, to one of those prejudices which lie back of the wars to the extermination of which he has dedicated his life.

Peace Must Be Rooted in Fraternity.

"It is not for us to consider the reasons which move the host of the Peace Conference 'not to solicit Hebrew patronage' at his hotel. Every reason which could be urged in his defense is equally valid in extenuatiton of the crime of war. Such anti-Jewish inhospitality is popular and widespread; so is war. It is profitable; so is war.

"I have no quarrel with the Peace Conference, which, in so far as it meets in a place participant in a vulgar and godless discrimination against a whole people, is frustrate of its own high purpose and in a very real sense comes to bring not peace but the sword. My quarrel is with such fellow-Jews as are ready, without demur or protest, to acquiesce in this conduct—an acquiescence which implies an even graver moral remissness in the silent endurers of the deed than in its doers. It matters not how distinguished be the place of these Jews in public or private life. The higher their place or position the loftier is their duty and the more commanding their obligation jealously to safeguard the honor of their people.

"If the members of the conference were simply moneymaking hotel keepers the matter were wholly negligible. But at the Lake Mohonk conferences the leaders and inspirers of the thought of the Nation foregather. The host of the conference and all like-minded Christians I would remind of the word of the prophet: Peace, peace, when there is no peace. What boots international peace as long as inter-racial bitterness and inter-religious animosities are unconquered? Even if war should cease this day, and the sound of weapons be heard no more, even if the prophecy of the Hebrew seer be fulfilled, that swords be beaten into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks, still were there war upon earth as long as peace be not rooted in good-will and comity and fraternity. Even land hunger or territorial greed is not as largely responsible for war as the racial and religious and National hostilities of which anti-Semitisim is at one and the same time the most persistent and Christless example. They have no right to feign to be makers of peace between nations who in very truth are war perpetuators between faiths and races."

CHURCH CORNERSTONE LAID.

Mgr. Lavelle Officiates for a New Structure at Woodlawn Heights.

Mgr. Lavelle, Rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, representing Archbishop Farley, yesterday laid the cornerstone of the new Catholic Church of St. Barnabas, at Martha Avenue and 214th Street, Woodlawn Heights. He was assisted by the Rev. John J. Carr of Williamsbridge and the Rev. Francis P. Moore of Wakefield. Father Byrnes of St. Patrick's Cathedral and the Rev. Robert P. Greene of Yonkers acted as masters of ceremonies.

About 1,500 persons attended the services and heard the Rev. Dr. Guinan, Mgr. Lavelle, and Father Reilly, the Pastor, deliver addresses. The band of the Catholic Protectory, the color-guard of the fourth degree Knights of Columbus, under command of Capt. William Costigan, and about 300 members of various branches of the Holy Name Society marched in a procession.

In the metal box which was placed inside the cornerstone before it was set in position were copies of the deed of assignment, and New York and Yonkers newspapers, coins of the present currency, the names of the Municipal and Archdiocesan officials, and a short history of the parish.

Children's Aid Asks for $50,000.

The Children's Aid Society is asking for $50,000 for its work for the children of the city this Summer. Last year it sent to the country for visits of at least a week, and in many sases longer, 7,806 children from the crowded tenement districts. Its Sick Children's Mission, with its corps of doctors, nurses, and visitors, helped many others who were unable for various reasons to be sent out of the city, and day outings at the seaside or in the country were given to 5,935 mothers and children. Edwin G. Merrill, Treasurer of the society, will receive checks at 105 East Twenty-second Street.

Is Charged with Saying That Time Would Produce 10,000 Christs.

HE MAKES A FLAT DENIAL

Trial of the Drs. Brown of Union Seminary Also a Feature of the Presbyterian Assembly This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 21.—With the contest over the rearrangement of the Church boards and administrative agencies out of the way, Commissioners to the Presbyterian General Assembly will give their earnest attention this week to other issues that promise to make this assembly one of the most notable in the history of the Church.

The first of these are the heresy trials of the Rev. Dr. Francis Brown, President of Union Theological Seminary, and of Prof. Charles Adams Brown of the same institution; the second is the reduction of the size of the General Assembly, and the third the trial to-morrow of the Rev. Dr. William Grant, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Northumberland, upon charges of heresy.

Many prominent lawyers are members of the Judicial Commission, which will pass judgment upon Dr. Grant's case. These include Chief Justice W. E. Settle of Bowling Green, Ky., and Judge John M. Grant of Nashville, Tenn. Other members of the commission are Charles S. Cairns, the Rev. Drs. Robert Hunter, Frank O. Ballard, and William M. Hintman, the Rev. F. H. Handy, Rush Taggart, William R. Chapman, Judge Frank Hamilton, the Rev. Drs. Esra B. Newcomb, W. H. Landon, and Williard K. Spencer.

Dr. Grant is charged, among other things, with preaching a sermon upon "Reasons Why I Do Not Believe in the Inspiration of the Scripture." He is charged with saying:

"It matters not whether Christ rose from the dead; we would have been saved just the same."

Also, he is charged with telling his congregation that "the time will come when there will be 10,000 Christs" and that "a new and a better Bible could be written to-day."

Another count charges him with preaching a sermon entitled "Difficulties in the Way of Believing the Scripture."

The minister from Northumberland unhesitatingly pronounces all of these accusations false. He says that his opponents can not prove that he ever made such statements. They reply:

"We cannot prove it because the Presbytery of Northumberland did not compel you to produce your original manuscripts."

Answering this charge, Dr. Grant says he had no manuscripts, merely fragmentary notes.

The Presbytery of Northumberland, in the trial in which Dr. Grant was acquitted of heresy, agreed that a minister's fragmentary notes might mean anything.

Two features of "General Assembly Sunday" here were the Moderator's sermon, and an enthusiastic immigration meeting this afternoon. The great music hall on the Steel Pier was crowded this morning with distinguished Presbyterians eager to hear the new Moderator's sermon. The Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, who is known as one of the strongest evangelistic preachers in American Presbyterianism, upheld his reputation.

Taking for his text, "Upon This Rock Will I Build My Church," the Moderator, who admitted that he was preaching principally to his brother ministers, made an appeal for greater emphasis upon the spiritual life in preaching. He held that the preacher should subordinate politics, economics, everything to this. In conclusion he said:

"There is much in the tendency of this age to cheapen life. The tendency toward syndicates and combinations in the business world is to bulk men and deal with man simply as one of the mass. Under this system the man becomes simply a part of a vast machine. The Church must develop the interest of mankind in the salvation of the individual."

The immigration meeting demonstrated the many activities of the Presbyterian Church for the uplift and evangelization of the foreign born peoples. It also demonstrated that the immigrants who are pouring into this country at the rate of a million a year are a superior class of people, sound in body and the possessors of characteristics which are lacking in the Americans.

TAFT PRAISES Y. M. C. A.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Speaking to more than a thousand negroes here to-day, President Taft congratulated the race in Washington upon the success of the movement for the erection of a $100,000 home for a colored Young Men's Christian Association.

The President paid a high tribute to the work of the Y. M. C. A., and praised the generosity and philanthropy of Julius Rosenwald of Chicago, who, though barred from any part in the management of the association by the rule limiting the Directorate to certain religious denominations, recently agreed to give $25,000 to the Washington negro branch's building fund. Mr. Taft mentioned that his own denomination is not on the list of those from whom Directors are drawn.

In praising the work of the Y. M. C. A. President Taft said:

"It has reduced the science of taking homeless young men and offering them an attractive Christian club in which all the influences are good, in which there is nothing of the mollycoddle, no softening, enervating influence, but everything tending to vigorous manhood, and everything tending to restrain them from demoralizing vices and practices."

Save 4.50 to 10.00 on your Spring and Summer Suit

From every standpoint that makes for the establishing of a record, this sale takes precedence by right—in variety of fabric assortment, in excellence of tailoring, in comprehensiveness of style—this constitutes New York's record sale of Spring and Summer clothes.

The opportunity arises from the fact that some fourteen months since, there was organized, in response to the insistent demand for Smith Gray & Co. clothes from various parts of the country, the Smith Gray & Co. wholesale special tailoring department.

In the intervening time, the department has broken all records for progress and development—in fact, so great has been its success that six weeks before Easter, the orders then at hand necessitated the turning over of our entire tailoring organization to that department. Meanwhile, thousands of suits, which should have been ready four or five weeks ago, are only ready now, and in consequence, we have no choice but to treat them as surplus stock and make the reductions which would be usual late in August, and so you may, if you come in now, participate in values three months in advance of the regular time—you can secure a full season's service at a season's-end price, and every garment means to you a saving of from 4.50 to 10.00.

We cannot urge you too strongly to participate in these wonderful values while you can. Today there are all sizes in all models, in upwards of 300 fabrics of every conceivable weight, color and dimension—in sixteen two and three button models, full lined, half-lined and quarter-lined—two and three piece suits for men, young men and boys.

20.00, 22.50 and 25.00

You may choose from over one hundred smart styles of high grade yarn dyed and serge worsteds, worsted cheviots, crashes, blue serges and homespuns, in all the new grays, tans, browns and blues—hair line, pencil and fancy weave stripes, diamond weave checks, neat over plaid and check designs. In all, there are more than a dozen correct styles for men and young men.

Suits 18.50
22.50, 25.00 and 27.50

Here are upwards of one hundred styles of exclusive weave velours, fine worsteds in all the new grays, tans, olives, browns and fancy weave blues, and blue serges of finest Australian wool all in a dozen or more distinctive models for men and young men.

Suits 22.50
27.00, 30.00 and 35.00

Included are some seventy-five exclusive styles of velours, flannels, Saxony cassimeres, English and Scotch weave cheviots, clear and mill finished worsteds, from the world's foremost weavers. Here you will find the new exclusive brick shades, olives, grays and fancy blues and cricketing flannel stripe weaves, in English soft roll and plain lapel models—also in a dozen distinctive styles for men and young men.

35.00 and 37.50

Here we have upwards of three score styles in the finest foreign and domestic fabrics. There are silk mixtures and silk stripe designs on black grounds—exclusive wale weaves, in silk chain effects on gray and brown grounds — handsome English worsteds in beautiful grays in Glen checks, overplaid stripes and step weaves—also new brown stripe weaves of finest unfinished worsteds and smart new diamond weaves of fancy blues.

WHAT THE DOCTOR SAID TO FATHER

A TRUE STORY

You need have no fear Mr. ——— about your son's condition. Keep him out doors—encourage the play spirit and that nervous condition will pass away.

Now, what I am going to say will sound STRANGE to you.

Your boy does not need a tonic but he does require CORRECTLY FITTING SHOES. A good healthy boy is on his feet all day long. His ankles are supporting that little body from morning until night. Those tender ankles and the mass of nerves centering in the soles of the feet are under CONTINUAL STRAIN.

Any undue pressure on a nerve center or lack of proper support for growing bones and tendons affect the delicate nervous organism—and makes for ILL HEALTH. When you came in I noticed that your boy's left foot turns in and his knees incline towards one another.

He has a little nervous ailment but he also has "SHOE TROUBLE."

There may be others but I only know of one shoe that will correct that trouble—THE COWARD SHOE. Get it. The rest of my prescription is fresh air—plenty of it.

The Coward Shoe

WALDO IN THE LEAD FOR POLICE HEAD

HASN'T IGNORED ORDERS

Charge That Cropsey Has Done So and Offended Gaynor—McAdoo's Friends Say He Wouldn't Take the Place.

Rhinelander Waldo, Fire Commissioner since early in the Gaynor administration, is likely to be the next Police Commissioner of New York. His appointment as the successor to James C. Cropsey, the present Police Commissioner, who was chosen for that position by the Mayor on Oct. 21 last, is expected to-morrow afternoon.

Although no official announcement of the retirement of Commissioner Cropsey has been made, those who stand close to the Mayor say there is little doubt that he is slated to go and that Fire Commissioner Waldo is to be his successor. Mayor Gaynor's friends say there is little doubt that Mr. Waldo will accept.

Mayor Gaynor is known to think very well of the Fire Commissioner. His record as head of the department has been pleasing, particularly as no suggestion concerning the administration of the department that has come from Mayor Gaynor has been ignored.

It is known that Mayor Gaynor recently instructed Commissioner Waldo and Commissioner Cropsey to choose their appointments from the civil service lists in regular order instead of by the old method of picking one man out of three or two men out of five as they appeared on the eligible lists.

Commissioner Waldo obeyed this instruction to the letter, but Police Commissioner Cropsey did not. News of his failure did not become public, however, until the publication last Thursday of a letter by James Creelman, President of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, to Mayor Gaynor, charging Cropsey with having violated the civil service law in the appointment of forty-eight policemen. This disclosure is believed to figure prominently in the Police Commissioner's present embarrassment. Those who know Mayor Gaynor well say he cannot countenance disobedience in an administrative head. They say, too, that the failure of Mr. Cropsey to obey instructions in choosing men for the uniformed force is not the only instance in which he has acted contrary to the wishes of the Mayor.

Several weeks ago the head of the Police Department received a list of eligibles for the vacant Police Captaincies from the Civil Service Commission. Instructions also reached Commissioner Cropsey from City Hall that the fifteen vacancies be filled at once from the list. The vacancies have not been filled.

Another order by Mayor Gaynor was that politics be eliminated from both Fire and Police Departments. Friends of Mayor Gaynor say that Commissioner Waldo succeeded in this, too, but that the Police Department is still far from free of the old-time political influence and from that which for many years has been known as "the system." Mr. Waldo's success where Cropsey failed is said to have received due consideration when Mayor Gaynor cast around for a likely man for Police Commissioner.

Chief Magistrate William McAdoo has also been mentioned for the place, but the Mayor's friends say that Mr. McAdoo cannot be spared by the administration from his present place. Mr. McAdoo has already had a taste of the Police Commissionership, and some of his friends say he could not be induced to take the job again.

Commissioner Waldo refuses to discuss the situation. His friends say he has received no word from Mayor Gaynor, and is not seeking the job, as he is content to remain at the head of the Fire Department. They say, however, that if the offer of the Police Commissionership were made by the Mayor on personal grounds, Mr. Waldo would have to accept.

It was learned yesterday that the forty-eight new policeman who were appointed by Police Commissioner Cropsey, in alleged violation of the civil service law, are no longer on the city's payroll, and that the only hope for remuneration they have is from Mr. Cropsey's own pocket. Before writing to Mayor Gaynor President Creelman of the Civil Service Commission had refused to certify the names of these forty-eight appointees on the pay roll. In doing this he had a ruling from Corporation Counsel Watson, who upheld President Creelman's construction of the civil service law and agreed with him that the law had been violated in the appointment of the men.

It was figured out yesterday that these appointments might cost Mr. Cropsey about $12,200 out of his own pocket, unless he can make satisfactory arrangement with the men themselves. One other course is open to the Police Commissioner. He can cancel the appointments and allow the men to take new examinations before the Civil Service Commission. Some of them might get ratings which would quafiy them for appointment at once. The first month's pay of the men amounts to about $4,500. The balance of the $12,200 is made up by expenditures for uniforms, revolvers, batons, and other equipment, which has been paid by the department and will have to be refunded unless the appointees eventually get on the force.

Mayor Gaynor is not expected at City Hall to-day. He has planned to inspect the Brooklyn watershed, accompanied by Commissioner Thompson. But on his appearance at City Hall to-morrow important developments in the police situation are expected.

Police Commissioners do not, as a rule, last very long. Gen. Theodore Bingham had tne longest tenure of all the appointments since 1901. Here is the list in recent years:

Michael C. Murphy, appointed Feb. 22, 1901, served ten months; Col. John N. Partridge, Jan. 2, 1902, served one year; Gen. Francis V. Greene, Jan. 1, 1903, served one year; William McAdoo, Jan. 1, 1904, served two years; Gen. Theodore Bingham, Jan. 1, 1906, served three years and six months; William E. Baker, July 1, 1909, served one year and six months; James C. Cropsey, Oct. 21.

DOG FOILS A BURGLAR.

Man Escapes After Threat to a Yonkers Woman, Who Had Been Aroused.

Mrs. C. Arthur Dunlevy, who lives at 42 Sunnyside Drive, a fashionable Street of Yonkers, was aroused early yesterday morning by hearing her pet dog bark. Without calling any one she started down to investigate, and saw a light in the vestibule outside the door. Inside the lights were low. As she reached the main hall, a man aproached her from the parlor.

Thinking he might be her husband, she called to him.

"What are you doing down here?"

There was no answer, but the man thrust a revolver in her face and warned her to make no outcry. She obeyed and the man backed slowly away. As he closed the front door, he flourished his revolver and disappeared.

Mrs. Dunlevy called her husband and the reserves of the Third Precinct, under Sergt. Sheible, were called. They searched the neighborhood, but could find no trace of the robber.

A parlor window forced open, showed how he had entered. The dog had evidently given the alarm as soon as the intruder appeared, for he had not had time to search for valuables.

Crowd at Palisade Park Opening.

It was opening Sunday yesterday for the Palisades Amusement Park, opposite West 129th Street, Manhattan, and a midsummer crowd of 15,000 visited the park in the afternoon. Frank Goodale, the young aeronaut made a flight in a dirigible balloon. Before attempting a flight in a dirigible balloon.

RIGID NEW RULES FOR HANDLING DYNAMITE

Responsibility Is Fixed and Every Violation Is Made a Misdemeanor.

PERMIT ALWAYS NECESSARY

Wagons Must Carry a Danger Flag and All Deliveries in the City Reported Daily to Fire Headquarters.

The Municipal Explosives Commission will give a public hearing at 10:30 o'clock this morning in Fire Headquarters, 157 East Sixty-seventh Street, on the adoption of the revised regulations covering the manufacture, transportation, sale and use of high explosives and blasting supplies within the city. When these are accepted as part of the city ordinances the task of supervising the handling of dangerous explosives in the city will have been systematized.

The present regulations are indefinite, the proposed regulations are specific and stringent. Their authors contend they are exhaustive. If they are adopted, hereafter at every magazine one man will be responsible, and every violation will be a crime. Men will be unable to take away dynamite without reason. The The disposition of every bit of explosive material will be checked. Each of the eleven chapters of the new regulations ends with this section:

> A person who violates the provisions of this chapter is guilty of a misdemeanor.

It will be unlawful for any person to manufacture explosives within the city, nor may a person bring in or handle an explosive here in any way without a permit, or even with one, "between sunset and sunrise."

> It shall be unlawful for any person to transport or carry in any manner whatever explosives of any character in any quantity in a completed tunnel or subway under the land, streets, or waters within the City of New York, or in or upon any public conveyance within said city.
> It shall be unlawful for any person to carry or transport through the streets, avenues, or highways of the City of New York any explosives except in a wagon for which a certificate of approval has been issued by the Fire Commissioner.
> Each wagon while carrying explosives shall display upon an erect pole on the front end of such wagon and at such height that it shall be visible from all directions a red flag with the word "Danger" painted, stamped, or sewn thereon in white letters. Each flag shall be at least eighteen inches by thirty inches in size, and the letters thereon shall be at least twelve inches in height.
> It shall be unlawful for any person to carry or transport in or upon a wagon within the City of New York any explosives in excess of one thousand pounds.

Precautions are taken as to the separation of explosives and detonators, and it will be a misdemeanor to smoke on a wagon or vessel that is transporting either. Every holder of a permit to handle explosives must file with the Fire Commissioner each business day a written report of all deliveries within the city on the preceding day. Under the heading "Magazines" there are these provisions:

> It shall be unlawful for any person holding a permit for the storage of explosives within the City of New York to store or keep such explosives in a magazine unless a person holding a certificate of fitness as a magazine keeper is constantly in charge thereof.
> It shall be the duty of a magazine keeper to keep an accurate daily record of all explosives received in or delivered from the magazine in his charge. Such record shall also show in detail how the explosives have been used or otherwise disposed of, and shall at all times be open to the inspection of the Fire Commissioner.

In the matter of blasting the regulations provide:

> It shall be unlawful for any person holding a certificate of fitness as a blaster to delegate to any other person authority to conduct any blasting operation, to prepare the charge, load the holes, or to discharge explosives; or to order or permit any other person to perform any of the acts herein specified.
> The blasting of rock contiguous to any structure shall be so carried on as not to cause damage to such structure, and to this end weak walls or other supports shall be shored up, and rotten or decomposed rock shall be removed only by the use of gads, picks, or crowbars. When blasting in the vicinity of such structure is unavoidable, only light face blasts with short lines of resistance and small charges shall be used.
> At least three minutes before firing a blast the blaster shall give warning thereof by causing a competent man, carrying a red flag, to be stationed at a reasonable distance from the blast at all avenues of approach and points of danger.

Stringent regulations are planned for the supervision and restriction of the use of black, blasting, and smokeless powder. No permit for the sale of powder shall be issued for any premises—

> Which are occupied wholly or in part as a tenement house, dwelling, or school; which are used wholly or in part as a carpenter shop or drug store; which are frame or wooden buildings, except authorized magazines; which are not lighted by electricity; where cigars, cigarettes, or tobacco are kept for sale; where paints, oils, varnishes, or lacquers are manufactured, stored, or kept for sale or use; where matches, resin, turpentine, petroleum, or any of the products of petroleum, hemp, cotton, fireworks, or any other explosive or combustible is manufactured, stored, or kept for sale or use.

The Commissioners feel that the proposed regulations are thorough and will protect the city.

PLANS FOR THE FOURTH.

A Parade of the Nations Among the Safe and Sane Features Arranged.

Mayor Gaynor's "safe and sane Fourth of July" committee is arranging for local celebrations in every one of the five boroughs, and where necessary at several centres in each of them. Isaac V. Seligman, Treasurer of the committee, believes that plenty of funds will be forthcoming as soon as the citizens realize what is being planned.

In Manhattan there will be exercises in the morning in front of the City Hall, at which Mayor Gaynor expects to preside. It is hoped that the principal speakers will be Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey and the new Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson. As at all of the celebrations organized by the committee, the Declaration of Independence will be read.

The National Guard will not parade this year, but Dr. George F. Kunz, Chairman of the committee, has organized instead a novel parade. A "procession of the nations" is to be held all around City Hall Park. Every nationality in Manhattan is to be represented by an entire family, the head of which will carry the colors of the country in which he was born. It has been suggested that the General Committee offer a prize for the largest family in line. England, Scotland, Ireland, Italy, France, the German Empire, Austro-Hungary, Russia, Norway, Sweden, and the Balkan States are among the countries to be represented, and the procession will pass before the Mayor and the invited guests before the regular proceedings begin.

The Manhattan committee, of which Ralph Pulitzer is Chairman and Alfred J. Talley Secretary, has arranged for exercises at Columbia and New York Universities and City College. Frank L. Frugone and Cesare Conti will be in charge of Italian celebrations at Mulberry Bend and at 112th Street and the East River. Vincent W. Woytisek will preside over an assemblage of Bohemians, and Morris Cukor over a Hungarian gathering. Samuel Barondess has made arrangements for two Yiddish celebrations, and M. Bouvet, editor of the Courier des Etats Unis, will draw up the plans for a gathering of the French citizens in Washington Square.

In the Bronx the official celebration will be held at the Borough Hall, and there will be local gatherings at Indian Field, a Revolutionary battlefield, under the auspices of the Patriotic Society of Van Cortlandt Park East, at McKinley Square, at Poe Park, at Claremont Park, and similar open spaces. In the other boroughs there will also be official celebrations at the Borough Halls and neighborhood gatherings at convenient points.

FLOWERS ON THE TIDE FOR THE NAVY'S DEAD

Paper Warship Loaded with Blooms Towed Out Into the Hudson River

BY DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS

First Service Since the Civil War Held on a Harlem Pier, with Speeches by Many Old Fighters.

For the first time since the civil war there was a public memorial service yesterday for naval men who died in that conflict. A little group of men who had manned the Federal fleets and members of the Daughters of Veterans met on the 129th Street Recreation Pier for exercises "in honor of the unknown dead, the sailors and marines of the civil war."

A miniature warship made of heavy cardboard filled with flowers was taken out on a launch into the Hudson River. A salute was fired from the shore as it was put into the water and towed about until it sank, its cargo of flowers floating out on the tide, as an offering to those whose grave was the sea.

Preceding this there were memorial exercises on the pier. The bandstand was used as a platform, on which sat members of Mrs. Ella Bixby Tent, No. 18, National Alliance, Daughters of Veterans, U. S. A., and a group of Post Commanders of naval and military posts of the Grand Army of the Republic. There was an audience of about 500.

Mrs. May D. Ring, the President, made the welcoming address, and the programme consisted of patriotic songs, National anthems played by the Boys' Band of the 143d Street Congregational Church of the Bronx, and addresses by veterans.

Fleet Captain S. C. Van Tassel of the Monitor Association, Naval Veterans of Brooklyn, commented on the fact that the exercises were the first in honor of the navy dead, and that the Nation needed to be reminded of the important part the navy had played in the war by blockading Southern ports.

J. K. Darragh, Commander of Morgan Post, No. 307, G. A. R., was vigorous in his denunciation of the movement for international peace and disarmament.

Others who spoke were Gen. George B. Loud, Chairman of the Memorial Committee, New York Division, G. A. R., and M. F. Cummings, Past Commander of the Department of the State of New York, G. A. R.

When the exercises on the pier were over, Mrs. Ring called for "the launching of the ship." A detachment of the First Company of Coast Artillery, Sons of Veterans, acted as escort. Four soldiers carried the floral ship, and the detachment, under Capt. Henry McNally, fell in as escort.

Behind them were Mrs. Janette Haskins, who was in charge of this part of the programme; Mathew Jennings, Grand Marshal of the Memorial Day parade; Andrew Gilman, Commander of Naval Post 516; John McGann, Commander of Farragut Post; Charles I. Roskoph of Peter Cooper Post, and First Lieut. Charles Paul of the First Company Coast Artillery, Sons of Veterans Reserves.

All proceeded out of the pier to the Hudson-Fulton landing stage, where they embarked on a launch. Several hundred yards from shore the flower ship was lowered over the side. The veterans on the launch stood at attention, and on the landing stage the Sons of Veterans fired three rounds, while their bugler sounded "taps."

The launch started slowly, towing the flower boat, which settled in the water until it capsized and sank, leaving the flowers floating on all sides.

OCRATS WORRIED ABOUT RECIPROCITY

Accuse Republican Senators of Tacking on Amendments Just to Muddle the Situation.

AGREE ON A WOOL TARIFF

Majority of StatesFavored One for Revenue and Present Duty Will Be Cut in Half.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Democrats in the House of Representatives, having disposed of practically all of their legislative programme except the wool schedule, which is almost ready for action, are worried over the puzzling situation in the Senate, the chief feature of which is the Canadian reciprocity bill.

The House Democrats argue that they took the reciprocity agreement just as it came from the international conferees and the President and passed it as a matter of National policy, without attempting to encumber it or embarrass the administration with tariff riders. The farmers' free list bill, which followed it, they argue, was an affair of their own, and need not stand in the way of the reciprocity measure, for whose consideration the extraordinary session of Congress was called.

Now they say that the Republican Senate is juggling with the Canadian agreement. Should the bill embodying it be amended and the Democratic House called upon to consider it in an amended form, the House leaders fear that they might be placed in an embarrassing position.

One Democratic leader to-day declared that there were two forces at work in the Senate to amend the bill, one sincerely trying to strengthen the agreement and the other seeking to muddle affairs.

The Democrats are determined to stay in session until the Senate has taken some action on the bill. A virtual ultimatum from the House to the Senate leaders that the Senate must also vote, one way or other, on the farmers' free list bill and the wool bill when it is passed in the House is regarded by some as a sort of a whip to hasten the Senate along on the reciprocity measure. If the reciprocity bill is passed by the Senate, after the House has disposed of the wool schedule, some Democrats think that the House would not insist upon anything more than a clear indication from the Senate that it would not act on the other tariff bills, and that it would agree to a Summer recess.

House leaders are gratified that they are out of the woods on the wool revision question. The Ways and Means Committee's decision is that the revised wool schedule will not place raw wool on the free list, but will cut the existing rate very materially, from 11 cents a pound to 5 or 6 cents a pound, or its equivalent in an valorem duty.

Advocates of ree wool in the committee were forced to yield by Speaker Clark, Majority Leader Underwood, Chairman of the committee, and other conservative leaders, after a complete canvas of the States. Democratic leaders in each State delegation were called in. The revenue situation was explained to them. They were told that it was an impossibility to cut off with one swoop the $21,000,000 in revenue from raw wool, and were asked to poll their delegations. This they did with the result that the advocates of a revenue on raw wool were supported by a majority in every State delegation except New York, New Jersey, and Massachusetts.

In the three later States the free raw wool advocates were largely in the majority, New Jersey being unanimous, New York standing 18 to 4, and Massachusetts almost unanimous for free raw wool. But in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, all the Far Western States, Texas and others of the forty States with Democratic representation in Congress, a revenue tariff was supported. Hence the surrender in the committee of the free raw wool leaders, and the committee anticipates nothing more serious than usual agitation when the tentative bill is placed before the party caucus within the next ten days.

The bill providing for Statehood of Arizona and New Mexico will come up for passage, by agreement, in the House on Tuesday afternoon. That will about wind up the House for some time, there being little for it to consider until the wool bill is ready.

In the Senate this week a lively programme is provided. Senator La Follette will reopen the Lorimer case to-morrow morning, with an extended speech on his resolution providing that there be a reinvestigation of Senator Lorimer's right to his seat. The La Follette resolution provides for a special committee of investigation of which Senator Works of California is named as Chairman.

It is said that while he will have the support of the Democrats in keeping the Lorimer matter to the fore, many Democrats will oppose his right to name the committee. The Democrat support is pledged as the result of an agreement by Mr. La Follette to report out from the Committee on Census, of which he is Chairman, the Reapportionment bill passed by the House. Opponents of the La Follette plan will seek to have the resolution referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

On Tuesday, it being the unfinished business of the Senate, the joint resolution providing for popular election of Senators probably will be called up by Senator Borah. The Finance Committee will continue hearings on the Canadian Reciprocity bill.

SKIMMED MILK CRUSADE.

Dr. Wiley Urges Prosecution of Makers of the Condensed Kind.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON.—May 21.—A crusade against manufacturers of condensed skimmed milk, who misrepresent their product has been started by the Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Wiley has recommended that certain manufacturers be prosecuted for violation of the pure food law and it is probable that proceedings against them will be started within the next few days.

As a result of an investigation of the condensed milk situation, which has been in progress at the Bureau of Chemistry for some time, Dr. Wiley says he is convinced that the lives of an almost unlimited number of infants are endangered every day by the use of such milk.

"This department is doing everything it can to stop the sale of condensed skimmed milk," said Dr. Wiley. "Its effect throughout the country on infant mortality can only be estimated, but I do know that it endangers the life of every child to whom it is given."

CIVILIAN IS CUTTER CHIEF.

Rivalry of Regular Captains Delays Filling the Post.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Though the post of Captain Commandant of the Revenue Cutter Service has been vacant for three weeks, no appointment has been made, and the service is being run temporarily by a civilian, H. C. Merrill, attached to headquarters.

The post was vacated by the retirement of Capt. Worth G. Ross, announced last Winter, and effective on May 1. Despite the fact that the retirement was announced many weeks before it became effective, the post was not filled, and still is not filled, for the simple reason, it is said, that the claims of the rival Captains for it were to-day declared by an official of the Treasury Department to be "just about even."

Every one of the thirty-eight Captains, it is said, is backed by several Congressmen and a number of mercantile maritime associations. A number of the Captains have made personal visits to Secretary MacVeagh in efforts to further their candidacy within the past week, and every one has later declared himself confident that he would receive the coveted appointment, which, in addition to dignity and honor, carries a salary of $6,500 a year.

Meanwhile, for the first time in years, a civilian is in charge of the service. Ordinarily Mr. Merrill is chief of one of the clerical divisions of the service. He has been in the department many years, and is thoroughly familiar with all branches of the Revenue Cutter Service work.

PLANTER SHOT FROM BEHIND.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ga., May 21.—Henry Googer, 50 years old, a prosperous planter, residing a mile from this place, was found murdered last night in a field, where he had been at work, and Joseph Moore, a negro farm hand, is under arrest, charged with the crime.

Googer evidently had been shot in the back while at work and his slayer then had crushed in the back of his head with stones. It is said that the negro and Googer quarreled Friday over a trivial matter and the negro left the farm.

Conference on Fire Safety.

The Auxiliary Architecture and Engineering Conference will begin at 8 o'clock to-night at the New Grand Central Palace, under the charge of Dr. William H. Tolman, Director of the American Museum of Safety. Ex-Fire Chief Edward F. Croker will deliver an address on "Fire and its Prevention" and W. W. Corlett, Chairman of the Safety Committee of the United States Steel Corporation, will describe what that corporation has done to safeguard its employes from fire.

Family Killed by a Trolley Car.

NEWARK, Ohio, May 21.—The family of D. W. Dodson of Hebron was wiped out to-day when an interurban car on the Newark Division of the Ohio Electric Railway struck their buggy and killed Mr. Dodson, aged 30; Mrs. Dodson, the same age, and their two little girls, aged 7 and 4.

A Piano That Anyone Can Play Such as the Milton Player-Piano

And this very excellent instrument, coming from one of the largest concerns in the piano-making business, containing the same player found in other player-pianos selling for a hundred and fifteen dollars more, has been priced by us at

$435—In Payments to Suit Your Convenience

1—Web-covered metal tubing, with patented connections which can never leak or become loose.
2—Flexible human-like fingers which play as would those of the human hand.
3—Patented convex brass trackerboard, which compels perfect repetition in playing.
4—The soloist attachment, which enables the performer to subdue the bass notes and emphasize the treble, or vice versa.
5—Improved five-point motor with governor, eliminating friction and giving uniform steadiness in movement of the music roll.
6—Most unique pedal arrangement. A movement of the foot folds the pedals away in the case, and another replaces them ready for use in operating the player.
7—Vertical sliding panel lever, which closes the bottom panel. It is situated under the keyboard.
8—Pneumatic action, which in no way interferes with the piano action, when playing by hand.
9—Piano hammers of the very best quality felt. These hammers possess exclusive features, insuring the very greatest durability.
10—Tone, touch and repetition combine to make the Milton Player-Piano one of the greatest achievements of player-piano making.

A Delightful Exhibition of Cool Rugs for Country Houses

A goodly stretch of the Central Aisle in the Rug Store is given over to fascinating piles of all sorts of Rag Rugs—one of the most remarkable displays in New York. Every possible color-scheme can be matched with these rough Rugs, apparantly woven at haphazard, but wonderfully effective. There are dark blues, greens and slates, pinks, and tans and light blues; weaves that look like the old-fashioned Rag Carpets; Poster Rugs, with gay pictures on each end; soft thick-pile Rugs (called "El Hammam" or "Turkish Bath") that are delightful for bedroom or bathroom. The roster of names is imposing and each rug has its own delightful characteristics. Among them are the "Melrose," "Pilgrim," "Shaiki," "Knickerbocker," "Gretchen" and a dozen others.

Prices range from a little Bureau Rug, 18 x 36 in., at 50c to $1.25, to a room-size Rug, 9 x 12 ft., at from $10 to $27.

On another aisle is stretched a splendid showing of the favorite "Crex" and Waite Rugs, presenting a perfect symphony in green. These are ideal coverings for porch or Summer living room, with their Oriental or floral border or all over designs, in the season's new effects. Besides the standard sizes we have made a special provision of the rugs in the unusual long, narrow sizes which are especially desirable for porches; 4 ft. 6 in. x 10 ft., 6 x 12 ft., and 6 x 15 ft. Also the "Crex" Matting by the yard.

Algerian Matting Rugs are other highly effective Piazza or Bungalow Rugs, in artistic new designs and remarkably enduring in color. From 30 x 60 in., at $2.50, to 9 to 12 ft., at $21, and including a 6 x 12 ft. size, at $14.40, that will be found especially convenient.

We hope you will make it a point to see this unusual exhibit, for we know that you will enjoy it. Sixth floor

IN VIEW OF THE FACT THAT

before the expiration of the limited period for registering applications for the New Encyclopaedia Britannica at the Lowest Prices, Promptness is now more than ever necessary on the part of those who have already received order forms, or who have not yet taken the trouble to make inquiry regarding the new edition.

The Cambridge University Press will, on May 31st, bring to an end the opportunity to subscribe for the new (11th) edition at prices which have never before been possible in the history of this celebrated work.

No more copies of the work will be printed and bound at present than those for which applications shall be registered up to and including the last day of May.

ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

"Every professional man, and every family, with growing children, seeking information, should have this invaluable work in the library"
(From a letter written by a Supreme Court Judge.)

The Eleventh Edition is a completely new, up-to-date work, in 28 quarto volumes and an index comprising 500,000 references, published by the press of

The University of Cambridge, England,

AND ISSUED SIMULTANEOUSLY
In All English-Speaking Countries.

It contains nearly 28,000 pages, 40,000 articles, 41,000,000 words, over 7,000 text-illustrations, 450 full-page plates and 569 maps.

The work has been produced as a whole, not piecemeal.

The sum of human knowledge at the end of the year 1910 (with all the latest results of discovery, research and invention) is recorded and presented in the most accessible form.

The organization and writing of the work occupied nearly eight years, yet every article is up to date.

$1,150,000 was spent for contributions, office expenses, typesetting, maps and plates, &c., before the work was offered for sale.

The articles have been contributed by 1,500 authoritative writers (including 200 Americans) from all civilized Countries—Historians, Archaeologists, Geographers, Ethnographers, Ethnologists, Theologians, Scientists, Philosophers, Economists, Statisticians, Sociologists, Financiers, Bankers, Educationists, Physicians, Surgeons, Engineers, Electrical Experts, Mining Experts, Metallurgists, Agricultural Experts, Industrial Experts, Manufacturers, Inventors, Military and Naval Experts, Shipbuilders, Architects, Builders, Craftsmen, Business and Commercial Experts, Art Critics, Musical Critics, Literary Critics, Lawyers, Biographers, Local Authorities, Authorities on Sports and Games, and many other practical experts.

The new edition is more comprehensive in scope, more cosmopolitan in character, more practical in purpose, more efficient in organization, a more perfect instrument of knowledge than any work of the kind in existence.

No subject of human interest has been ignored or slighted.

The work has been written not by men of one nation for the use of one nation, but by men and women of every civilized country—from Norway to Japan, and from California to New Zealand—for the instruction and pleasure of the intelligent men and women of the entire English-speaking world.

The needs of the practical man have received as much attention as the requirements of the scholar.

Art, romance and recreation have their due place as well as science, religion, and abstruse and technical matters.

More than ever before the work is one to read and enjoy, not merely a work to refer to.

Everything is in it for everybody: It is "all things to all men."

These improvements and developments in scope, character and organization have been accompanied by a revolution in the material form of the work brought about by the adoption of India paper and flexible bindings.

In the India paper edition the typography is clear and attractive, and the volumes are beautiful examples of the bookmaker's art. They are so thin and light that they can be held for reading in one hand, yet they each contain 1,000 pages; and they are so strong that they can be bent back, cover to cover, without injury. The volumes are each only 1 inch thick. The complete set of 29 volumes occupies only 29 inches of space.

Testimony of Subscribers

Over 4,000 subscribers have already had delivery of the early volumes, and many of them have written to the Cambridge University Press letters of appreciation and congratulation on the publication of the new work and its appearance in the convenient new India paper format, each volume being but one inch in thickness. The following phrases extracted from some of these letters are typical of the satisfaction with which the work is regarded by those who already have the volumes in their possession:

"Impossible to improve on these volumes."
"Practically faultless."
"A splendid traveling companion."
"Delighted with both form and substance."
"A superb example of bookmaking."
"The best investment around this house."
"Acme of perfection in bookmaking."
"The best foundation for a library."
"An unprecedented thing."
"Greatly superior to former editions."
"A work in a class by itself."
"The complete success of the new edition."
"Should grace the shelves of every home, office, or public library."
"Most attractive in every way."
"The most complete work I have ever seen."
"A genuine sense of pleasure."
"The price is astonishingly low."
"Indispensable for an educational institution."
"Equal to our highest expectations."
"All that it is represented."
"Fresh, full, and a thing of beauty."
"I am very much delighted."
"Ease in handling and economy of space."
"The improvement is almost indescribable."
"Beauty and lightness of the volumes."
"A great improvement over old editions."
"For every educated home."
"Indispensable to every active intellect."
"An epochal contribution to literature."
"Equally English and American."
"Indispensable to every lawyer."
"Fulfills my ideal."
"Astonished to find all promises fulfilled."
"Independence, impartiality, accuracy."
"Delightful fireside companions."
"The books in their new form are perfection."
"A great comfort."
"Advantages of lightness and small bulk."
"A daily intellectual delight."
"Leaves nothing to be desired."
"So complete and yet so concise."
"A book that it is a joy to possess."
"A tremendous advance."
"Most perfect I have ever seen."
"It is simply indispensable."
"Expectations met in every way."
"A comfortable book to live with."
"The finest proposition that has come to my notice."
"Supersedes all other works in its line."
"The first Encyclopaedia that meets all requirements."
"I have ordered two more sets."
"Prospectus fails to do justice to it."
"Has rendered many libraries superfluous."
"Perfection in bookmaking."
"Little short of marvelous."
"The new victory over space and gravity."
"All that the prospectus claimed."
"Worthy of its high traditions."
"A really marvelous production."
"Typography is excellent."
"So easy to handle."
"Perfection."
"Should be in every home."
"An astonishing advance over the old edition."
"Artistically gotten up."
"It cannot be excelled."
"Elegant and convenient."
"For recreation and pleasure."
"Perfect in every respect."
"Includes 1910 census statistics."
"Now truly international."
"Nothing else to compare with it."
"Stands without a single rival."

The Date—May 31st

It is proper that the thousands of people all over the world who are acquainted with the favorable terms of the offer made in advance of publication should be advised in time of a precise date for its withdrawal. By May 31st the publishers must know the total number of copies that must be printed and bound to fill orders at the lowest price. Applications posted up to that day will be accepted by the Cambridge University Press at the special prices noted below. Applications posted after that day will be accepted only at an advance of at least $10 a set.

A Very Cheap Book—At the Present Price

At the present rate of purchase, $4.00 a volume of a million and a half words ($4.25 a volume on India paper), the new Encyclopaedia Britannica is extraordinarily cheap. A volume contains between seven and eight times as much matter as does the ordinary biography or book of travels sold at $5.00. The accepted scale of book prices, however, does not afford a satisfactory comparison, and the only true criterion in the matter is the price of the 9th edition. This was sold at $7.50 a volume, although each volume contained 100 pages less than do those of the new edition, which may now be purchased (in the same style) at little more than half that price, viz., $4.00. To the former figure, however, of $7.50 (which may be regarded as the normal, the standard, charge) the price of the new edition will eventually be raised.

An Immediate Payment of Only $5.00

The book is now, therefore, at its cheapest, and the present low price may the more easily be afforded owing to the institution of serial payments. $5.00 is the immediate outlay that is required to obtain delivery of the 29 volumes, and, after they have been received, purchase may be completed in monthly payments of the same small amount. Should the subscriber find that it better suits his convenience to complete purchase in a shorter time, he may do so by making 4, 8 or 12 monthly payments, in this case paying only a fraction more than the cash price.

INDIA PAPER and ORDINARY PAPER

The work, in 28 volumes and Index, is in two forms: (1) On India paper (very light and opaque) in Three Styles of Binding: Cloth, Full Flexible Sheepskin, and Full Flexible Morocco, the volumes each One Inch Thick (about 960 to 1,060 pages).

The India paper impression bound in either Full Sheep or Full Morocco is strongly recommended.

(2) On ordinary book-paper in Three Styles of Binding: Cloth, Half Morocco, and Full Morocco, the volumes each 2¾ inches thick (about 960 to 1,060 pages).

Illustrated prospectus (40 pages), 56 specimen pages on India paper, 4 specimen plates and form of application showing the special advance terms, will be sent upon receipt of request.

EVILS SAID TO EXIST AT HART'S ISLAND

State Charities Inspector Foster Says Reformatory Should Be Distant from Branch Workhouse.

LACK OF PROPER TEACHING

Unsatisfactory Site Chosen, He Declares, for Proposed New Set of Buildings—Better System Needed.

Deplorable conditions surround the inmates of the Hart's Island Reformatory, according to James H. Foster, Inspector of the State Board of Charities. Mr. Foster says that while some progress has been made under the administration of Commissioner of Corrections Whitney there is still an urgent need for reforms.

"The Reformatory needs a complete physical separation from the branch workhouse," said Inspector Foster yesterday. "Go to Hart's Island and the striped garb of the convict will confront you, probably on the ferry from City Island, certainly at the landing or about the premises. Groups of workhouse convicts pass to and fro, or are at work within speaking distance of Reformatory inmates. Their presence is in itself a debasing influence. They supply tobacco, forbidden at the Reformatory, to the Reformatory inmates, and slyly speak with, laugh at, and taunt them, not sparing them even at chapel services. It must be remembered that the Reformatory is dependent upon the workhouse for its Catholic Chapel, laundry, and power plant. Workhouse convicts ought to be excluded absolutely from the premises of the reformatory.

"The Reformatory needs suitable school rooms and equipment and more teachers. There are now some 200 pupils, two teachers, assisted by a keeper to preserve order, and inmate monitors to give instruction. There are hardly any textbooks, in fact none in the hands of pupils, excepting readers; no proper wall maps, no pens, pencils, paper—not even slates for writing. Literally there are no writing materials, except blackboards and crayons. Instruction is confined almost exclusively to reading and arithmetic, and in these it is not planned in relation to the work of the industrial departments. This lack of teachers, materials, and equipment and organization tends, of course, to make the work of the school ineffectual. There should be a closer relation between the work of the school and the industrial departments; so that the two may form a real vocation school. Here lies, beyond doubt, one of the greatest of the Reformatory's undeveloped opportunities.

"Altogether the Reformatory is far from perfect. Its present buildings are not designed for its permanent use, but it is likely to be long before they are abandoned. Much can be done to improve the work of the Reformatory, even in its present environment, though it may not be advisable to add much to its plant. It needs additionel officers. The Overseer is now the only responsible officer at the institution. He is general superintendent, school principal, director of the industrial department, disciplinary officer, storekeeper, and what not. He is directly responsible for everything, for every detail beyond the mere routine work of employes. It is more than any man could successfully undertake, and that the work is so well done speaks highly for the energy, industry, and ability of Overseer Moore.

Better Qualified Employes Needed.

"The Reformatory needs employes better qualified and chosen with reference to their fitness for reformatory work. Its keepers are now appointed from the general eligible list of workhouse and penitentiary keepers. There seems to be no good reason why a special civil service grade of reformatory keepers should not be established, based upon special qualifications of character, education and experience. It does not appear that any attempt has been made to improve the service in this way. If the salaries paid are not large enough to secure suitable candidates, they should be increased.

"Plans have been prepared, however, for a new set of buildings to be erected at the northern end of the island. Why so unsatisfactory a site was chosen I do not know, further than that the city already owns the land. The land would be, at best, unsatisfactory on account of the small amount of land available, even if it were possible to turn the whole of it over to the Reformatory. I have been able to find no official statement of the acreage, but estimate that the island contains seventy-five acres or more, of which perhaps one-third is given over to the potter's field, occupying the level land in the central part. It is proposed to leave the southern part of the island, where the Reformatory now is, to the branch workhouse, and to use the high ground at the north, where women prisoners are at present maintained, amounting to some twenty-five or thirty acres, for the new Reformatory. This plan leaves the workhouse more distant, but still undesirably near. There is no room for the two institutions on Hart's Island. There will not be sufficient land for agricultural purposes, any more than is now the case.

"Keeping in order the paths of the potter's field can hardly be considered an agricultural avocation, though it may, perhaps, contribute to the reformation of the first offenders as an object lesson of what they may come to unless they forsake their evil ways. This land can never be available for any other than its present use, for sentimental if for no other reasons. If sentiment is sufficient for this it is surely sufficient to make the field an undesirable neighbor.

Land Area of Other Institutions.

"In regard to the amount of land desirable for a Reformatory site competitive figures are instructive. It is planned to use on Hart's Island some thirty acres for over 400 inmates. The Elmira Reformatory has 280 acres and some 1,500 inmates. The State School of Industry has over 1,400 acres for 600 inmates. The Eastern New York Reformatory, at Napanoch, has 272 acres for 450 inmates.

"The new plans call for a single congregate building to accommodate over 400 prisoners. It is true that each inmate will occupy a room seven feet by eleven, with toilet, lavatory, table, stool, and bed. But the general plan is for a prison institution. It is an improvement over the present dormitories for over sixty inmates each.

"But this improvement seems to be rather from the viewpoint of ease of administration than in the interest of the inmates. There is no provision for any real classification of inmates according to mental and moral standards. All are to be thrown together in a common building, under common rules and regulations, in daily contact and association. The plan effectually defeats the real success of any attempt that may be made to divide the population into such groups as are evidently necessary if the purposes of the institution are actually to be attained.

"These objections to the proposed institution are insuperable. As planned it cannot be other than a disappointment to those interested in its welfare. I am informed by Commissioner Whitney that the possibility of securing any other site has not been considered, and no plans of another type have been submitted.

"I believe that the Reformatory must be essentially a school, and that its inmates need education rather than punishment. I do not decry discipline, strict and stern, even severe, but it must be a means, not an end. The education needed is not all to be found in books, nor in industrial training, though that side of it should be, as it is now, of at least equal importance with the book school. The work of the Reformatory should be not only to train the mind and hand by school and industrial instruction and practice, but to awaken in each inmate every possible good impulse, to develop, not to destroy, his individuality and self-respect; to set him right toward himself and toward the State, and to send him out, not only willing, but anxious to make his honest way in the world, not because he fears further punishment, but because he knows that he owes a duty to himself and to society. This may be called visionary and impracticable; complete success may seldom be attained, but it is at least worth trying for.

WOULD STUDY CITY NEEDS.

Dr. Allen Favors a Clearing House to Decide What Is Most Necessary.

Dr. William H. Allen, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research and Chairman of the Committee on Municipal Needs of the New York City Conference of Charities and Correction, says that one of the greatest needs of New York City just now is for a central clearing house to pass upon the truth about municipal needs.

"There is no organization in New York City whose business it is to welcome information about work that should be done," says Dr. Allen. "No one now feels free to tell the truth about private giving. We must stop applauding philanthropists for spending money in ways that manufacture social problems, obstruct progress, and hamper both public and private philanthropy in meeting social needs. Until the truth is told it will be impossible to establish standards of private giving.

"Giving is thus far organized on the principle that to him who hath shall be given, rather than to him that needeth shall be given in proportion to his needs. As evidence of this witness the difficulty of securing interest in rapidly growing districts in the Bronx, Queens, and Brooklyn, the millions that go to Columbia and other Manhattan colleges, and the neglect of Brooklyn needs for higher education, and the surpluses of some general hospitals, while no money is available for dental clinics, children's clinics, &c.

"But, towering above all others, is the need for knowledge of the municipality's principal needs not yet provided for. Before meeting its needs a municipality must picture them. Of the total municipal needs the greater part should be met by municipal government through taxes and other revenues, but a considerable part must now, and probably forever, depend upon private philanthropy.

"No one knows how much of the job in New York should be done by government and how much by private philanthropy, and no one is trying to find out. The need for private philanthropy in meeting municipal needs is measured by two factors. The first is the difference between what government is expected to do and what it gets done for meeting those needs.

"The second consists of the other municipal needs, such as material relief in homes, placing out of children, certain forms of rescue work, settlement work, religious instruction, &c., which public opinion by ruling majority at present believes should be undertaken through private, not governmental, agencies.

"The whole of private philanthropy's share in meeting municipal needs can never be approximately determined until after social workers and officials have first determined approximately which of the community's services should be organized through municipal departments. One hour of attention to government's responsibility for meeting municipal needs between now and June 15, or during the budget discussions of next October, is worth a year of protest after the budget for 1912 is voted.

"With respect to particular municipal needs it is oftimes true that the element lacking is not money for salaries or supplies, but lack of executive ability on the part of the administrative head, lack of efficiency on the part of his subordinates, and lack of information on the part of the Mayor, Controller, press, and public."

ROCHEFOUCAULD MSS.

Several In Existence, but None In the Handwriting of the Author.

It is one of the curiosities of literature that while seven contemporary manuscripts exist of the famous "Memoirs" of François de La Rochefoucauld, none in his handwriting has ever been found. He is known as the greatest maxim writer of France, one of her best memoir writers, and, perhaps, the most complete and accomplished representative of her ancient nobility. No man's writings, according to Voltaire, did more to mold the taste of a nation. He was born in Paris three years before Shakespeare died.

Two of these contemporary manuscripts of the "Memoirs" will be sold at Sotheby's in London this week. They were in the possession of the late Prof. W. A Coppinger, and, at one time, it was thought that the corrections in one of these examples were in the hand of the author himself, but scientific literary research now ascribes the manuscript alterations to Robert Arnauld d'Andilly, the eldest son of Antoine Arnauld, who was Advocate General under Catherine de Medici and Councilor of State under Henry IV.

At the close of twenty years' fighting and intriguing La Rochefoucauld was shot through the head at the battle of the Faubourg Saint Antoine in 1652, and it was feared that he would lose the sight of both eyes. It was nearly a year before he recovered. He then lived for some years in retirement at his country seat of Venteuil. He returned to Court only after Mazarin's death, having spent his solitude in writing his memoirs.

In 1662 the Elzevirs surreptitiously published these memoirs, or what purported to be such. He hastened to deny flatly their authenticity, but his denial was not generally accepted. Three years later he published, though without his name, his still more famous "Maximes." The history of the "Memoirs" is said to be unique in its strangeness. The pirated edition, which appeared in Holland, despite the author's protest, continued to be reprinted for thirty years. It has been proved to be the work of half a dozen men, scarcely a third of it being La Rochefoucauld's. Some years after his death a new recension appeared, but still largely adulterated. It was not until 1817 that anything like a genuine edition appeared, and even that is not perfect.

One of the Coppinger manuscripts is written on 396 quarto pages. It contains the whole of the memoirs, beginning in 1626. Only one other manuscript now known to exist contains this first part. The other Coppinger manuscript is written on 214 small folio pages. It begins in 1649, as do four others of the seven known manuscripts. This is the only one with the supposed Arnauld d'Andilly corrections of style.

LETTERS FROM WHISTLER.

Written to His Famous Pupil, Greaves, and Never Published.

Eight unpublished holograph letters written by James A. McNeill Whistler, most of them to Walter Greaves, his pupil, whose work has recently made him famous, will be sold at Anderson's on May 25. These letters show Whistler's dislike of any adaptation of his own ideas, even by his pupils. Walter Greaves was a favorite of his. One of Whistler's most admired etchings is a portrait of Kitty Greaves. In one of the letters Whistler says:

> The doctor (presumably Seymour Haden) mentioned accidentally that you spoke of painting a blue picture of your sister, Mrs. Ranger. Now, my dear boy, just reflect for a minute and don't let my own pet pupil unconsciously do what he would be indignant if another were to attempt, for you know my picture of little Miss Leyland in blue cashmere and velvet—in short, the arrangement in blue—you know how jolly it is, and of course I shall paint it directly I have time. Of cource I know it is quite natural that you and Harry should see nature as I have made her known to you.

In another letter, written from Speke Hall, near Liverpool, he says:

> I have two large canvasses under way—the plan of my new pictures is very pleasing, and when the work itself is further advanced, I shall write you more about it. You have heard about the way my pictures are hung. They are in the imposing company of a grand Velasquez, and it is saying a great deal when I am able not to feel ashamed of them.

In another letter, from the same place, he says:

> I have been for a few days at the seaside—the sea I thought I would go and look at—as a sort of change, not only for me but for my pallette also, as I hoped to be able to find some grand greys and great masses of waves, that I might spread over a couple of small canvasses with the true waterman's jerk. However, it all fell through, for the weather was simply blank—the sky I never saw it so striped, and the sea, it was nowhere at all—it had simply gone off altogether.

In a letter to Greaves's father, about the non-payment of a loan, Whistler says:

> I have been the victim of an awful attack of dejection and "the blues." Ever since that Peacock Room, I have had no luck, and am really for the time ruined by it.

GAME OF POLO IS CENTURIES OLD

Cradled in Persia, Sport Finally Became Pastime of Indian Princes.

As in the case of some other games, the origin of polo is shrouded in the misty realms of antiquity. All that is known is that polo was cradled in Persia, and afer flourishing there for many centuries its popularity was gradually extended to Constantinople under the Byzantine dynasty, while it was finally imported into the Orient as a pastime of Indian princes.

It is, indeed, only in the history of the East that it is possible to trace its progress, until early in the eighteenth century it was driven into the remote fastness of Thibet, where, supported by the wild tribes of the frontier, it lingered for years until discovered by the indigo planters of Bengal. To the planters, then, we owe the revival of an ancient game, for it was adopted by them just before the mutiny, and gradually spread to the cavalry regiments stationed in India.

Polo was not imported into England as a ready-made game. Its introduction is credited to the Tenth Hussars, who, inspired by a chance paragraph in our paper, says the London Field, recording a match in India, sallied forth with a billiard ball, and, armed with hockey sticks, entered upon a mêlée of nine a side, which could have little resemblance to the scientific game as we now know it. Nevertheless this trial was sufficient to present its possibilities, and, aided by the Ninth Lancers, the dawn of modern polo was spread over this land.

In 1874 polo was first played in London, at Hurlingham, a club the name of which has since become familiar wherever the game is played, and whose rules have been adopted practically throughout the world, a few variations existing in India and America. It is, indeed, due to the influence of Hurlingham and to its judicious treatment that polo has been raised to its present almost perfect condition.

It is hard to realize that modern polo is so young and that a large number of those who lent assistance to its establishment are happily spared to witness the birth of the present season.

Capt. Herbert and his brother, who founded the first club in Great Britain, that of Monmouthshire, have had no little share in the game's progress, and the present Chairman of the Hurlingham Polo Committee, Lord Valentia, was one of those who came forth with a billiard ball to play the first game on Cove Common.

At first the game was played five on a side, and the players were mounted on small ponies capable of being turned and twisted with marvelous celerity. It is said by some that at the commencement the back-handed stroke was not known, and that to John Watson the game owes the origin of the "back-hander." Be this as it may, it is quite certain that it was not in common practice in the early seventies, and it is probable that its adoption gave occasion for larger ponies, since it became no longer necessary to hunt the ball in minute circles.

Polo was not taken too seriously at first. It was regarded more in the light of a novelty without power to win permanent approval. It partook of a lighter shade of importance in the sportsman's calendar, and one of the earliest games at Ranelagh was played in carnival by electric light, then one of the wonders of the world.

This game was played before the Prince of Wales, (King Edward VII.,) and his royal patronage appears to have stamped polo with fashionable approval. Gradually emerging from the chrysalis stage, the game improved in science, law, and order, and a champion cup was for the first time played for, the scene being Hurlingham, and the date 1877.

Gracious words have been spoken by King George in expression of his good wishes toward the British team now in America, words which may be regarded as suggesting that once again polo may become the pastime of princes. His Majesty takes the kindliest interest in the welfare of the game, and approves it, as did kings of yore, as a fine, manly exercise well suited to the training of men and the recreation of a sport-loving people. Intelligence, energy, and activity are the game's chief attributes, and when these are combined with the art of horsemanship it will be admitted that polo is eminently suited to a country which has long led the world in the breeding and development of the horse.

It is true that at the moment the polo premier challenge trophy, so long resting at Hurlingham, is in the possession of America; but the Anglo-Saxon race shares a very friendly rivalry, in which no rankling enmity mars the interest of international contest. Within a few weeks the battle for the International Cup will recommence, for a British team, under the leadership of Capt. Hardress Lloyd, is at present preparing for the contest in America.

Capt. Lloyd has gathered to his assistance the best material available. Soldiers all, they have been selected entirely from the ranks of those well used to the fast grounds of India and Africa, and experience more suited to meet the altered conditions under which the game will be played than those whose knowledge extends no further than the dull, dead grounds of English turf, which even under the most favorable circumstances slow the pace and rob the game of much of its exhilaration. This country will be ably represented in the forthcoming contest, but overconfidence is an error to be avoided, and none who witnessed the international matches played at Hurlingham in 1909 can be blind to the merits of the American team which was led by H. Payne Whitney.

The Americans have far greater command over the ball than their English rivals, and can make a practical certainty of hitting it even at most difficult angles, and they are far more adept at meeting the ball in its course, an art which has hitherto been sternly discountenanced in the practice of English polo.

Against this, they are not to be compared as horsemen with the team which Capt. Lloyd has marshaled, and their defense is such that it is possible tactics may be evolved to circumvent it, since sole reliance is placed in an unsupported "defense." Whatever the results may be, it is quite certain that the British team will evoke the same admiration in America as was won by the Americans in this land for chivalrous and sportsmanlike conduct.

Intercollegiate Balloon Race.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., May 21.—The first intercollegiate balloon race in the history of aeronautics will be held at North Adams on Saturday, June 3. Three colleges—University of Pennsylvania, Williams, and Dartmouth—have already forwarded their entries, while several others are expected to compete. A silver cup, given by Clifford Black and Howard Scholle, two New York alumni of Williams College, will be offered for the balloon covering the longest distance, while a second cup will be given for the longest time in the air. In addition five other cups are open for competition through the courtesy of the Aero Club of New England.

ASTLEY'S LUCKY ESCAPE.

British Aviator Shows Remarkable Control of Aeroplane.

A recent incident at the aviation meet near London demonstrates the striking value of the strapping-in-belt and proves that a machine can do extraordinary things in the air so long as nothing breaks and yet land safely.

Recently at Brooklands H. J. D. Astley, when descending, at some 300 feet in his Blériot, was caught by a gust and heeled over onto his left wing tip. He switched off his engine to remove the propeller torque and let the machine dive so as to get her back on an even keel. Accidentally he switched on when the machine was diving, and the sudden jerk of the big engine slung him out of his seat, so that when he collected himself he found himself sitting on the fuselage, hanging on to the top rails with both hands. His weight forced the tail down, and at about 100 feet from the ground the machine shot upward for another 200 feet. Astley managed to claw himself forward and get hold of the control with one hand, so that he could work the elevator and wing warping, but could not reach the rudder lever with his feet.

Shoving the cloche hard forward and hanging on to the frame with his other hand, he got the tail up and made a vertical dive of 200 feet with the engine running all out. Then he let go with one hand and switched off, at the same time dropping the tail of the machine so that he settled nearly flat and then gently stood on her head, decanting Astley into the mud absolutely unhurt.

After that who will believe that any aviator who knows how to control his machine can be killed by any gust capsizing him in the air, unless the machine itself goes wrong?

MANY FLY AT MINEOLA.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 21.—Several thousand people were at the aviation field here this afternoon to witness the flights by the different aviators who are in the hangars here. St. Croix Johnstone gave another thrilling exhibition of high flying, going over one thousand feet and circling the different adjacent towns before coming down with one long glide, like the swoop of some great bird. During Johnstone's flight, the wind was blowing at a good clip, but this did not deter the young aviator from giving the crowd a number of thrills by his high flying. This morning he also made a flight of twenty minutes in the same machine.

George Schmitt of Rutland, Vt., in a Curtiss machine, gave a good flight, the Eldrege motor shoving the big biplane around for a number of fast laps. Ray Hammonton, in Capt. Baldwin's biplane, also made a number of good flights, as he is a pupil of the Captain's, andhandled the machine with all the skill of his teacher. Joseph Downey flew for a time in a Bleriot and was followed by Joseph Stevenson in a Curtis machine.

Andre Haupert, in the Moisant-Bleriot, also made a good flight, circling above the crowd for a number of rounds of the field. Louis Raymond, in a freak machine, with the engine in the rear, only one front control and no rear control, excited considerable interest as he ran his machine across the field. The young man did not attempt to ride, but just ran across the field.

Earle L. Ovington flew from Belmont Park and made several dips in his Bleriot, leading the crowd to think he was going to land, but he rose again and returned to the Park, being in the air 45 minutes; his baragraph showed 2,400 feet elevation.

LOCAL ATHLETES ACTIVE.

Irish-American Sports Decoration Day Keeping Them on the Move.

In anticipation of the Decoration Day games of the Irish-American Athletic Club in Celtic Park, metropolitan track and field performers are being kept on the jump by the various coaches hereabout. The list of events scheduled caters to almost every phase of the athletic game, and many champions, both club and collegiate, have signified their intention of taking a whirl at their favorite game in a try for the valuable prizes.

Outside of the 125-yard run, 100-yard novice, and the two-mile steeplechase all of the events carded are of a handicap nature, giving all an even chance to get into the trophy division. The events embrace running, hurdling, steeplechasing, bicycle riding, relay racing, jumping, discus throwing, shot putting, and hammer throwing.

The 125-yard invitation gives promise of being the medium whereby Father Time will be given occasion for a revision of his figures at this distance. With such fliers as Tex Ramsdell, Bobby Cloughan, Gwyn Henry, Jim Rosenberger, and men of like calibre already nominated, it almost goes without saying that a foot race will be the result, which will be worth a journey to witness.

By the time the games roll around Martin Sheridan will in all likelihood have arrived at that form which will warrant his getting the discus out in the neighborhood of 150 feet, which Martin thinks within his ability under perfect conditions. His most recent work gives promise of at least a rearrangement of the figures in this event, as he asserts that he is training as never before. Grath will make his appearanc hammer throw, and George Bon attempt to get inside the best m two miles.

Do You Like to Have An Umbrella Held Over You

In—say—A Drenching Downpour When 'Most Everyone is Without One?

¶ On the radiator of every Abbott-Detroit CAR is our name-plate in the shape of a small metal umbrella. It's only outlined and the ribs and handle have to be imagined. But it is the foundation stone on which we have built the Abbott-Detroit success. It stands for the protective policy originated and maintained by us, and extended to every Abbott-Detroit owner for as long as he owns the car.

¶ Just as tires or a motor go with our every car, so a written guarantee goes with it. Stripped of its legal verbiage, the guarantee assures you that we will keep your car—for as long as it is your car—in perfect running order.

¶ As a matter of fact, this is not so formidable as it sounds. Most people buy an Abbott-Detroit, run it a few years and then turn it in and buy a newer Abbott-Detroit. But if you choose to run yours for ten years—and with ordinary care this is of course perfectly possible with one of our cars—this guarantee "goes." We think that is how the current phrase arose:

"An Abbott Owner Is a Satisfied Owner"

MR. BUSINESS MAN!

A power wagon properly constructed should run efficiently and economically year after year, until it has earned its cost many times over.

All Grabowsky cars are built under the personal supervision of Max H. Grabowsky and his large staff of experts, who collectively know more about power wagon construction than any similar group in the world.

There are many different makes on the market—but the properly constructed trucks are few—hence, you should give the matter exact investigation—should see that the essential points are incorporated in the construction before deciding definitely.

We wish to impress on you the strong points of mechanical excellence The Grabowsky possesses—the construction of which is the acme of accessibility. Economy—Reliability—Durability.

SEE! INSPECT! and COMPARE!

The Grabowsky, the world's only car with a quickly accessible Power Plant that is actually removable—thus efficiency is quadrupled.

Investigate—The Grabowsky, the world's only car in which all working connections are protected with Hardened Steel Bushings—to replace the entire 38 connections (when worn from normal use) costs only $6.50. Other cars necessitate replacements of whole parts or sections—costing $300 to $600.

Investigate—The Grabowsky, the world's only car with a positive mechanical oiling system—by which the oil automatically refines itself and is used over and over again.

These and other Grabowsky features which are absolutely essential in a car that will prove commercially practical guarantee The Grabowsky to last longer, give treble the service, and cost less for upkeep than any other car, and have stamped it the masterpiece of commercial car construction.

WE COURT COMPARISON!

We earnestly urge you to critically analyze The Grabowsky and other makes, point by point.

Ninety-nine per cent. of our patrons are business men who have compared every make with our product.

That is why we court comparison.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 21.—Two mighty hits by Criss and Meloan won the last game of the New York series for St. Louis to-day by a score of 5 to 4. Meloan ended the game in the tenth inning with a home-run drive over the right field fence. Criss's hit was a long triple to the centre field wall in the seventh, sending two men in. The Browns tied the score in this round, Criss tallying the fourth run on Shotton's roller, which was fumbled by Johnson.

The Yanks scored four runs off George in seven innings. Criss batted for George when he tore off the triple that practically tied the game for St. Louis. Mitchell finished the game for St. Louis and pitched fine ball. Sweeney batted for Fisher, the New York pitcher, in the ninth. Caldwell twirled the last two innings for the Yankees. He was on the mound when Meloan cracked the ball over the fence.

The Yankees outhit the Browns, getting twelve bingles, while St. Louis reached Fisher and Caldwell for ten safe hits. The Browns made two miscues. Shotton allowed a drive from Gardner's bat to go through his legs in the sixth, the runner taking third. This break was not costly, but Laporte's error in the fifth helped New York score a run. Johnson made the two errors charged up to New York. One of his bobbles, a fumble in the seventh, enabled Hoffman, who was running for Criss, to score the tieing run.

New York inaugurated the run-getting in the third inning. Fisher doubled to centre field, and breezed home on Daniels's liner to left field for two bags. Wolter laid down a bunt, shoving Daniels to third. Hartzell bounced a single off George's shins, scoring Daniels. Cree ended the round with a hot shot to third, Austin getting his man at first.

It looked as if the Yankees were out to score more runs in the fourth, when Knight started the inning with a single to centre field, but Wallace grabbed Gardner's hopper and started a double play, Myers handling the other end of the defense. In the fifth inning Blair singled to centre field. Fisher hit toward third. Austin Got it, but Laporte juggled the throw, and all hands were safe. Daniels sacrificed the runners along, and Wolter singled to left, scoring Blair. Wolter reached second when Hogan foolishly tossed the ball to the plate. Hartzell lined to Myers, and Wolter was doubled up off second base.

The seventh was productive of big events on both sides. Fisher tried to sacrifice, but George threw out Blair at second. Daniels beat out an infield tap, and Hartzell was hit by a pitched ball. Cree bounced a single, and Fisher scored. Laporte picked up the ball, and threw out Daniels at the plate.

New York got a man to third in the first half of the ninth inning. It was up to Wolter to split the wood for New York. He took a good swing, and sent Shotton to deep centre for a great catch.

Cleveland Makes It Four Straight.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 21.—Cleveland made it four straight from Washington to-day, 8 to 1. Gregg was a mystery all through the game, while Hughes was hit hard, with men on bases. Elberfeld injured a knee and retired in the eighth. Score:

Motor Boat Race at Clason Point.

With the entries of many of the best power boats in this section, the ten-mile handicap motorboat race, which will be held at Clason Point, Westchester, Decoration Day, gives indication of being a well contested event. Time trials of one lap will be held at 10 A. M., with the finals at 2 P. M. The race will be decided over a two-mile triangular course. Seventeen silver cups will be awarded to the first seventeen to finish the course and three similar trophies will be awarded to the three clubs scoring the lowest number of points. Entries close on May 28, with C. F. Quinn, Clason Point, Westchester, and H. W. Berdle, [illegible] Kelly Street, Bronx.

Rochester Blanks Newark in an Exciting Contest.

The Newark Eastern Leaguers jumped home from Buffalo yesterday for a game with the champion Rochesters, and were beaten 3 to 0. "Iron Man" McGinnity pitched his first full game since the injury to his arm received while cranking his automobile in the Spring. The "Iron Man" allowed six hits. A pass, a couple of errors, a scratch hit, and a triple accounted for the runs.

The Rochesters broke into the run column in the fourth, when Foster was passed. Batch sacrificed and Osborn tripled. Browne raced in nearly to first base after Ward's fly, but could not reach it, and Osborn scored. Aglef could have got the ball hardly without moving. The visitors got another run in the fifth on errors by Frick and Nee. The score:

Trotting Races at Guttenberg.

The American Trotting Association has completed arrangements for its meeting to be held Decoration Day at the Guttenberg race course. The occasion will probably be marked by the attendance of many old-timers, who remember the Guttenberg track at the height of its fame twenty years ago. Following is the list of events, as scheduled in the opening announcement of the association: 2:10 Class.—Trotters and pacers; one-half mile; best two out of three heats; purse, $50. 2:20 Class.—Trotters and pacers; one mile; best two out of three; purse, $50. 2:30 Class.—Trotters and pacers; one-half mile; best two out of three; purse, $50. Class A.—Free-for-all, trotters and pacers; best two out of three; ribbon. Class B.—Free-for-all, trotters and pacers; best two out of three; ribbon. Class C.—Special race for road carriages, lady drivers; ribbons.

FIRST DEFEAT FOR MEADOW BROOK TEAM

That even the best polo players have their bad as well as good days while in training was demonstrated yesterday to a small but intensely interested company of experts, who were treated to the most indifferent practice trial that the Meadow Brook defenders of the International Cup have ever taken part in.

For the first time since their remarkable series of twenty-one practice games it became necessary to register a blot on the Meadow Brook escutcheon, and mark them down as losing a five-period trial that hardly deserves a place on the records.

In opposition were players whose tactics the Meadow Brooks are thoroughly familiar with—C. C. Rumsey, J. A. Alexander, Foxhall P. Keene, and H. C. Phipps—who managed to beat them by 7 goals to 6. This quartet is nothing like as strong by reputation as the mixed team, comprising Stoddard, La Montagne, Keene, and Agassiz, which they trounced to the tune of 15 goals to ½ on the international field Friday.

The defeat of the famous "light blues" cannot be laid to the slight accident which their Captain, Harry Payne Whitney, met with three days ago. The usual discoloration of the skin is there to be plainly seen, but an ordinary "black eye" is a small matter, and Whitney does not in play appear to remember that he is carrying one. The failure of the Meadow Brook artists yesterday should rather be charged against L. Waterbury's indifferent form, and lack of team work on the part of the brothers Waterbury. Lawrence was unquestionably "off edge," his plunges into the mêlées lacked vigor, and only toward the close of the game did he show a glimpse of his speed and dexterity.

The "light blue" team was, however, badly handicapped through the absence of Devereaux Milburn, the "back." James A. Burden essayed to keep the Meadow Brook goal safe, and to knock in at ends whenever the ball ran over the line. His "direction" was repeatedly astray, and the Whitney team had to go far, far back in order to pick up and carry the ball on.

After the registry of Whitney's well earned goal and another one for "Larry" Waterbury in the opening period, and a quicker successful flurry by the latter to open the second chukker, it looked as though the team was trying how certain new placings could be manipulated out of their grasp by Rumsey and Keene, for the former twice got by Burden with ease and Keene's drive and carry to goal put the impromptu "back" out of commission.

They went to it with greater zest in the third chukker and kept up such a head of steam that not a single goal was approached for eight and a half minutes. On galloping again the member of the Phipps family at "back" came way forward and was actually permitted to break down the Waterbury combination in one minute and again after the ball had been kept in fairly good play for four minutes.

Meadow Brook stock took a drop all around J. S. Phipps' private polo field, when the score was six to three in favor of their opponents. Then Foxhall Keene put a full swing into his mallet and sent the ball homeward for keeps, inside of thirty seconds.

On resuming for the fifth chukker, Larry Waterbury awoke to a realization of the situation, and at once there flashed forth that invincible combination, which has for so many seasons marked the Waterbury brothers' play. Three goals were secured in succession, the first and second inside of two minutes each, and the last, which wound up this peculiar trial, in exactly sixty seconds.

To-day the Englishmen take their initial dip on the international ground at Meadow Brook and Tuesday the cup defenders try another bout with fresh opposing material on Mr. Phipps' field. Score and line-up:

KRAMER DEFEATS CLARKE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., May 21.—Riding in his old time form, Frank L. Kramer, the National cycle champion, took two races here to-day at the Velodrome bicycle track from Jackie Clarke in easy fashion. In the team match race Kramer beat Clarke in two straight 3-mile heats. In the first heat the champion crossed the tape about 25 yards ahead of the Australian rider, and in the second, Clarke, aided by his team mate, Floyd MacFarland, made a little better showing, but Kramer beat him out by a few wheel lengths.

In each case Kramer's final sprint to the tape did the trick. Willie Fenn, the champion's former mate, was Kramer's partner in the race. Kramer practically repeated the dose to Clarke in the two-mile professional invitation event. Clarke seemed to be in poor form. The summary:

Half-Mile, Novice.—Won by Herman Brooks, Passaic; R. G. Westervelt, Richmond Hill, second. Time—1:05 1-5.

Two-third-Mile, Handicap, Professional.—Won by Alfred Goullett, Australia, (45 yards;) Eddie F. Root, Boston, (30 yards,) second; Fred Hill, Boston, (40 yards,) third. Time—1:19.

Team Match Race, Professional; Best Two Out of Three Mile Heats; Between Frank L. Kramer, East Orange, and William Fenn vs. A. J. Clarke, Australia, and Floyd MacFarland, San Jose, Cal.—First Heat—Won by Kramer and Fenn. Time—3:05 1-5. Second Heat—Won by Kramer and Fenn. Time—3:00.

Half-Mile, Handicap, Amateur.—Won by Jerome Steinert, Hicksville, L. I., (10 yards;) John Becht, Brooklyn, (65 yards,) second; Adam Boerman, Mohawk A. C., (40 yards,) third. Time—0:57 2-5.

Two-Mile, Invitation, Class B, Professional.—Won by John Bedell, Newark; Norman Anderson, Denmark, second; Ernest Jokus, Newark, third. Time—4:35 4-5.

HART IN RIDING FORM.

Motor Cyclist Carried Off the Honors at Guttenberg Track.

Frank Hart, who recently joined the Indian racing squad as a trade rider, provided the 1,500 spectators at the mourday, May 27, and continue until the end of in North Bergen yesterday with contests of the sensational order. He won two events and in another after taking a spill at the start he remounted his machine and chased the field only to be compelled to retire, as he was on the verge of overhauling it with a punctured tire. He won a ten-mile race in 10:09 3-5, and two of his laps were covered in 59 2-5 and 59 3-5 seconds each. The former equals the automobile record for the track made by Ralph De Palma in a Simplex 90 horse power.

Aside from Hart's performance the feature of the meet was the riding of Charles Balke, the Los Angeles professional, who also had two wins to his credit. The professional events were spoiled by the non-appearance of A. G. Chapple in one race and his trouble with his machine in the half-hour race. The summaries:

Five-Mile, Private Owners.—Won by F. R. Vanderpoel, (Indian, 7;) R. Butler, (Indian, 7,) second; J. Fredericks, (Merkel, 6,) third. Time—5:45 1-5.

Ten-Mile, Trade Riders.—Won by Frank Hart, (Indian, 7;) William Teubner, (Merkel, 6,) second; M. Costello, (Pengeot,) third. Time—10:09 3-5.

Five-Mile Professional.—Won by Charles Balke, (Indian, 7;) Lou Guterman, (Indian, 7,) second. Time—5:27 3-5.

Twenty-Mile, Trade Riders.—Won by William Teubner, (Merkel, 6;) Ferd. Mercier, (Indian, 7,) second; John Cox, (Reading Standard, 6,) third. Time—20:38.

Half-Hour Race, Professional.—Won by Charles Balke, (Indian, 7,) 28 miles; Lou Guterman, (Indian, 7,) 28 miles, second. Trade Riders.—Won by Frank Hart, (Indian, 7,) 28 miles; John Cox, (Reading-Standard, 6,) 28 miles, second; J. U. Constant, (Indian, 5,) 25 miles, third.

Speed and Safety At Night

Bob Burmam, World's Speed King, Sets New Record for Night Travel

Driving a National stock car, equipped with the Remy Magneto Light, Bob Burman, the world's Speed King, travelled the fastest night mile on record on the Long Island Motor Parkway, Thursday night.

"Perfect electric lights, perfect ignition from the same system. It's wonderful," was the comment of "King Bob," as he climbed down from the National stock car champion after speeding over the Parkway at the average speed of 81 miles per hour at night with the

Remy Magneto Light

(Electric Light AND Dual Ignition)

An inexhaustible source of current for all Lamps and all other electrical devices on the automobile.

Better Ignition, hottest spark at All speeds, never misses fire, AND the convenience, safety and lighting at lower cost.

A permanent supply of electric current, supplanting all make-shift devices. Self-charging; automatic.

Nothing to do but press a button after original installation. Can be installed easily and quickly. Interchangeable with practically any magneto now in use.

Burman's flight is only another evidence of the fact that every car should be equipped with our new combined electric lighting and ignition system. Its reliability and lasting efficiency have been shown under severest conditions of moroting.

Get It On New Car

If you insist you will probably get Remy Magneto Light without additional cost. Makers of higher-priced cars will furnish this equipment. It means a better car, more service to the buyer, a happier customer.

Equip Your Car Now

Let us install the Remy Magneto upon your car NOW. When the advantages, the efficiency of this system are realized, no other equipment will begin to satisfy you. We can install it quickly and at a reasonable cost.

REMY RECORD Bob Burman, the World's Speed King, eclipsed all existing speed records in the "Blitzen" Benz, equipped with a Remy Magneto, travelling at a pace of 141.83 miles per hour. Remy stands for endurance, reliability, constant service.

REMY SERVICE Users of Remy equipment are given an unequalled service. Remy branches, travelling experts, reach everywhere. It will please YOU as it is pleasing hundreds of thousands of users of Remy devices now. Telephone, visit or write our New York office.

The LOZIER in New York

The first LOZIER Cars were built seven years ago to meet the requirements of New Yorkers who sought an American car to meet the high standards then found only in the foreign automobile. Although the reputation of the LOZIER has since extended throughout the world, it is still a car peculiarly suited to New Yorkers.

The LOZIER is made for those who can afford and who demand the best. It appeals to the man who possesses not merely wealth, but discernment. It is high-priced, but legitimately so, and particular people demand it.

When you see a LOZIER Car, you may know that it is owned by a person accustomed to the best—a man of affairs, a man whose keen judgment has won him the success that enables him to possess the luxuries and comforts of life.

You are invited to visit our Eastern branch and inspect the 1912 Models—six cylinders and four—now being delivered.

THE MAYOR AND THE POLICE.

The Mayor has not had good luck in his dealings with the police. He has been very earnest, very active, and on the whole not successful. The main trouble, we think, has been due to two causes—the insecure tenure of the Commissioner and the interference the various Commissioners have encountered, partly from the Mayor himself. The men in the department who run the "system" have made much of these two causes, confident that, since they are practically safe for life themselves, they can sooner or later "do" a Commissioner who is not safe for a month and not free while he is in office.

It may seem to his Honor a counsel of perfection, or it may seem to him impertinent, but we venture to suggest to him that he can, if he will, in some degree do away with the causes of trouble and get results that will lead, in time, to a radical and lasting improvement. Let him select the best man he can get for Commissioner, promise him that he shall have a free hand and shall serve out the Mayor's term, and that every effort will be made by the Mayor to get a law providing for a long term and secure tenure. Such a Commissioner would be able to meet the men who run the "system," not on entire equality, but with far better chances than any Commissioner yet has had. And when the Mayor's term is ended Mr. GAYNOR would have to his credit a great public service.

A FAIR CHALLENGE.

The House of Representatives, before it will consent to a recess from June to September, asks the Senate to vote on the measures of importance which the Democratic majority have sent, or shall soon send, over. It is a reasonable request.

The chief of these measures is that giving effect to the reciprocity agreement with Canada. Then next in importance is the enlargement of the free list, with especial regard to lowering the cost of living and that of the materials of industry. By the 1st of June the House expects to send over the bill for reducing duties on wool and on woolens. These are substantive measures. The first is, of course, capital. Its consideration is the object of the extraordinary session. The House acted on it, not in haste or without adequate discussion, but promptly, wisely, and in an admirable spirit of patriotism. There were plenty of chances for "playing politics" with it; the Republican leaders took them all; the Democratic leaders would have none of them. They took the course the President approved; they took the very bill drawn under his guidance by a Republican Representative in the last session, and they passed it without the change of a word. The Republicans tried to confuse the issue with a score of tricky amendments, offered in bad faith, which they would not vote for, but by which they hoped to divide the Democrats. Some of them were ingenious and may make trouble for the Democrats in the next campaign, but the Democrats voted them down, every one of them, and sent to the Senate an admirable, effective, loyal reciprocity bill, directed solely to the best interests of the whole country. It was a bid for popularity, undoubtedly, but it was a bid for well-founded confidence in the sober and manly conduct of their party.

In the same spirit, dealing in an open and courageous fashion with the one great issue before the country, the Democratic majority proceeded to take up the most essential features of the tariff. They have worked out a general plan as to these, which is not sweeping or disturbing, but which is in accord with the principles and purposes of the party. They have labored at this plan diligently and with marked intelligence. They have a reasonable claim that before adjournment the Senate shall vote, one way or the other, upon the plan. So far, the Senate has done nothing. It has willfully dawdled away the time, meeting only a couple of times a week, and then usually quarreling over the internal differences in the majority. The Democratic House has fulfilled the function of an earnest, practical, orderly, and responsible legislative body, and the Republican Senate has fallen far short of any such conduct. Now the leaders of the latter would like to abandon their posts altogether for the Summer, and leave up in the air the business for which they were called. We trust that the Democrats will insist upon action, upon the reciprocity legislation at least. That much the country is entitled to. The Democrats control the situation in that regard, for there can be no recess without joint action, unless by the action of the President. That Mr. TAFT will not supply. He is determined that the one great measure of his Administration shall be determined by Congress in the extraordinary session. He has the country behind him, and if the Senate will not do its part, he can hold it in Washington until December.

STOP WASTING WATER.

We are getting no rain, as even the showers indicated in the Weather Bureau's observations elude us. A little rain will not help, now, to improve the situation in the Croton Watershed. Even if the June rainfall should turn out to be higher than the average for that month, which is not likely, there will still be great danger of a water famine. Commissioner THOMPSON, who has been awake to the situation a long while, has been doing his best to avert peril. He has already stopped a great deal of waste, and he appeals to every resident of Manhattan and the Bronx to use the water sparingly.

Mr. THOMPSON has asked for an appropriation of $100,000 to pay 100 extra Inspectors for house-to-house visits of inspection and instruction. He should get the money, with the approval of the Board of Aldermen, because it would be poor economy at this time to spare expense to avert the danger of a water famine. Measures to secure an additional temporary supply from Ten Mile River, Connecticut, should be taken at once. If that supply can be secured the comfort and health of the millions in the two boroughs will not be endangered by a scarcity of water. But, above all, every resident of the city should do his own part by using water economically.

THE TAXICAB QUESTION.

The Committee on Laws and Legislation of the Board of Aldermen has before it six measures to regulate cab fares in this city. Action on these is expected daily. A new system of inspection is needed, to apply to both the cabs and their drivers. The abolition of many private hack stands has been strongly urged. The commissions paid to owners of property for the right to use the public streets near their premises are enormous, and if they could be saved the taxicab owners could afford to lower their fares.

The recent increase of fares by one of the larger taxicab companies has strengthened the public demand for a cheaper service. Public stands for cabs are not needed in the heart of the city, as a cab can always be summoned by telephone, and the abolition of all the stands would not injure the business of any cab company. New York needs a cheap and good cab service. New Yorkers do not expect cab fares to be reduced to the London level. They are willing to pay double the London fares. But they know perfectly well that cab fares could be much lower here, under the proper conditions, and they look to the Board of Aldermen to take up the cab question seriously, with the intention of settling it.

"HOME RULE" AND THE CIVIL SERVICE.

The proposition to relieve the City Civil Service Commission from the need of having its changes in the rules approved by the State Commission is urged on the ground that it is "home rule" for the city. It is much the same sort of home rule that it would be to provide that the action of the city courts should not be reviewed by the higher State courts.

The civil service laws are State laws enacted to carry out the mandate of the Constitution that all appointments to the civil service of the State or of the subdivisions thereof shall be made for merit and fitness, tested, so far as practicable, by competitive examinations. The avowed purpose of this provision of the Constitution and the laws is to do away with the use of appointments as the spoils of party warfare. To effect this purpose an organization has been created with the Chief Executive of the State at its head, with a State Commission to administer the system under his guidance, and with local Commissions subject to the approval of the State Commission. These Commissions have a certain limited discretion in determining the appointments in which competitive examinations are practicable, though the courts have held that they must be assumed to be practical unless there are strong and obvious reasons to the contrary.

In the exercise of this discretion the State Commission, under the law, is subject to the approval of the Governor, and the local Commissions are subject to the approval, first, of the Mayors and then of the State Commission. Under this very sensible plan, despite some lapses and many ingenious schemes of the spoilsmen, a considerable and effective harmony and consistency have been worked out in the administration of the merit system throughout the State and in our chief cities. If now New York were cut out of this consistent and harmonious scheme and its Commission were allowed to do or leave undone whatever it chose, subject only to the approval of the Mayor, who puts its members in or out at his own will, the change would be one distinctly to the profit of the spoilsmen, and no one else. Not that Mayor GAYNOR would desire that end or would willingly advance it. But with the best will in the world he would be unable, absorbed as he is in a thousand other matters, wholly to prevent it. And we might easily have a Mayor who would not try or wish to prevent it, who would do all he could to promote it. Does Mr. GAYNOR know what Mr. MURPHY wants, really wants, in this matter? Or has he any doubt?

GEN. BERNARDO REYES.

Gen. REYES, now a visible but puzzling factor in the Mexican political situation, places the blame for the discontent which led to the revolution squarely on the shoulders of the retiring Vice President, RAMON CORRAL. Of course, anybody could do as much. For some years CORRAL has been the scapegoat in Mexican politics. Obviously Gen. REYES does not think that his own candidacy for Vice President, either in 1904 or 1910, would have spared the country from upheaval and bloodshed. He says frankly that he refused to accept the candidacy "against the official candidate," because he feared the elections would cause a revolution.

The present position of Gen. REYES, however, is far from comprehensible. He admits that he was glad to leave Mexico because he did not wish to be in the country at a time of civil war, a strange admission for a soldier once so highly esteemed by the enemies of DIAZ and latterly looked to, as it has seemed, as a possible military leader for the Government. He remains in Havana at the request of the retiring Minister of War, one of the Cientificos, whose methods he condemns. It does not seem likely now that Gen. REYES will exert much force as a pacificator. He lost the admiration of the anti-reelectionists when he accepted a foreign mission, of very dubious importance, and, while he has no very close connection with the Diaz Government, the Madero party seems to have no place for him in its plans.

Mr. BONSAL's special dispatch to THE SUNDAY TIMES mentioned pending negotiations between MADERO and REYES, while REYES himself speaks in a general way of his hope for a "strong and firm peace." The postponement of his start for Vera Cruz from Havana was decided on quickly, and is, it seems, a cause of bewilderment to his friends in Mexico. Clearly the hope that a strong man was at hand to save the country has been dispelled.

TARIFF DUTIES FOR WAGE EARNERS

We all know that the high tariff is maintained to protect the American wage earner against the pauper labor of Europe, and all that. See how it works in the paper trade.

The Tariff Board reports as the result of its investigation into the pulp and paper business in the United States and Canada that the labor cost of a ton of paper made in the United States is $3.27, as against $3.19 labor cost per ton in Canada—a difference of 8 cents. But the duty on print paper is $3.75 a ton, more than forty times the labor cost difference. There are 1,200,000 tons of print paper consumed in this country annually. If this tariff tax enables the American paper manufacturer to increase his price by the amount of the duty, then the consumers of print paper, that is, the newspapers, pay an annual tariff assessment of $4,500,000, out of which the wage earners in the paper business get only $96,000.

All of which, manifestly, establishes the truth and sincerity of the protected manufacturer's argument for high duties as a safeguard of American labor against the invasion of pauper-made goods.

THE NEW COURT HOUSE SITE.

A projected site, strongly favored, for the new Court House is the plot comprising 193,000 square feet, bounded by Centre, Pearl, and Duane Streets and Park Row. This is just north of the new Municipal Building, near the Hall of Records, and easily accessible from all parts of the city, and its cost would not be excessive. The city already owns in fee 26,000 square feet of this property. The closing of City Hall Place, only one block long, and one short block of Park Street, which would be necessary if this site should be selected, would cause no public inconvenience. There are only three buildings of much value on the property. The cost of the site would not exceed $4,000,000. The cost of the projected Reade and Duane Street site would inevitably be much higher.

The Board of Real Estate Brokers lately passed a resolution condemning the plan to build the Court House in City Hall Park, and favoring the site we have described. It is understood that the Board of Estimate has had this site, or a part of it, under consideration. The advantage of taking the whole of it, 193,000 square feet, would be the gain of light and air for the courts, and the opportunity thus obtained to make the new building a worthy architectural ornament to the city. The Court House could be surrounded by an ample and handsome park of its own. Undoubtedly, office buildings of a good type would be built in the immediate neighborhood for the convenience of lawyers, and a new civic centre established.

The matter, of course, is entirely in the hands of the Board of Estimate, which has been greatly perplexed, and often needlessly, by the contentions which have arisen since the project to build the new courts took form. The Court House must not be built in any existing park, and no other site suggested seems to meet the requirements of bench and bar so well as this, or to promise a more satisfying solution of the problem.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Anyhow, We Need the Department.

Senator OWEN has introduced again his bill for the establishment of a Federal Department of Health, after making in it several changes designed to meet whatever of honesty and intelligence there was—and it was very little—in the antagonism which managed to defeat the measure at the last session of Congress. It now disclaims, for instance, granting power to exercise, except on invitation, any function belonging to a State, or to enter premises in any State without the consent of the owner or occupant.

The general features of the bill as it stands are characterized by The Medical Record as "highly commendable," but that high authority finds in it two defects so serious as in its opinion to make the passage of the bill questionably desirable. The first of these is the giving to the head of the proposed organization the title of "Director," not of "Secretary," which means that he will not have a seat in the Cabinet and that while his independence will raise him somewhat above the rank and dignity of a bureau chief, he will not have the recognition which the importance of the work intrusted to him demands.

The second defect, and the one to which The Record even more strenuously objects, is the failure of the bill to provide that the head of the department shall be a sanitarian with a medical education. Instead, it only specifies that the Director's assistant shall be a man of that sort. In other words, as The Record sees the case, the assistant is to do the work, while a politician is to boss the job, and it thinks that the distinct intention of those back of the bill is to keep the control of the department out of the hands of any doctor. Speaking for the doctors, it says:

> The medical profession of the country does not want a Department of Health whose head shall be a layman, locked out from the President's Council Chamber. If there is no medical man in the country able to conduct such a department, and worthy to be a member of the Cabinet, then we had better be content with the efficient Bureau of Public Health that we already have.

That is going rather far, and reminds one a little of the talk so often heard in military circles about the "absurdity" of having a civilian at the head of the War and Navy Departments. But of course the cases are somewhat different, and The Record may be right.

Attempting to Do the Impossible.

It has been deemed expedient by both branches of the Illinois Legislature to pass a bill forbidding newspapers to print detailed descriptions of crimes and executions. According to the dispatch announcing this fact the bill went through the lower house "apparently unnoticed," but as it received 29 favoring votes and none adverse one's inclination, in view of recent legislative history in Illinois, is to put more emphasis on the "apparently" than on the "unnoticed," and to find cynical explanations for this sudden unanimity in attempting to minimize the publicity which is the greatest deterrent of wrongdoing and not the least of its punishments.

But the cynical explanations may be wrong, and possibly the legislators, acting from motives quite impersonal and disinterested, had simply been misled by the good people who hold to the delusion that the way to abolish evils is to say very little about them, and the little with a note of sorrow that anything at all has to be said. This opinion is the result of misunderstanding and misapplying a truth—the truth that crime can be produced by suggestion, and that men with susceptible minds can get the compelling impulse from the description of crimes committed by others. Of this there is no doubt. Unquestionable, too, is it that there is such a thing as a base exploitation of crime.

To try to draw a fixed line, however, between the adequate and the excessive presentation of criminal news would be to undertake a hopeless task, and certainly the Illinois Legislature will have no more success in performing it than did our own when it made a like attempt some years ago. The fact is that crime is news, and good news, in the sense that it has legitimate interest and ought to be printed. Whether the printing be done well or ill, with too much or too little detail—these are matters of judgment and circumstance, not of rule or commandment, and the newspapers must be trusted to exercise their own discretion, subject, of course, to public opinion and the general laws of decency. Secrecy and crime go naturally together.

As for the suggestion of crime, that takes the form of direction rather than of creation—in other words, the criminal does one thing rather than another as the result of what he reads, and just how often even this happens nobody knows.

Naturalization Deserves Investigation.

Other people in large numbers might well imitate the example set by Col. ROOSEVELT and take the trouble to see for themselves just how the work of turning aliens into citizens is done in the courts. They might even go further than he did and examine into all the details of taking out first and second papers.

We are constantly getting letters from men who complain that, while passing through these preliminaries to naturalization, they are subjected to maltreatment more or less outrageous by ignorant or unmannerly underlings, and that their purpose is attained—when it is attained at all—only after they have spent more time and money than reason or right demands. Every now and then these grievances develop into an open scandal, but it attracts attention for only a day or two, and the evils persist.

Of course naturalization should not be made too easy or cheap, for it is a serious act, to be performed deliberately and with dignity. But the would-be citizen should not be robbed; he should not be unnecessarily delayed or troubled by irrelevant demands upon the time of himself and his witnesses. The final steps in the transfer of allegiance seem nowadays to be usually taken with due propriety, and it was only these, unfortunately, that the Colonel watched.

Perhaps if he had seen the others his good advice would have been turned from the applicants to those by whom they are not infrequently harassed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice in your to-day's issue a suggestion from a disgusted resident of Stuyvesant Square to turn the park into a site for a Court House. I don't wonder at his wanting it turned into something that will look respectable, but under the gift of the park to the city by the Stuyvesant heirs it was to be always maintained by the city as a park, and as the present Park Commissioner has made it an abode for "hoboes" and given it over to the rabble, the Stuyvesant heirs can demand its return and cut it up into building lots. Indeed, I hear they are about to do so.

THE ARMY OF VAGRANTS.

Its Increase Calls for New Methods of Combating It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is it not obvious that the time has come to try to deal with the problem of vagrancy in New York City in some consistent and comprehensive manner? Four events in the last week emphasize our present ridiculously ineffective methods of dealing with the vagrancy problem.

First, the Commissioner of Public Charities made serious complaint at the recent city conference of charities and correction because his hospital helpers, paid from $5 to $10 a month and maintenance, were constantly changing, becoming intoxicated, being discharged, being replaced, &c. These hospital helpers, of a very low grade of efficiency, are in large measure a part of the floating army of the inefficients and the vagrants in the city. Years ago the hospitals drew their helpers from the penitentiary and the workhouse. To-day, according to Ex-Commissioner Hebberd, the same type is employed except that they are at the time of employment free agents instead of prisoners.

Secondly, at the Conference on the Reform of Criminal Law and Procedure, held at Columbia University last week, William M. Ivins graphically described the permanent occupation of Madison Square by the vagrant army, the impossibility of maintaining decency in that park, the presence of chronic rounders and drunkards of both sexes, and he even described a vicious assault as nothing at all rare. For years Madison Square has been a resthaven for the inefficient unemployed, although of course not absolutely pre-empted by that class. And what is true of Madison Square is true of Union Square, of Bryant Park, of City Hall Park, and of many other parks. What gain is there to the city in the continuance of this condition? Other cities have solved the problem of making the vagrants move on in the parks. Why should we hand over the fairest and costliest plots of ground in the centre of our city to the least productive members of the community?

Third, in the TIMES of May 15th, the Joint Application Bureau, maintained by the Charity Organization Society and the Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor, is quoted as announcing that there are more vagrants in the city of New York than ever before. The Municipal Lodging House lodged in January, 1911, 24,336 as against 11,252 in January, 1910. A large proportion of these persons are of the vagrant down-and-out class. In April, 1911, 15,715 persons were lodged in comparison with 7,776 in April, 1910, an increase of over 100 per cent. The citizens of New York probably do not realize that the cost of maintaining one person in the Municipal Lodging House for one night was in 1908 35 cents; in 1909, 44; in 1910, 40. During six months, up to the end of March, 1911, the Joint Application Bureau had 18,000 applications from homeless men as compared with 12,000 in the same length of time in 1910. Wherein does New York City profit by this increase in the homeless army?

Fourth, a bill was introduced on May 10 in the Assembly providing for a farm and industrial colony for tramps and vagrants and for an inquiry in relation to vagrancy. The bill indicates that there are vacant State lands in New York State possibly suitable for a farm and industrial colony. If there are, let us know it quickly. The commission provided for by the bill would receive an appropriation of $10,000, not only to secure options on a site if necessary, but to study the problem of vagrancy in New York State. Certainly when the State can appropriate millions for barge canals, State roads and the like, $10,000 to study the vagrancy question, which costs the State, according to the State Board of Charities, at least $2,000,000 a year, from which we get no return, is a sum which should be immediately voted.

Why proceed further in this strain? It is obvious even to the unthinking that our vagrancy problem is serious. A generation ago or more Germany sought to fortify itself against the increasing army of vagrants by establishing voluntary and compulsory labor colonies. Many of the German compulsory labor colonies are largely self-supporting and the colonies have reduced vagrancy. Free employment bureaus throughout the German Empire have rendered German labor more mobile. England has recently undertaken to establish free employment bureaus on a large scale. To paraphrase a well-known Latin phrase: "How long shall the vagrant army abuse our patience?"

In conclusion I suggest two attempts at a solution: United effort to further the present farm colony bill and the appointment of a vagrancy commission, and the calling of a conference in New York City of all the more important agencies dealing with the vagrancy problem, with the idea that they shall at least try to "get together" on this problem, instead of dealing with it in a more or less centrifugal manner and with little relation to each other.

NOT ORDERED OUT.

Mrs. Blatch's Version of an Incident Reported from Albany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The account you published as telegraphic news from Albany in regard to the suffragists being ejected from the floor of the Senate is without foundation. Several suffragists on Wednesday morning, before the Senate convened, were conversing with the Senators in the Senate chamber. Two of the suffragists went out into the corridor, and in a few moments I followed them. Then I noticed that a fourth member of our party was still inside the Senate chamber.

I turned to return to the Senate chamber to ask her to join us when I found that the doorkeeper was holding the door against all incomers except the Legislators. This is the invariable custom before the Senate convenes. Many men standing about me who had wished to go into the Senate chamber were refused admittance. The doorkeeper said to me with perfect courtesy that if I wanted to go in to get my friend I could enter through the ladies' parlor. I replied that that was not worth while.

I waited where I was until my companion came out and joined me. At my elbow stood a member of the staff of reporters at the Capitol. He said to me: "It would make a good story that the suffragists were refused entrance to the chamber." I pointed out to him that it would be a very false story. He perfectly understood the matter, but deliberately hoaxed the newspapers.

"SHE."

She was a college graduate,
(And she was "wondrous wise"),
Said everything was out of date—
From babies down to making pies!

Mere man, of course, could sign a check,
But women were the one great hope;
The world would surely go to wreck
Unless with "problems" they did cope.

Her future work she talked of much;
Of women's rights and how to vote.
On various topics she did touch;
And from the Masters she could quote.

Of love and matrimony, too,
There was so very much to say—
The pros and cons raised such a hue
Poor little Cupid ran away!

So, Time rolled on, as Time will do,
And she grew wiser day by day,
And when the right man said "Will you?"

TAFT SUMMER HOME READY.

Major Butt Approves Alterations in Cottage at Beverly.

BEVERLY, Mass., May 21.—Major Archibald W. Butt, President Taft's military aid, and E. W. Smithers, the chief telegrapher of the White House staff, made a brief visit of inspection to-day to Parramatta, which is to be the Summer White House this year. The Major appeared to be pleased with the alterations made in the cottage. When the location of the Executive Offices is decided upon and the wire arrangements are completed everything will be ready for the reception of the President and his family, probably about July 1.

While it is not definitely decided, it is thought that the Executive Offices will be in the Mason Building on Cabot Street, where they were two years ago. For Major Butt's own occupancy, the Woodbury Cottage, which he had last year, was re-engaged. While it is nearer the former Summer home of the President on Woodbury Point it is still conveniently near parramatta, and the Major likes the cool location with its pleasant view.

Mrs. R. D. Evans, widow of the late owner of the President's Summer quarters for the last two years, has presented to Mr. Taft the desk and chair which he used in the Evans cottage.

'UNREASONABLE' RESTRAINTS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Most lawyers are glad to read whatever Mr. Beck has to say on legal propositions, and I took up his interview on the Standard Oil decision in your issue of this morning with great expectation of enlightenment. His statement is very interesting, but, as it seems to me, fails in its treatment of the most important point raised in his discussion. If the learned opinion of the Chief Justice be not, in so far as the doctrine of "sweet reasonableness" is concerned, mere dictum, (as to which I think much might be said,) it clearly imports into the statute the rule of the common law, to which only those restraints of trade are obnoxious which are "unreasonable."

The theory is substantially as follows: The Federal jurisdiction did not inherit the doctrines of the common law; the statute was designed to place the General Government in the same relation toward inter-State commerce as that sustained toward intra-State commerce by the respective States; hence it must be assumed that the lawyers who drew the statute intended the "restraint of trade" therein mentioned to be the same kind of restraint of trade as that which in all the States was condemned by the familiar principle of the common law. If this is so, it seems difficult to account for Mr. Beck's complaint that the Chief Justice has not "defined" what is meant by "reasonable" restraint. He says it had a well-defined meaning at common law. Surely, then, this "well-defined meaning" is what it has in the Sherman law as expounded by Chief Justice White. He certainly would not expect the court to legislate by attempting a definition designed to embrace all possible cases that might be hereafter presented in the involved and complicated development of our inter-State trade.

Such was not the method of the common law. That splendid system was built up through the slow process of adjudications on individual cases, "ripening from precedent to precedent." Assuming, therefore, that the Standard Oil opinion carries with it, not as dictum, but as necessarily involved decision, the doctrine of the distinction between "reasonable" and "unreasonable" restraints, is it not evident that the definition of the common law is available hereafter in all such cases in the United States courts, thus giving to commerce among the States exactly the same protection in this regard as that enjoyed by trade within the States under the rule of the common law which Mr. Beck finds satisfactory?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I observe that Pictor Ignotus of Falls Village, Conn., in Sunday's TIMES says of my suggested lack of thought in pictures by New York painters especially indicates that I mistake the purport of a picture. In explanation of this mistake of mine he says: "All that is required of a picture is that the symbol, plan, spacing, recession, shadow, color, and material show, in each and every particular, proper unity, vitality, infinity, and repose." I can't say as to the "infinity and repose," but in other respects the same might be as truthfully spoken of painting a barn. If Pictor be right, then some genius should devise a method of painting pictures similar to the mechanical devices which play the music of the greatest masters with perfect technique. We have those, all right, but do they get there as does the music which has something more in it than perfect technique? It isn't the notes that make the music, it is what is behind the notes; it isn't "symbol, plan, spacing, recession, shadow, color, material" that make the picture, but what is behind them. If not, why isn't a copy of a great painting the equal of the original? Everything else is there except the thought of the master—the thought, the knowledge, or the soul, if you prefer it so. Has Pictor ever read Richard Realf's poem, one stanza of which is as follows:

> "Back of the canvas that throbs
> The painter is hinted and hidden;
> Into the statue that breathes,
> The soul of the sculptor is bidden;
> Under the joy that is felt
> Lie the infinite issues of feeling;
> Crowning the glory revealed
> Is the glory that crowns the revealing."

Whatever "the purport of a picture" may be to me or to any other person, there can be no question as to the purport of lines like these. The poet had a message to deliver, and he delivered it so that an art education was not necessary to its purport and perfect understanding. Neither is it a poem to "point a platitude," nor yet to "illustrate an ancient tale." Possibly Pictor does not know it, and I am adding to his knowledge when I say that Richard Realf was a poet, who, if he had been a painter, would have said things on canvas as he said them in verse, and he would not have been a painter who could be classed with those whom Pictor Ignotus is defending. Incidentally, I may remark as a deference to the high art ideas of Pictor Ignotus that Realf never wrote a "Gee whiz" thing in his entire course of writing.

Pictor Ignotus further says that the "object of a picture is to please the decorative sense, in a high degree, a sense that exists in most men." How many of the great pictures of the world, the pictures that will live as long as men's eyes are the windows of their souls, meet this artistic definition? How many of the great masters delivered decorative or decorated messages? If they did their work inspired by the decorative sense only, then that "sense exists in most men," for most men understand their meaning as soon as they see their pictures. Nor do they need to have a painter along, as he suggests that I do, to teach them how to look at a picture. The master hand points that out distinctly in his work, for he teaches in his picture what no other than himself can tell. That is one reason why we have so few masters among New York painters, and that even in Falls Village, Conn., there may not be an excess.

PUTS MEN DERELICTS UNDER WAY AGAIN

ONLY THE HOMELESS TAKEN

Work and Play for Them Until They Are Ready to Resume Their Places in the Line.

Andress S. Floyd came over from Union, N. J., yesterday afternoon to tell an audience in Carnegie Hall something of the work that goes on out there in the white-pillared house that Charles H. Ingersoll, of watch fame, gave as the home of the Self-Master Colony. Mr. Floyd was able to report that he no longer has to seek out in the sorry parts of the city the men who need his help, but that the home is kept filled all the time by derelicts sent there by others who have straightened themselves out among the Self Masters and gone out into the world again.

It is a farm home, over which Mr. Floyd and his wife preside at Union, where "the intemperate, stranded, discouraged, homeless, and prodigal sons come volutarily in their hour of need or weakness." It is not a vast work, the home is not quite self-supporting, and at present the Floyds can shelter only twenty-five. To these they try to give every chance to save themselves from vagrancy, jail, or possible crime. From each man, they ask each day seven hours labor in exchange for board, clothing, tobacco, and 50 cents a week.

It is a strange family that gathers in the dining room at meal times, when Mr. Floyd sits at the head of the table and his wife at the foot. The colony at one time has held a product of Chinatown and a Yale graduate. Some of the men are still under 20, and some are well past middle life. Mr. Floyd likes to get hold of the country boy who has made a fizzle of it in the city, and who has gone from bad to worse rather than take his destitution and failure home. To get him into the colony, to put him in good shape physically, and to cheer him up a bit to help him get a grip on himself—that is the work that the Floyds have taken upon themselves. Then there are men who have grown flabby with drink, flabby in body and mind, and there are those for whom some shock has severed the threads of life. At the colony, perhaps, he can be tided over the apathetic period until he is fit to gather up the threads again. Confirmed tramps have stopped with the Self Masters, but it is hard to teach them to work. They are not homeless, for, as one of them told Mr. Floyd, they have a thousand homes. Mr. Floyd told yesterday of one man who walked in on him, dejected to the point of despair. For reference he pointed to Bradstreet's of a year or two before, where he had been rated at $1,000,000. He had lost his footing and gone down to the very bottom. In a little while, Mr. Floyd said, the man was out selling the rugs that the other men were weaving at the colony, and a litle later still this task brought him in touch with an attractive business opening. The colony had done its work.

Not that they want references out there. If a man can come with a genuine glowing letter of recommendation, Mr. Floyd said, he must have a friend somewhere, and at the colony they want the really homeless and friendless.

There is all sorts of work to do. Mrs. Floyd is free from the domestic problem, for the cooking is done by one of the "boys," and besides weaving, and farming, and printing, the Self Masters run a tea room that is a lure to the automobile trade. They publish their own magazine, and are immoderately proud of it. Not that it is all work. They sing and play cards and loaf, and there are few rules or regulations. There is a saloon across the road, but Mr. Floyd, when good friends expostulate, says that if his influnece reaches no further than that, he would better close his doors.

It is the theory of the colony that when a man is down and out, it does no good to give him money, for he does not know what to do with it. It does no good to talk to the friendless and hungry of spiritual things. The derelict needs first of all a system of life, and that is the thing the colony tries to furnish. It does not always succeed, but Mr. Floyd thinks it has a rather higher percentage of success than the missions. Feeling keenly the bitter irony of the word "reformatory," Mr. Floyd spoke his mind yesterday of the minister who whispers through the cell bars to the man that God is love and that the world is very beautiful. He spoke respectfully, but with reservations of the missions.

"I have been at a mission in this city," he said, "and on a pleasant night seen fifty men go forward and declare their sins and get a bed ticket. I have been there when the night was stormy, and seen the audience rise as a man and declare their sins. The charitable organizations themselves admit that but one of every hundred 'rescued' proves to be a case of genuine and permanent spiritual change. I glory in that one, and all the expense of the mission work is not too great to pay, but they are paying, too, the price of ninety-nine expressions of hypocrisy, and that is a fearful price."

"As we are doing the world's work and daily caring for someone's son or brother we ask you if you will please give us $1 or more to help fit up larger quarters and workshops to help more who apply."

The colony knows no denominational leaning, and Mr. Floyd does no preaching. Some regulations have grown up naturally there, and it is said that a goodly portion of responsibility and credit goes to one motto: "Don't swear unless it is absolutely necessary." But for a guiding rule for his "family of prodigal sons," Mr. Floyd has gone back to Saint Benedict, who wrote in the year 570.

"If any pilgrim monk come from distant parts, if with wish as a guest to dwell in the monastery, and will be content with the customs which he finds in the place, and do not perchance by his lavishness disturb the monastery, but is simply content with what he finds, he shall be received for as long a time as he desires. If, indeed, he find fault with anything, or expose it, reasonably, and with the humility of charity, the Abbot shall discuss it prudently, lest perchance God had sent for this very thing. But, if he had been found gossipy and contumaceous in the time of his sojourn as guest, not only ought he not to be joined to the body of the monastery, but also it shall be said to him, honestly, that he must depart. If he does not go, let two stout monks, in the name of God, explain the matter to him."

TO PLAN POSTAL PROGRESS.

Conference Here This Week to Urge Improvements on Congress.

Several of the leading firms of the city have arranged for a postal progress conference to be held at the Waldorf on Wednesday under the auspices of the Postal Progress League, of which Frederick C. Beach is President. Its purpose is to impress on Congress the necessity of immediate improvements in the Postal Service in the direction of the reduction of postal rates and insurance on mail matter and the establishment of an extended and cheap parcels post.

Among the firms and associations which have signed the call for the meeting are the American Manufacturers' Export Association, 200 Fifth Avenue; the Gorham Company, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street; Munn & Co., 361 Broadway; Dodd, Mead & Co., Fourth Avenue and Thirtieth Street; R. H. Ingersoll & Brother, 45 John Street, and the Retail Dry Goods Association, 156 Fifth Avenue.

SCIENTISTS APPLAUD DR. MELTZER'S WORK

They Had Observed but Had No Proof of Bodily Function He Demonstrated.

DISCUSSED BY PROF. LEE

Physiologists in this city were greatly interested yesterday in the demonstration by Dr. S. J. Meltzer of the existence in animals of a means of distribution of substances throughout the body aside from the circulatory system of the heart, veins, and lymphatics, as told in THE SUNDAY TIMES. Evidences of such transmission were not wanting before, but it remained for Dr. Meltzer, through his experiments at the Rockefeler Institute, to demonstrate its existence finally by eliminating the circulatory system.

Dr. Frederic Schiller Lee, Professor of Physiology at Columbia, said that Dr. Meltzer had rendered a great service in thus establishing scientifically what he denominates a "peripheral mechanism" of which only a priori evidences were known before.

"Dr. Meltzer's experiments," said Prof. Lee, "are of great interest in that they demonstrate that material substances may pass from one part of an organism to another rapidly without being carried mechanically by the circulating blood. We are apt to forget that there is another circulating medium, the lymph, which, because of the fact that it is found largely outside of definite vessels, comes into much more intimate contact with the living cells.

"The blood is commonly believed to be the gross carrier, the lymph is the liquid which actually gives up food and oxygen, and also poisons, to the cells, and receives their wastes. The lymph forms a continuous liquid medium throughout the body. It is probable that substances can pass rapidly by diffusion from one part of the lymph to another part, just as a lump of sugar dropped into a cup of coffee will soon sweeten the whole. Slight movements of the muscles or other tissues will agitate the lymh, and may cause its contents to be more easily diffused.

"Moreover, in the frog, besides the minute interstitial spaces between the cells, there exist very large lymph cavities connecting with one another, through which gross passage is very easy. It would be difficult to eliminate these experimentally.

"In Dr. Meltzer's experiments it is conceivable that the substances employed were transmitted partly by diffusion and partly by actual motion of the lymph resulting from movements of tissues, or from the lymph hearts with which the frog is provided, but which are absent in the human system.

"The fact that Dr. Meltzer finds that poisons, such as tetanus toxin and morphine, are more toxic when the blood circulation is stopped, recalls the fact that in the higher animals it has been shown that the liver is constantly protecting the body against all sorts of poisons. Thus, if extracts of typhoid germs or if the toxins of tetanus germs are injected into the portal vein as it enters the liver, their poison is in part neutralized within the substance of the liver. So, too, the liver deals with morphine and strychnine and metallic poisons, rendering them in part inert. The poisons are not simply stored, but are probably changed chemically. It may be, the same process occurs in frogs and that the more powerful action of the poisons demonstrated by Dr. Meltzer in cardiectomized frogs is due to the fact that they cannot reach the liver rapidly, there to undergo detoxication.

"The experiments should be repeated in higher animals before we can say in how far passage by way of the lymph is an important adjunct to circulation of the blood."

Dr. Meltzer agreed yesterday that experimentation with higher animals was advisable before attempting to apply all his conclusions to the human system and it is likely that such experiments will be made. Dr. Meltzer emphasized, however, the similarity that had been demonstrated between the heart of the frog and the human organ.

"It is well to remember," he said, "the result of the experiments made by Prof. Engelmann of the University of Berlin. He devoted himself for ten years, from 1890 to 1900, almost exclusively to the most minute investigations of the frog's heart. So thoroughly did he go into this work that he had to invent a whole terminology in which to describe his conclusions. General medical men, to say nothing of laymen, regarded this work as practically valueless, and there was much contemptuous reference to 'frog physiology.'

"In 1899, however, Prof. Cushney of the University of Michigan and Dr. Wenkebach of Holland discovered independently that a certain action of the frog's heart, known as an extra systole, was exactly reproduced in the heart of the dog. This was followed by the discovery by Dr. Mackenzie of London that the frog's heart is reproduced in the human heart in practically every one of the minute details worked out by Engelmann, so that nowadays we can refer from one to the other as being almost identical.

"This is an indication of the fact that we cannot tell in experiments of this kind just what or just how important a demonstration may ultimately be made as affecting human life. We can only say that the establishment of any large function not before scientifically known is bound to have important results."

Dr. Meltzer was asked as to the suggestion in his paper that the peripheral mechanism may be normally active to a somewhat greater extent in parts in which the circulation is normally not extensive, such as the central nervous system, a study of which from this point of view "may perhaps be the means of throwing new light on some old questions." While declining to go into this matter with particularity, Dr. Meltzer said:

"You know we can immunize an animal against tetanus by the injection of toxin into the blood. All parts of the body are immunized except the brain, and the theory is that the toxin does not reach the brain freely from the blood. The brain must be immunized by injection directly into it. This indicates that the connection between the central nervous system and the heart are not as close as that between the heart and other parts of the body. The suggestion, therefore, is that the central nervous system may be more readily accessible through the peripheral mechanism."

As to the means or motive power by which substances are transmitted through the lymph, or as Dr. Meltzer prefers to call it, the "tissue fluid," he explained that there was no circulation such as that of the blood, but that the forces concerned in the distribution are probably diffusion and osmosis and perhaps also imbibition, capillarity, surface tension or even chemotaxis. To the layman some of these terms are difficult to explain, but the broad fact may be stated that the forces are all physical ones, which may be demonstrated with water or other liquids apart from a living organism.

"More important for the present," said Dr. Meltzer, "is the question of the paths by which the peripheral distribution takes place. When the heart is ligated and excised all motion in the arteries, capillaries and veins stop, and none of the contents of the veins can pass into the arteries and capillaries and thus to distant tissues. As to the lymphatics, their function consists in carrying the lymph from the tissues to the veins. Now since the veins cannot carry the lymph any further it is evident that in cardiectomized animals the lymphatics can render no service in the process of distribution of tissue lymph. By what path, then, is the injected fluid distributed in the cardiectomized animals? For those who have learned to distinguish between the lymphatics and lymph spaces it is evident that in animals without circulation the distribution can take place only through the lymph spaces."

Dr. Meltzer pointed out that in all probability the system of tissue spaces also serves as a distributing system in animals which do not possess a circulatory apparatus. In the process of evolution, as animals acquire a complete circulatory system, the primitive tissue space system remains, but becomes of minor importance.

"The cardio-vascular circulation," said Dr. Meltzer, "is a strong centralizing government which keeps down as much as possible the autonomous tendencies of the individual organs and parts of the body. The mechanism of distribution by way of the tissue spaces is far from being capable of exercising such central power. By virtue of the slowness of the distribution and by the fact of not possessing private roads for it, it is able in a very small degree to unify the activities of the various organs. We may say that the peripheral mechanism, in contrast to the centralizing circulation, favors, in the first place, the autonomous activities of organs. In the second place it favors local action; a secretion or an injection into one territory may affect this or a neighboring territory to a much greater degree than distant territories."

His suggestion that the peripheral mechanism may in time play an important part in relation to tissues in which the circulation has ceased Dr. Meltzer declined to go into further at this time, particularly as he is not a pathologist.

Dr. W. G. MacCallum, Professor of Pathology at Columbia, said he could not discuss the possible ultimate results in this field, as the matter had not yet received sufficient study, and he had not even read the text of Dr. Meltzer's paper.

"ST. SEBASTIAN" REHEARSED.

D'Annunzio-Debussy Work Is Lengthy —Ida Rubinstein in Title Role.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 21.—D'Annunzio and Debussy's mystery play, "The Martyrdom of St. Sebastian" bids fair to break all records for length. Last evening's dress rehearsal began at 9 P. M. and ended at 1:20 A. M., the last act, which is only orchestral, not being given.

It is essentially a literary work. D'Annunzio remains himself, although writing in French, and his great poetical conceptions find rich expression in his theme.

The play is wholly symbolical. It is easily seen that St. Sebastian embodies Christ. Other characters are easily recognized as Biblical.

Debussy's music is of his best and blends wonderfully with the decidedly mystic spirit of the play. It expresses his manner throughout and is full of charming effects, obtained chiefly by the use of harps and double basses.

On the whole, although beautifully staged, it is hardly probable that the work will appeal to the general public. Many of the audience at the rehearsal left the theatre without having grasped its meaning.

Ida Rubinstein, who took the title rôle, proved the best of tragedians, her pale beauty fitting the part perfectly, and her deep arresting voice lending music to the poet's words.

The work is to be given in concert form in Boston under M. Caplet's conductorship.

MAY STAGE "MAGIC FLUTE."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 21.—Gatti-Casazza accompanied by Alfred Hertz, has arrived here from Paris, and will spend four or five days looking over the novelties offered by the Kaiser's Royal Opera.

Last night they saw a magnificent new version of Mozart's "Magic Flute," which was the premier novelty of the recent Winter season, having been specially revived and rearranged for the Kaiser's birthday with new settings and costumes costing $75,000.

The impresarios are much impressed with the possibilities of its production on the Metropolitan stage, and may decide to offer it as one of the novelties of next season. One of the spectacular features of the production is the introduction of the cinematograph, whereby a Swiss waterfall is reproduced with a marvelously beautiful and convincing effect.

Mr. Gatti-Casazza and Mr. Hertz are also considering the revival of Wagner's "Rienzi," which was put on the Berlin opera in elaborate style. They are employing a part of their time here inspecting the local establishment of a Berlin and New York costuming house, with a view to replenishing the Metropolitan's wardrobe and scenic supplies.

ACCUSES MORMON LEADERS.

Living in Polygamy To-day, Declares Dr. W. W. Padden.

Before a large audience in the Labor Temple last night Dr. W. W. Padden, one of the leading Christians of Salt Lake City engaged in fighting Mormonism, declared that since the last manifesto Joseph F. Smith, head of the Mormon Church, has had twelve children by five different wives.

"The magazines are talking about Brigham Young and his nineteen wives," said Dr. Padden. "Let us talk about live ones. Joseph F. Smith is a live one. He has five houses and five wives. And since the manifesto he has had twelve children by them. Now, let us take another live one. Brigham H. Roberts, friend of Senator Smoot, who lives in Smoot's home town in Utah. Roberts has three wives at least. I know, for Roberts himself introduced me to them at different times."

He praised the magazine articles against Mormonism, and added that since the publication of ex-President Roosevelt's letter on the subject the Mormon Church had excommunicated John Taylor. "They said it was for insubordination," said the speaker, "but I know he was a polygamist." He intimated that the excommunication of Taylor was thrown out as a sop to the Gentiles, and went on to cite particular cases of polygamy among Mormons in Salt Lake City at the present. He added:

"Don't break your hearts over the misery of the Mormon woman. It doesn't exist. I know of two plural wives who used to go out shopping together like two sisters. Of course I don't mean to say that you must countenance it—these plural marriages. It would mean shooting or stabbing anywhere else but in Utah or Turkey. But what you might worry over is the complacency with which this immorality is regarded, and as a danger to morality.

"Prophets of the Mormon Church have lived in polygamy, or are now living in polygamy. The god of the Mormons is not a spiritual God. Their theology is carnal; they believe in a plurality of gods and wives, and this is part of the Mormon theology. They have male and female gods. It is part of the home teachings of the Mormons—taught in the home of the Sultan of Turkey."

Dr. Padden urged his hearers to agitate for the suppression of Mormonism, and he was greeted with applause when he told them that the Gentiles of Utah had succeeded in having all the polygamists removed and barred from holding civil office.

CHOIR SINGS OUTSIDE TO GET CONGREGATION

NEW PASTOR'S EXPERIMENT

When This Plan Wears Out Something Else Will Be Tried, Says the Rev. Theodore Sedgwick.

From being one of the most staid of Protestant Episcopal parishes in the city, Calvary Church, at Twenty-first Street and Fourth Avenue, has become, under the guidance of its new rector, the Rev. Theodore Sedgwick, noted for the manner in which it goes after a congregation.

At a few minutes before 8 o'clock last night the choir of about forty men and boys, in vestments, appeared in front of the church and, accompanied on a portable organ, began singing hymns. By the time one stanza had been sung, a crowd had collected from all sides. The hymns over, Mr. Sedgwick stepped forward:

"Every man here needs the Church," he said to the crowd. "Every woman needs the Church. The city needs it. You had better come in. Just folow us inside when we go in and we will try to make you as comfortable as possible and make it interesting. If you do not like it, you can go out at any time and nobody will say a word."

A large crowd had listened in deep silence to the singing of the hymns by the magnificent choir of the church. The gathering kept getting larger, until it reached more than five hundred. Even the motormen of passing Madison Avenue cars slowed down and stopped as long as they dared to listen to the unusual sound.

When the rector finished the choir began its processional hymn and started up the main aisle of the church. The crowd moved forward and a large part of it followed inside the church. Calvary Church is an old one with large seating capacity, yet the crowd filled it comfortably.

One week ago last night the experiment of having the choir sing outside was tried. It is known that the rector had some difficulty in persuading his Vestrymen to allow him to try the experiment, which he had brought with him from the West when he came to the church on April 25. His congregation very quickly "caught on" after the first time, however, and last night there were many of the parishioners present who never had been in the habit of attending evening service. Five of the Vestrymen were there to watch things, and there was no doubt expressed as to the success of the proselyting scheme.

"It's an innovation," said Mr. Sedgwick last night just after, with an exclamation of "Put it there!" he had shaken hands with one of the men who had come in off the street, "but it's turned out a great success. I think we had ten times the number to-night that we had last week. The main trouble with Calvary has been that it was being gradually eaten up by the spread of the business district, until there was no one resident in the neighborhood to come to church. So we are appealing to the passer by and the usual floating population in the hope of convincing them that the church is for all who are here. We will keep up until the church closes the first of July. If they get tired of this, we will try something else. But we will get them here."

OSBORNE RESIGNS.

Dix's First Forest Commissioner Is Going Abroad for His Health.

ALBANY, May 21.—Thomas Mott Osborne of Auburn has resigned as State Forest, Fish and Game Commissioner. His letter of resignation, which was forwarded to Gov. Dix last night, was made public to-day. His letter follows:

> My Dear Governor: Confirming my telephone of Tuesday, May 9, I hereby place in your hands my resignation as Forest, Fish and Game Commissioner of the State of New York.
> As you know, I was very reluctant to accept this position, and only did so at your earnest and repeated solicitation and on the representation that I could be of service to you and to the State; especially in the matter of establishing a department of conservation.
> I have not lost faith in the plan of such a department. With proper legislation it could be the basis of enormous usefulness to the State and the Nation. My idea of the general plan and scope of such a department are contained in the bill and the proposed amendment to the State Constitution now before the Legislature.
> It is with regret that I feel compelled to withdraw from active participation while this important legislation is pending and while the work is still unaccomplished. But unfortunately I have no choice.
> On Monday, May 8, my physician gave me warning that he would not be responsible for the result if I again took up my official duties in Albany at this time. He states that while my present illness is not dangerous, immediate rest and relief from responsibility are imperative to avoid the possibility of serious complications. My own feelings tell me that he is right. For a considerable part of the Winter I have been struggling against la grippe, and I seem now to be paying the penalty for my efforts to remain steadily at work and thus keep faith with you and the State in the task I undertook to do.
> There seems to be no alternative, therefore, but to send you my resignation.
> With the hope of success for your administration and for the Democratic Party, I am sincerely yours, T. M. OSBORNE.
> Auburn, May 20.

Mr. Osborne will soon sail for Europe. While there he will visit one of the German watering places, where his son also is ill.

One of Gov. Dix's first appointments was that of Mr. Osborne, and he has been one of the leading anti-Tammany men in the Dix Cabinet. He has long been an independent Democrat, and was appointed by Gov. Hughes as a member of the up-State Public Service Commission. He resigned from that place to help take charge of the Dix campaign. In the fight for the United States Senatorship Mr. Osborne worked against William F. Sheehan, being himself a receptive candidate. He was one time Mayor of Auburn.

CHURCH IS CONSECRATED.

Archbishop Farley Officiates at St. Malachy's Dedicatory Services.

With simple services, according to the wishes of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Joseph F. Delany, Archbishop Farley consecrated St. Malachy's Catholic Church in West Forty-ninth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, yesterday morning. The church, which is French Gothic in style, is complete in every respect except for the baptismal font, and Dr. Delany announced that a member of the parish had given him the money for this.

The interior of the church is entirely in white, the three altars being of Carrara marble. The central altar is dedicated to St. Malachy, Bishop of Armagh after St. Patrick.

The church was crowded long before the hour of 11, the time set for the consecration. Sharp at the hour Archbishop Farley, accompanied by Mgrs. Hayes, Hughes, and Lavelle, entered the church sprinkling it with holy water. Solemn mass was then celebrated by Mgr. William G. Murphy of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, assisted by the Rev. Daniel A. Quinn, as deacon, and the Rev. Edward Rafter as sub-deacon. The sub-deacon and deacon were at one time assistant pastors of the church.

Bide-a-Wee Home Benefit To-day.

The programme of the entertainment for the benefit of the Bide-a-Wee Home, to be given at the Lyceum Theatre this afternoon will include recitations by John Mason, the first act of "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," by Mrs. Fiske and her company; violoncello solos by Hans Kronold, songs by Mme. Rosalia Chalia and David Bispham, and scenes from "Pygmalion and Galatea," played by Mrs. Charles de Kay, Edward Fales Coward and Lincoln Plummer.

WOMAN ASTRONOMER DEAD.

Mrs. Fleming Was in Charge of Harvard University's Records.

BOSTON, May 21.—Mrs. Wilhelmina Paton Fleming, one of the foremost astronomers of the world, and curator of astronomical records at Harvard University, died late to-day at a Boston hospital.

Mrs. Fleming, who had been connected with the observatory at Harvard University since 1879, and curator of the astronomical photographs since 1898, won the rare record of having discovered more stars than any other person in the history of the world. She had also the distinction of being the only woman occupying an official position at Harvard.

She was born at Dundee, Scotland, in 1857. Her early education was gained in Dundee under the guidance of her father, Robert Stevens, one of the earliest experimenters in the application of the daguerreotype process of photography. She came to this country in 1879 with her husband, James Orr Fleming.

Mrs. Fleming prepared the Draper catalogue giving the spectrum of 10,498 stars, and thus developed an unusual facility in discovering new stars. A partial list of her discoveries included eight stars of the type Nova, eleven new variables, and eighty-three stars in a cluster which was supposed to contain fifteen.

Aside from the direct astronomical research which Mrs. Fleming accomplished, she did a vast amount of work in the editing of about twenty quarto volumes of the Harvard annuals and other publications of the observatory. She had charge of the Astrophotographic Building at Harvard, and was assisted by more than a dozen women computers.

JOSEPH DE GRANDE DEAD.

Aged Musician and Friend of Caruso Was Apparently Facing Poverty.

Joseph De Grande, 71 years old, an instructor of music, died yesterday morning in his apartment at the Hotel Trafalgar, 115 East Fourteenth Street. Despite the fact that he is said to have been known by many eminent musicians, among them Enrico Caruso, the tenor, the worldly possessions in his rooms were found to consist only of ninety vests of gaudy pattern, sixteen stickpins, fifteen pairs of gold-rimmed eyeglasses, thirty-four pawn tickets, and 75 cents in change. A search of the aged musician's effects failed to disclose the name of a relative, and the body was removed to the City Morgue.

The clerk of the hotel said last night that Mr. De Grande had lived there for twelve years, and during that time had never referred to his relatives, and when questioned regarding them during a recent illness he did not reply, but turned sadly away. He rarely left his studio.

Shortly before his departure for Italy, said the hotel clerk, Enrico Caruso visited the studio of Mr. De Grande and consulted him in regard to his voice. Mr. De Grande had the appearance of a man of leisure, and it was supposed that he had accumulated a small fortune. Two weeks ago he complained of pains about the heart, and summoned his physician, Dr. A. Carinink of 218 East Fourteenth Street. A week ago, according to the physician, it was known that the aged musician could not recover. Trained nurses were called in, and the physician was in almost constant attendance.

DIES IN HER 101ST YEAR.

Mrs. Van Tassel's Last Illness Was Her First in Many Years, Friends Say.

Mrs. Hannah Van Tassel, who celebrated her one hundred and first birthday last January, died in her home in Cold Spring, N. Y., on Saturday night after a short illness. She had been active until a week before her death, and friends say her last illness was the first serious one she had had within their recollection.

Mrs. Van Tassell was married in 1828, the year the first passenger railroad of the United States was built, and three of her eleven children are still living. Her eldest son, now 81 years old, is an attendant in the Appelate Division of the Supreme Court in this city.

GEN. J. H. LLOYD DIES.

Prominent in Military and Masonic Circles as a Tactician.

TROY, N. Y., May 21.—Brigadier Gen. James H. Lloyd died at his home in this city to-night of arterio sclerosis, following an illness of several weeks. Gen. Lloyd was prominent both in military and Masonic circles, being Commander of the Third Brigade, N. G., N. Y., and Grand Sword Bearer of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, of New York State.

Gen. Lloyd attained renown as the Captain of the drill corps of Apollo Commandery, No. 15, K. T., of Troy, and Instructor of several famous volunteer fire company drill corps. Gen. Lloyd was a born organizer and tactician. He was born at Albany, July 25, 1853.

Old Schoolmaster Dies.

George Callendar Brackett, who maintained for many years a private school for young women on Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, died yesterday after a long illness in his home, 50 Remsen Street, Brooklyn. He was 72 years old. He was born in Boston, and was graduated from Harvard in 1864. Soon afterward he went to Brooklyn and opened the Ellen Brackett Private School, named for a sister, who taught in the school, and who, with two other sisters, survive him. Mr. Brackett was Secretary of the Brooklyn Public Library and of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. He was a Trustee of the Young Women's Christian Association, and a member of the Unitarian Church of the Saviour in Pierrepont Street. His body will be cremated on Wednesday.

Dies After Six Years' Illness.

Fletcher Hedges, formerly connected with the Carnegie Steel Company at Pittsburg, Penn., died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George C. Sluth, 450 Washington Avenue, Belleville, N. J., from paralysis, after an illness of six years. He was born in Clark County, Ohio, seventy-seven years ago, and in the civil war served with the 107th Illinois Volunteers. After the war he engaged in the wholesale live stock business, being a member of the firm of S. B. Hedges & Co. of Pittsburg until he became connected with the Carnegie Steel Company.

Mary Huntington Cooke Dead.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 21.—Mary Huntington Cooke, widow of Dr. Josiah Cooke, and one of the founders of Radcliffe College and a member of the corporation, died at her home in Brattle Street to-day, at the age of 78 years. For many years she was actively connected with many charitable and philanthropic societies. She was a sister of the late Dr. W. R. Huntington, rector of Grace Church of New York City.

Obituary Notes.

WILLIAM H. CATTON, for fifty years prominent as a billiard player, died Saturday in Chicago. He first came into prominence in 1863, when he won a tournament in St. Louis.

Mrs. MAY HAMMOND ATLEE died Saturday in her home, 400 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, after a long illness. She was 65 years old and was born in Hudson, N. Y.

JONATHAN LEE LATHROP, Connecticut insurance man, connected with the New York City Underwriters, died Saturday, after a short illness. He was 82 years old, and a native of Norwich.

PRESCOTT DAY LAW of Pomfret, Conn., is dead in Warren, R. I. He was related to the late George Law of New York. He was 85 years old.

OSCAR B. SMITH died on Saturday in his home in Morristown, N. J., of apoplexy. Mr. Smith, who was born in 1839, was a member of the brokerage firm of Lathrop & Smith, and had been in Wall Street for thirty years. He was a charter member of the Larchmont Yacht Club.

THERESA RICHMAN, widow of Moses Richman, died in the home of her daughter, Julia, a District Superintendent of Schools, 9 Montgomery Street, yesterday evening, at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Richman had been ill for two weeks. She was born in Prague, Austria, in 1823, and was a direct descendant of Chief Rabbi Loew. She came to this country in 1849, and in the same year married Moses Richman. The funeral will be Tuesday morning, from the synagogue at Fifty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue.

MRS. J. W. SNEED LOST IN PACIFIC OCEAN

WAS RETURNING FROM CHINA

Theory That in Fit of Somnambulism She Walked Off a Gangway of the Ship in the Night.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 21.—According to wireless advices received at Victoria, B. C., to-day, when the Tamba Maru of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line arrives on Wednesday or Thursday from the Orient, the liner will have to report the loss of one of her saloon passengers, Mrs. J. W. Sneed of New York, wife of the factory superintendent of the British-American Tobacco Company, who is on his way to New York with his bereaved family of two grown-up daughters and two sons.

The tragedy occurred when the Tamba Maru was 155 miles out from Shanghai, where the family had embarked. The younger members of the family were in the saloon, singing together, when the mother was drowned and did not know of it until the following morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Sneed, whose cabin was some distance from that of the children, retired early, and Mrs. Sneed was not missed until 3:40 A. M., when her husband awakened to find her gone. It is the theory of some of the passengers of the Tamba Maru that she walked in her sleep and fell over the gangway, only partly secured. The family appeared in the happiest of circumstances.

James Sneed is a factory superintendent in the employ of the British-American Tobacco Company of 111 Fifth Avenue. He lived formerly at 2,633 East Twenty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, and in the neighborhood there it was said that he had gone to Pekin.

DON'T FEAR SEAMEN'S STRIKE

Steamship Agents Here Not Looking for Interruption of Traffic.

The transatlantic steamship company agents here did not seem to be worrying much yesterday over the statements made on behalf of the Sailors and Firemen's Union of Great Britain that the long-talked-of strike of the seamen on all ships throughout the world bearing the English flag would be declared some time this week. At the docks of the International Mercantile Marine Company, which represents the American, White Star, Red Star, and Atlantic Transport Lines, it was stated that the strike talk had not caused a ripple.

Assistant General Agent R. L. Walker of the Cunard Line said last evening:

"The seamen sign articles for the trip in Liverpool before the vessel sails and are paid off when they return to Liverpool. The same crew may sign for the next trip or another crew may sign. When the trip is completed the crew is no longer in the employ of the company until the members of it sign new articles. We know nothing about the strike threat, except what we have read in the cable dispatches in the papers, and if the situation was looked on as serious I would know of it. If the crew of a vessel from England deserted when the ship came here it would certainly be a violation of the law, and the British Consul would soon get busy.

"As to spoiling the coronation traffic, most of those who are going to see the coronation ceremonies will have gone in the next two weeks. The men whose ships arrive here in the meantime must take them back before they strike."

RENEW THEIR WEDDING VOWS

Mr. and Mrs. Goldsmith Celebrate Their Fiftieth Anniversary.

Surrounded by their children and grandchildren, Nehemiah Goldsmith, a retired tobacco merchant, and his wife, of 301 East Eighty-second Street, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at Lenox Hall, 227 Lenox Avenue, last night, marriage vows being renewed. Congratulations were showered on the pair. Five of the witnesses to the original wedding signed the certificate. The Rev. Dr. M. Krauskopf of Temple Beth Israel officiated.

"I'll tell you how I met Catherine," said Mr. Goldsmith in the speech which he was forced to make at the dinner which followed the ceremony. "I was romping over the dikes in Amsterdam, a lad of 20, when I saw the most beautiful girl I ever laid eyes upon skipping joyfully along the water's edge by the side of her mother. That little girl was Catherine, only 10 years old then, and from that moment I never forgot her.

"Her parents came to America in 1858, and mine followed shortly after, and here we renewed our acquaintance, and were married in 1861."

The children of the pair who were present were Mrs. Andrew Steller, Mrs. Albert Shinski, and Henry, John, and Maurice Goldsmith. Another daughter, Mrs. Jennie Lipmann, is traveling in Europe. The witnesses whose names appear on the two marriage certificates are Solomon De Young of Newark, N. J.; I. Lipmann, I. Myers, Samuel De Young, and Richard Cohn. There were places at the bridal table for forty.

Miss Lindsley to Wed June 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Lindsley of Orange, N. J., have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Alice, to Caleb Dean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb S. Hammond, of the same place. The ceremony will be performed on the evening of June 8 in the First Presbyterian Church in Orange, by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles Townsend. It will be followed by a reception in the home of the bride's parents. Miss Lindsley will be attended by her sister, Lucy M. Lindsley, as maid of honor, and by Esther Raymond of this city; Helen Hammond, a sister of the bridegroom; Gladys Smith, and Marion Barradale of Orange as bridesmaids. Ennis Bachman will be best man, and the ushers will be Horace N. Lindsley, brother of the bride; Halsey Kirtland, of East Orange, Robert Van Order of Caldwell, and Ashley Pitt of Brooklyn.

Miss Levermore to be Married.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Levermore of 30 St. James Place have announced the engagement of their daughter Margaret to Rowland S. Bosworth of Providence, R. I.

Debut of a New Violinist.

Arthur Saft, a violinist, will make his New York début at a musicale to be given to-night in the ballroom of the Hotel Martinique. Lois Fox, a Texas singer, will have a place on the programme with a group of folk songs. Mr. Saft has played in concert in Berlin frequently. Miss Fox has been heard in New York before.

MUSIC NOTES.

Miss Eleanor Kirmes will sing Marguerite in "Faust" to-morrow night in place of Miss Lund at the People's Theatre. Miss Dinaetta Alvina will take Miss Kirmes's place as Santuzza on Wednesday evening. The season of the New Grand Opera Company will open to-night with "Aida."

Caroline Powers, violinist, will give a concert at the Hotel Manhattan next Saturday evening, when she will be assisted by Mrs. Edith Chapman-Goold, soprano, and Miss Emily Powers, soprano.

BISPHAM IN SONG RECITAL.

In spite of the fact that the real music season ended over a month ago, a large audience was courageous enough, in spite of the weather, to attend a concert given by David Bispham at Carnegie Hall last evening. This concert was given in the series of performances at popular prices for wage earners, and is the second musical event in the series, the first having been a concert by the Philharmonic Society, about a month ago.

Mr. Bispham last night sang four German songs, including "Der Erlkönig"; five songs by American composers, including Sidney Homer's "The Pauper's Drive" and Walter Damrosch's "Danny Deever," and recited "King Robert of Sicily," with Rossetter G. Cole's incidental music.

He was assisted by several young performers—Miss Vera Verbarg, violinist; Leo Ornstein, pianist, and Maurice Nitké, violinist.

Newsboys' Benefit at New Theatre.

The New Theatre was filled last night at the performance given for the benefit of the Newsboys' Summer Camp, on Staten Island, and about $3,000 was realized above expenses. The programme began with an address by Henry Clews, and then followed an entertainment of some thirty acts given by popular vaudeville and musical comedy stars. Flowers and programmes were sold in the lobby and on the sidewalk by a delegation of girls from the chorus of "The Follies of 1911."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Mrs. Leslie Carter will end her present season in "Two Women" at Harrisburg, Penn., next Saturday night. Next season she will go on a Western tour in the same play.

Emma Carus, who is now appearing in vaudeville, will play a star engagement at the Delmar Gardens, St. Louis, in August, in revivals of "Woodland" and "Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway."

Paul Everton has been engaged by the Authors' Producing Company to play the role of Wilbur Emerson in the Western company of "The Gamblers."

Louise Sydmeth, who originated the role of Miss Jane Putnam in "The Earl of Pawtucket" in 1903, has been engaged by John Cort to play the same part in support of Lawrence D'Orsay next season.

On account of the illness of Helen Lowell, Rida Johnson Young's new farce, "Next," produced in New Haven, on Saturday night, will not go to Chicago, this week, as intended originally. Miss Lowell was taken ill on Saturday night, and her physician has forbidden her continuing playing until she has had a rest.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

SHERIDAN IN FORM IN DISCUS THROW

Some sterling athletic performances were seen yesterday at the annual games of the Gaelic League of New York, held at Celtic Park. Probably 4,000 persons witnessed the sport, which attracted some of the best men in the metropolitan district as competitors.

Stellar work was done in the discus-throwing event, which had, among others, as participants Martin J. Sheridan of the Irish-American A. C., the record holder at the game, and Jim Duncan of the Mohawk A. C., who bids fair to give Martin a run in future events, as evidenced by his throwing yesterday.

Marking the initial contest with the Grecian implement this season, the event developed into one of those "near-record" affairs in which the best figures were mighty closely approached. As a matter of fact, Sheridan scaled the missile 139 feet 3 inches, 7½ inches short of his own best mark, while Duncan's best effort netted him a throw of 137 feet 3 inches. The latter, with his handicap of three feet, therefore won the event.

Sheridan's longest throw, which was, unfortunately, a foul by the narrowest of margins, measured 143 feet 10 inches, which was supplemented by one of 143 feet 8 inches. In both instances he was unlucky enough to just get on the foul line, which he overstepped by about half an inch.

John J. Daly, erstwhile champion distance runner of America, and who, incidentally, was in competition when some of his opponents were in swaddling clothes, showed his quality in the steeplechase race, at two miles, a scratch affair, which he won by the length of the stretch in 11:47 1-5. Frank Ruggerio of the Pastime A. C., the former schoolboy title holder, gathered in second prize. Myles McHugh, who formerly essayed to win walking events, took down the novice race, at 600 yards, and certainly showed fine running ability, winning as he pleased in 1:20 1-5. The summary:

100-Yard Dash, Novice.—Won by J. Kirby, unattached; J. Schulheim, Long Island A. C., second; P. Pascale, unattached, third. Time—0:11.

One-Mile Run, Novice.—Won by J. McDermott, Irish-American A. C.; J. Freytas, Good Council A. C., second; C. Bellar, Mohawk A. C., third. Time—4:47.

440-Yard Run, Scratch; Open to Members of the Gaelic League of New York.—Won by W. Lawler, Emerald Gaelic; W. A. Murphy, Emerald Gaelic, second; J. McLaren, Philo Celtic, third. Time—0:60.

880-Yard Run, Scratch.—Won by J. Rosenberger, Irish-American A. C.; Bert Dewar, Irish-American A. C., second; Le Roy Dorland, Pastime A. C., third. Time—0:35 1-5.

600-Yard Run, Novice.—Won by Myles McHugh, Pastime A. C.; J. Gifford, Knights of St. Antony, second; J. Ferraris, unattached, third. Time—1:20 1-5.

Two-Mile Steeplechase, Scratch.—Won by John J. Daly, Irish-American A. C.; F. Ruggerio, Pastime A. C., second; T. E. Nelson, Irish-American A. C., third. Time—11:47 1-5.

Throwing Discus, Handicap.—Won by J. M. Duncan, Mohawk A. C., (3 feet,) with 137 feet 3 inches; Martin J. Sheridan, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) second, with 139 feet 3 inches; H. Doherty, Irish-American A. C., (15 feet,) third, with 110 feet 3 inches. All actual throws.

YALE WORRIED OVER ROWING.

Changes Will Be Made in Make-Up of the Crew.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 21.—"What's the matter with Yale rowing?" is being asked by alumni and undergraduates, but nobody seems to know the answer. It was admitted to-night that some changes would be made in the eight to-morrow, but Capt. Frost said that they were not decided upon.

They will be ordered after a conference with Coach Kennedy to-morrow. The question of stroke oar is a puzzling one, Van Sinderen proving unsatisfactory in the Pennsylvania race at Springfield, and Tucker and Howe being tried the past week also with unsatisfactory results.

There is talk of a return to Van Sinderen to-morrow, as his work has been better than the two later occupants of the seat. The new English stroke, which has been taught by Coach Kennedy the past year, has not brought results, and a change is being debated. Some modifications are likely to be made immediately.

The eight will at once begin direct training for the Harvard four-mile race. It will leave here for Gales Ferry Wednesday week and will have more than four weeks there for the first time. This gives the best opportunity possible for developing a winning eight, and some changes are expected immediately which will give the eight speed and an even keel.

The opponents of Coach Kennedy are insistent that he be removed in case the eight does not prove a winner this year, but nothing official has been discussed in next year's coaching system.

SMITH TAKES LONG RUN.

Pastime Crack Leads Big Field in Seaside A. C. Event.

A big crowd witnessed the performance of Harry Smith of the Pastime A. C., who romped home a winner in the Seaside A. C. seven-and-a-half-mile road run, starting and finishing at Brighton Beach Park, yesterday afternoon. The event was in the nature of a tryout for the big fifteen-mile race scheduled for Memorial Day at the same place. Harry Jensen, also of the Pastimes, took second medal, while the third prize went to the Swedish runner, Alex. Ahlgren, who competed unattached.

The winner's time, 0:43, shows him to be in fine form for the Canadian Marathon, for which he leaves in company with Harry Jensen to-morrow.

The three leaders were a quarter of a mile ahead of the balance of the field at the sixth mile turn, and some spectator directed the balance of the runners in the wrong direction, with the result that they came in led by S. Damanio of the Sheridan A. C., ten minutes behind the leaders.

Vanderbilt Horses Placed.

PARIS, May 21.—W. K. Vanderbilt's horses figured in the money to-day in three stakes at the Longchamps race course. His Belfast was second in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe selling, at ten furlongs, stakes $800. His Mirambo was second in the Prix de l'Esplande, at eleven furlongs, and Brume finished second in the Prix la Rochette, Triennial Stakes, for three-year-old fillies, at eleven furlongs, stake $6,000.

REFEREE SUSTAINED.

Registration Committee Finds Obertubessing Action Justified.

Acting on the protest of the Pennant Athletic Club against the ruling of Herman Obertubessing, who refereed a mismanaged road race of that organization recently, and declared the event void, the Registration Committee, to which the protest was referred, sustained the ruling of the referee, the supreme power in the case. The finding of the committee, composed of Terence Farley, P. J. Walsh, and E. J. Hart, is appended:

The controversy arose by reason of the fact that Mr. Obertubessing, who was the referee at the road run of the Pennant Athletic Club, declared the race "off." He did so because some of the competitors, those who had less than forty seconds handicap, started before he had given the signal to the starter.

The first question which confronted this committee was, whether it had any jurisdiction to review the decision of a Referee, but it became unnecessary to pass upon the question in view of the fact that Mr. Obertubessing, in a spirit of sport and fair play, agreed to leave the matter entirely to this committee.

In view of the fact that all the clubs interested, with the exception of the Morningside A. C., have made a similar request, the committee has reluctantly consented to decide the matter.

It seems to us, in the first place, that the action of the Referee was perfectly proper, and under the circumstances was justified. He might have decided, however, in view of the fact that none of the back-mark men, who started before their turn, came in, that the limit men who started at the proper time, and who finished, are entitled to the prizes.

We think that this is the proper solution of the difficulty. The committee decides that the limit men, those who had more than forty seconds handicap, who started at the proper time, and who finished, are entitled to the prizes.

NOTES OF THE AVIATORS.

Copies of the 1911 year book of the Aero Club of America are ready for distribution. It is the most elaborate volume of the kind ever issued, and contains not only a complete record of the past year's achievements but a vast amount of valuable aviation information. The roster shows a total membership of 499. The club has licensed forty spherical balloon pilots, three dirigible balloon pilots, and twenty-six aviators.

The Royal Aero Club of the United Kingdom has informed the Aero Club of America that it has chosen its own aerodrome at Eastchurch, Isle of Sheppey, as the scene for the cup race on July 1.

The Aero Club of America has instructed W. S. Hogan, one of its representatives in Paris, to make Charles Weymann promise that when the right time comes he will accept the invitation to make one of America's team of three for the international speed race in England on July 1. A few days ago Weymann made a flight at the rate of 100 kilometres an hour in a Nieuport monoplane.

Entries for British aviators for the international aviation championship contest have closed with H. Blackburn, D. Graham Gilmour, O. Grahame-White, C. H. Greswell, G. Hamel, O. C. Morison, Alec Ogilvie, James Radley, T. O. M. Sopwith, and James Valentine. The committee of the Royal Aero Club will select from this list the three representatives of Great Britain. The race will take place on Saturday, July 1 next, and the venue will be announced shortly. The following countries, each represented by three competitors, will take part in the contest: America, Austria, France, Germany, and Great Britain.

The Aero Club of America intends to investigate the report that the latest map of the region of Canada where Alan R. Hawley landed in the international balloon race last year showed that he covered 1,207 miles instead of 1,172 miles credited to him. The new figures would give Mr. Hawley the world's record for the distance.

Charles Foster Willard, one of the earliest fliers in America, will bring his new machine and his new wife to Mineola within two weeks. Mrs. Willard acts as her husband's manager. The new machine has some of the lines of the Curtiss craft, but is rudderless. Willard will conduct experiments at Mineola.

G. F. Campbell Wood, the Secretary of the Aero Club of America, has received from London a number of copies of the book of regulations and conditions of the test governing the Alexander prize competition for aerial motors. The prize is one of $5,000, offered by Patrick Y. Alexander, the English "father of aviation," under the auspices of the Aeronautical Society, the Royal Aero Club, and the Aerial League. The competition is open to all British, colonial, or foreign manufacturers.

If plans that the Aero Club of Rochester have in view materialize, the up-State city will see some of the best-known airmen soaring above the buildings during the Shriners' convention. This club plans to hold a meet at which prizes will be awarded for the best flights of amateurs throughout the country. Walter Johnson, the young Rochester aviator, who has offered to attempt a flight from Charlotte to Genesee Valley Park for a purse of $2,500, will, if President De Long of the Aero Club can arrange it, be given the opportunity to show the Rochester aviation "fans" what it is possible to accomplish in an aeroplane.

Zbyszko to Wrestle Sampson.

The international wrestling match between Zbyszko, the Polish champion, and Paul Sampson, the German giant, which will be decided to-night at the St. Nicholas Rink, Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue, should produce a desperate struggle for supremacy. As Zbyszko sails for Europe to-morrow he is anxious to defeat Sampson decisively. Both men have many followers among their own countrymen, who will be in evidence to witness the struggle between the rival gladiators. Niel Olsen, the clever light-heavyweight Danish wrestler, will also appear against Hans Lehner, the German Hercules, and Young Monday will meet Ignatz Jaranowski of Lode, Poland. The first contest will be staged promptly at 8:15 P. M.

GOSSIP OF THE GOLFERS.

There will be ten moneys in the National open golf championship tournament to be held over the links of the Chicago Golf Club at Wheaton, Ill., June 23 and 24. The winner will receive $300 and a gold medal. The other prizes are as follows: Second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $80; fifth, $70; sixth, $60; seventh, $50; eighth, $40; ninth, $30; tenth, $20. As usual, the competition will be at medal play. Thirty-six holes will be played on June 23, and a like number on the following day, making seventy-two holes in all. Contestants whose scores at the finish of Friday's play exceed by fifteen strokes the tenth place, shall not continue in the competition, nor play in Saturday's rounds. The entrance fee is $5 and must be received by Robert C. Watson, the Secretary, at 51 East Forty-fourth Street, New York City, not later than 6 P. M. on Friday, June 16.

The competitive season of the Sound Beach Golf and Country Club will begin on Saturday, May 27 and continue until the end of September. A home-and-home team match has been arranged with the New Canaan Golf Club. On July 22 the opposing forces will muster at Sound Beach, while on Aug. 12 the scene will shift to New Canaan. Matches have also been arranged with the Wee Burn Golf Club, the first at Sound Beach on July 29 and the second at Stamford on Aug. 19. The club championship at thirty-six holes medal play will be decided on Sept. 23.

Foursome at Van Cortlandt Park.

A golf match of unusual interest will be played at Van Cortlandt Park links this afternoon between the two well-known professionals, Gilbert Nichols and Tom Anderson, and two former caddies, Frank Hunt and Joe Silvester. The foursome was arranged because of the unusually fine form the two youngsters displayed on the links recently. Young Silvester is the Greater New York champion, having won the Herald Cup last Autumn. Gil Nichols holds the professional record of the course, 68, and Anderson has played it close to these figures. A number of enthusiasts have raised a purse for the winners of the foursome.

BOXING CLUBS PLAN FOR A BUSY WEEK

Third Battle Between Knockout Brown and Tommy Murphy Heads List.

In spite of the recent announcement that the fire authorities had taken drastic action against most of the fight clubs in Greater New York, issuing orders which threatened to close several of the clubs on account of their lack of exits, there seems to be no let up in the activity of the clubs, and with one exception every organization which has conducted shows during the Winter months has arranged for shows this week. The one exception is the Whirlwind A. C. of Brooklyn, which seems to have passed out of existence two weeks ago after financial difficulties following the Murphy-Brown bout and special orders from the fire authorities.

The principal bout scheduled for this week will be the clash between Tommy Murphy and Knockout Brown, which takes place before the Madison A. C. on Thursday evening. It will be the third fight in which the two lightweights have figured, and each claims one victory. Brown's ranking in the lightweight division, which soared to the top of the ladder after his two matches with Champion Ad Wolgast, suffered a considerable slide downward after his recent bout with Murphy, two weeks ago, and the east side boy has much prestige at stake in this bout. Murphy's success in this bout has again set the championship bee buzzing in Tommy's mind and a victory means equally as much to him as to Brown.

Both have taken up their hard training and each figures that the recent encounter has just about put him on edge to do better work than before. Brown went to Savin Rock, just outside New Haven, Saturday afternoon, to finish his training in the camp where Willie Lewis, Frankie Burns, Tommy Houck and others have prepared for hard battles. The coming bout means so much that Manager Danny Morgan decided that a change from the Boys' Club, where Brown has always trained for previous bouts, would be most advisable. Special attention will be devoted to Brown's right hand in the hope of making that seldom used member a strong weapon of offense. Murphy is training at his old quarters at Sheepshead Bay where he got into such fine condition for his last bout. A defeat means the retirement of either boy from the race for championship honors.

Conflicting with this show will be another bout between two of the cleverest boxers of Greater New York, Young Ahearn, the Brooklyn Dancing Master, and Jack Goodman of the west side, at the Twentieth Century Athletic Club Thursday night. This will also be a return engagement, the pair having come together a month ago before the Whirlwind Athletic Club of Brooklyn. The bout resulted in a darw after ten rounds of fast boxing. Since that time Ahearn has been busy with several bouts up the State, and Goodman figured in one bout, which was a decisive victory over Tommy Maloney. They fought at catchweights before, but for the coming match they will make 140 pounds, weigh in at 9 o'clock.

At the National Sporting Club Friday night Tom O'Rourke's white hope carnival will be held. It is announced that twenty entries have been received, and it is planned to have at least eight bouts. The candidates for recognition to the white hope class range in weight from 200 to 275 pounds and in height from 6 feet to 6 feet 7 inches.

At the Olympic Athletic Club to-night Paddy Sullivan, the Fighting Irishman, and Young Nitchie, the Philadelphia lightweight, will do the honors in the main bout, substituting for Cy Smith and One-Round Hogan. The latter bout was called off by Hogan. Philly Carmine and Battling Kiddy will clash in the semi-final of six rounds.

Sullivan will also figure in the star bout at the Sharkey Athletic Club Wednesday evening, his opponent being Young Sam Langford, the clever colored fighter. Richy Ryan and Joe Farmer will come together in the semi-final.

The Colin Athletic Club, Brooklyn's only fight club since the Whirlwind Athletic Club closed its doors, will be in session to-night with a ten-round bout between Young O'Leary, the east side bantam, and Jimmy Dunn, as principals in the main attraction.

The Long Acre Athletic Club will hold its usual show on Thursday night, and the Fairmont, Sharkey, and Long Acre Clubs will hold the usual week-end stags Saturday night.

AMATEUR BOXING TOURNEY.

Winged Fist Club to Conclude Season with Contests This Week.

The final novice boxing and wrestling tournament under the auspices of the Irish-American Athletic Club in their clubhouse, 110 East Fifty-ninth Street, which will be held to-morrow and Thursday evenings, has attracted a large and well assorted list of entries. Almost every club in the Metropolitan Association has entered full teams. As a fitting ending to a successful season of amateur boxing entertainments the club has decided to give this show at very reasonable prices.

The amateur athletic clubs have all secured blocks of seats for the preliminaries and finals in order that they may be on hand to root and encourage their clubmates to victory. Owing to the lateness of the season the club has decided to install electric fans in order that those who are in attendance will witness the entertainment in comfort and the warm and stuffy atmosphere which is so prevalent in many of the boxing clubs of New York City will be missing.

Walsh to Box Kilbane.

BOSTON, Mass., May 21.—Jimmy Walsh of Boston, claimant of the international bantamweight title, has accepted terms of the Standard Athletic Club of Canton, Ohio, to box Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland twelve rounds on Memorial Day. Kilbane has agreed to weigh not more than 12[illegible] pounds at 6 o'clock on the evening of the day of the contest.

Harlem Yacht Club Opening Race.

Twenty different classes of yachts have been provided for by the Regatta Committee of the Harlem Yacht Club in their schedule of starts for the twenty-ninth annual regatta which is to be sailed on Memorial Day on Long Island Sound, starting at 1 o'clock off Execution Light. This will be the opening race of the season of 1911 on the Sound and the first championship race sailed under the rules of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound. The race is open to all the regular classes of sloops, yawls, and catboats up to and including 38 feet racing measurement, all special classes, one-design classes, and the Handicap Yacht Racing Class. There are three triangular courses measuring 11, 9, and 6 miles respectively. Entries close at noon on May 29 with Walter Sullivan, 221 East Fifty-eighth Street, New York. It is high water at Execution Rock at 12:40 P. M. on May 30.

NOBLE WINS MATCH RACE.

The first set of monthly members' games of the Mott Haven Athletic Club were held yesterday on the Mott Haven Oval. In addition to the events for the members, two special features were added to the programme. The first was an exhibition high jump by E. Jennings of the Pastime Athletic Club, and the other a match race between D. Noble, formerly of the New York Athletic Club, but now running unattached, and S. J. Reilly of the Irish-American Athletic Club.

The match race was three-quarters of a mile, and Noble was forced to extend himself all the way in order to win from the speedy Winged Fistite. Noble held the lead from the start, but was never able to get enough advantage to allow him to feel safe, and in the last quarter it was a give-and-take battle, but the leader managed to get over the finish first by a small margin.

G. S. Wilcox, who started from the post of honor in the half-mile handicap, ran one of the best races ever witnessed on the club oval. After overtaking two handicap men in the last lap, Wilcox came up with a sprint and won by almost ten yards.

The one-mile handicap also furnished good sport, and after allowing marks ranging up to 70 yards, F. Foran, who was placed on the back mark, made a sensational attempt for the honors, but was beaten by one of the limit men. R. Schringer, with a mark of 70 yards, after leading all the way, won from Foran by a small margin. The summaries:

65-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by A. Stern, (scratch;) J. Shanda, (6 feet,) second; T. R. Mumford, (5 feet,) third. Time—0:07.

300-Yard Run, Novice.—Won by W. Beck; M. Garren, second; J. Scheffold, third. Time—0:37.

880-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by G. S. Wilcox, (scratch;) M. Garren, (20 yards,) second; W. Burke, (20 yards,) third. Time—2:09 3-5.

Three-quarter-Mile Invitation Match Race Between D. Noble, unattached, and S. J. Reilly, Irish-American A. C.—Won by D. Noble; S. J. Reilly, second. Time—3:17.

One-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by R. Schringer, (70 yards;) F. Foran, (scratch,) second; J. Holden, (35 yards,) third. Time—4:30.

Running High Jump, Handicap.—Won by F. Ryan, (14 inches,) actual jump 5 feet 2 inches; L. Rheinish, (10 inches,) actual jump 5 feet 3 inches, second; C. Martens, (1 inch,) actual jump 5 feet 11 inches, third.

Entries for Women's Golf.

Miss Lillian B. Hyde, the title holder, entered last night, which means that the South Shore Field Club girl will start in the championship tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association on the links of the Scarsdale Golf and Country Club to-day. There are forty-one entries in all, but Mrs. E. F. Sanford, the Secretary of the association, has decided not to start. She will have charge of the starting of the players.

The first pair, Miss F. Gwyer of Siwanoy and Mrs. C. F. Ueblacker of Hackensack, will tee up at 10 o'clock. Miss Hyde will drive off at 10:30 in company with Mrs. M. D. Paterson, President of the association. There will be an eighteen-hole medal round to-day, and those making the first sixteen will qualify to continue on at match play for the title. The pairings follow.

10:00—Miss F. Gwyer and Mrs. C. F. Ueblacker.

Final Pool Tournament.

Alfredo De Oro of this city and Charles Weston of Chicago will play for the pool championship at Doyle's Forty-second Street Academy on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights of this week. This will be the final match of the season among the pool experts. Advices from Chicago, where Weston has been practicing, show the challenger to be in excellent form, and as De Oro fears the cowboy more than any one else in his line a great game is expected. It was Weston who first defeated Thomas Hueston when the latter was in his prime and considered invincible. As De Oro occupies the same position in the estimation of many of the pool enthusiasts now we may have history repeating itself. During the early part of the week Weston will play practice games with amateurs at Doyle's.

Special Train for Indianapolis.

A special train of compartment sleeping cars, buffet cars, diners, and a library car will leave the Grand Central Station next Sunday for the 500-mile international sweepstake race, which takes place on the Motor Speedway in Indianapolis on Tuesday, May 30. Aboard it will be most of New York's delegatiton of motorists to the big Decoration Day event. The train will be parked near the track and will be used as a hotel for the nights that it will remain in Indianapolis. The special will leave immediately after the race, and reach this city again on Wednesday evening.

Bronx Tennis Championship.

Lincoln Reimer, a former interscholastic champion of Columbia, and Walter A. Hazard worked their way up to the fourth round of the Bronx lawn tennis championship singles yesterday on the courts of the Bedford Park Club at Mosholu Parkway. In each match three sets of slashing playing was necessary before the experts arrived in the round before the semi-finals. The summary follows:

Bronx Men's Championship Singles.—First Round—Frederick C. Baggs defeated J. Oskinson, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Second Round—J. F. Cameron defeated Norman G. Johnson by default; Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated H. J. Fitzpatrick, 6—1, 7—5; W. M. Washburn defeated Robert Stantial, 6—1, 6—2; Ralph L. Baggs defeated H. C. Skinner, 6—4, 6—3.

Third Round—Lincoln Reimer defeated Dr. Benjamin F. Drake, 2—6, 6—1, 6—3; Walter A. Hazard defeated J. F. Cameron, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4.

WHO KNOWS LOSES BRUSH TO ARDELLE

Hot Spell Kept Trotting Sport at a Low Ebb on the Speedway Drive.

Owing to the hot spell yesterday many of the horsemen contented themselves with jogging their horses rather than putting them through trying brushes. The teams were out early in anticipation of some good sport, and many were put through trial heats before the scheduled time had arrived, but when it was time only a few were willing to enter into competition.

The first brush brought together Walter Edelmyer, driving his green trotter Todd Swift, and T. W. Bassett with Baron Direct. In both the brushes the latter showed the way for the greater part of the distance, but lacked the necessary staying qualities, and was beaten by the trotter.

The interest of the spectators was centred on the resumption of the brush of last week between Christopher Hackett's black pacing gelding Who Knows and the new addition to the Murphy stable, Ardelle, which lowered the colors of the black pacer, which has held the upper hand in the pacing division of the Speedway. After one brush, in which Mr. Murphy led Mr. Hackett to the wire, Who Knows disappeared. Ardelle was driven several heats alone after being unable to secure an opponent.

The Horn brothers amused themselves and also the spectators when they brushed between themselves with Dr. Eddie and Bobbie H. They came together for two heats, and both were well contested, but Dr. Eddie proved to be the better of the pair, and won both starts. Later on the two brothers with another starter, Theodore Young, who drove his black gelding C. C., entered into a three-cornered brush. In the opening event the stranger proved to be the best and beat the Horn entries handily. In the two succeeding brushes Dr. Eddie showed his worth, and led the way in both heats and took the honors.

"Spark" Sullivan appeared on the drive with a fast trotter which he said was Ben Dat. In a three-cornered race the newcomer finished second to Ardelle, when the latter was driven by Jesse Smith, and Clover Patch was third.

E. Shoemaker's trotter, Dick Williams, was good enough yesterday to beat Hugh Relley's Octavio in a heat, and in the repeat the latter pulled up at the quarter and failed to continue the brush. Perhaps the greatest surprise was when Walter S. Edelmyer's young trotter, Bright Axworthy, won two heats from the Speedway's favorite trotter, W. C. Urban's Judge Boardman, the latter making repeated breaks.

In the absence of Mr. Straus, Trainer Tim Sullivan drove Denver, his only race being against Robbie B. McGregor. There were two heats, and in both M. C. Reynolds, behind Robbie, made a gallant effort to beat the Straus trotter, but his horse broke at critical points, and could not put up a good fight, as he did last Sunday. June Bug, 2:11¼, the new pacer which John Lawrence of Hoboken is driving, showed much improvement yesterday, and easily won two heats from J. C. Farr's Ophelia Direct, also a newcomer. Dr. Ferster was late with his pacer Strathino, but found Thomas C. Harper ready with George Patchen, 2:08¼. The pair had two heats, both of which went to the Ferster horse, Patchen being among those making breaks.

Crippled Children's Auto Outing.

The annual outing of the crippled children to the Crescent Athletic Club grounds at Bay Ridge and Luna Park will be held to-morrow. Wyckoff, Church & Partridge, as in former years, will furnish cars for the children. The start will be made from Broadway and Fifty-sixth Street at 9:30 A. M.

ALLIANCE ATHLETIC GAMES.

Twenty-five Events and 250 Competitors at Columbia Oval.

The annual outdoor games of the Educational Alliance were held yesterday morning at Columbia Oval, Williamsbridge, with upward of 250 competitors in the twenty-five events. The programme was divided into three divisions—senior, middle, and junior—in each of which the various clubs of the organization competed for the point trophy. Both field and track events were included in the competition, the seniors taking part in eleven events, the middle class in eight, and the juniors in six. Following are the results in the three divisions, according to clubs:

Senior.—Alliance Friendship Club, 37; Young Americans, 30; Irvings, 24; Warpoes, 9; Princeton, 8; American Boys, 4; Gideons, 3; Baron de Hirschs, 3; Wellingtons, 2.

Harlem E. H. S. Annual Games.

The Harlem Evening High School held its annual games yesterday at Macomb's Dam Park, and although only four events were contested they resulted in some good sport, being closely contested throughout. The feature event was the 440-yard handicap run, which was captured by L. Livingston from the back mark. The winner allowed liberal handicaps to the field, but timed his work in each lap and on entering the stretch was at the heels of the leader, whom he easily managed to beat with a strong sprint. His time for the distance was 0:55. The summary:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by J. Doyle, (8 yards;) J. Dudley, (6 yards,) second; A. Gorham, (2 yards,) third. Time—0:10 3-5.

440-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by L. Livingston, (scratch;) L. La Beek, (8 yards,) second; W. Tandler, (10 yards,) third. Time—0:55.

One-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by W. O'Donnell, (175 yards;) W. Lynch, (25 yards,) second; J. Manning, (scratch,) third. Time—4:45.

Putting 12-Pound Shot.—Won by M. Krauss, with a put of 27 feet 11 inches; J. Kelly, with a put of 25 feet 5 inches, second; H. Hess, with a put of 25 feet 2¼ inches, third.

Mitchell
A Remarkable Touring Car
THE Mitchell Model T 5-passenger touring car is a remarkable production, in every part and detail the result of tests, suggestions and general knowledge of thousands of drivers, dealers, mechanics and others of practical experience. It is a family car for city or country, of maximum service, simple construction and operation, low upkeep cost and attractive up-to-date lines. It will carry a full load over all roads as fast as safety will permit.
IN the 30 H.P. 4-cylinder motor of the Model T every precaution has been taken to eliminate noise and wear. The wheelbase of 112 inches brings easy riding and comfort when touring, and yet is not too long for handy turning in city traffic. The motor is so flexible that gear shifting is reduced to a minimum. The body is of the four-door type, with the foredoor easily detached. The spring suspension and upholstery are such as to provide the most comfortable riding. 34x4 inch tires are used on both front and rear wheels.

Enjoy a Cape Cod Vacation

You'll have cool breezes all the time. For every breeze that blows over Cape Cod is an ocean breeze, refreshing and invigorating. No sweltering under a hot land breeze.

You can play golf here to your heart's content. Fine courses at Woods Hole, Osterville, Hyannisport and Yarmouth.

And think of the pleasure of cruising around the harbors and bays in a Cape Cod catboat or a motor boat!

The waters of Cape Cod and Buzzards Bay are the haunts of the bluefish, the sea bass, the scup and the tautog. You'll have the best fishing you've ever had. No doubt about that.

You'll enjoy the perfection of bathing on sandy beaches, free of seaweed and undertow. The water's warmed by the Gulf Stream.

"Quaint Cape Cod" and "Buzzards Bay" are two beautifully illustrated books. Read these books before you decide where to go. They're free. Address Advertising Bureau, Room 660, South Station, Boston, Mass. For Tickets and other information apply to City Ticket Office.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, bearing date the 15th day of May, 1911, and entered and filed in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York, May 16, 1911, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 12th day of June, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Bryan L. Kennelly, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot of land, situate in the Borough of the Bronx, City of New York being part of Lots Nos. 23 and 24 on a certain map entitled "Map of Mount Pleasant" being a subdivision of Plots 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the Abraham Bassford Estate, in the Village of Tremont, Westchester County, New York, filed in the office of the Register of the County of Westchester, January 25th, 1871, and being bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the northerly side of Burnside Avenue, distant 90.91 feet westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the said northerly side of Burnside Avenue and the westerly side of Bassford Place as shown on said map, (now as widened, Ryer Avenue;) thence northerly parallel with Ryer Avenue, 73.71 feet; thence westerly at right angles with Ryer Avenue 24 feet; thence southerly parallel with Ryer Avenue 58.03 feet to the northerly side of Burnside Avenue; thence easterly along the northerly side of Burnside Avenue 28.71 feet to the point or place of beginning.

Dated, New York, May 19th, 1911.
JAMES OLIVER, Referee.
SAMUEL CROOK, Attorney for Plaintiff, 93 Nassau Street, Manhattan, New York City.

The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold, is four thousand one hundred ninety-six and sixty-seven one-hundredths dollars, ($4,196.67,) with interest thereon from May 6th, 1911, together with costs and allowance amounting to two hundred and thirty-nine and ninety-one one-hundredths dollars, ($239.91,) with interest from May 6, 1911, together with the expenses of sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments and water rates or other liens, which are to be paid by the Referee out of the purchase money, is ninety-three and thirty-seven one-hundredths dollars, ($93.37,) and interest.

Dated, New York, May 19th, 1911.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.—UNION DIME SAVINGS BANK, Plaintiff, against ANDREW J. LARKIN and Others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 27th day of April, 1911, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City and County of New York, on the 1st day of June, 1911, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Herbert A. Sherman, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain plot, piece, or parcel of land, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the westerly side of St. Nicholas Avenue, (formerly called 11th Avenue,) distant one hundred and forty-five (145) feet and 5-100 of a foot northerly from the point on the westerly side of St. Nicholas Avenue at which the northerly side of Wadsworth Avenue joins said westerly side of St. Nicholas Avenue, said distance being measured along the westerly side of St. Nicholas Avenue on a curve of a radius of three hundred and forty (340) feet, which said point of beginning is also distant ten thousand two hundred and nine (10,209) feet and 96-100 of a foot north of the southerly side of 155th Street; and from said point of beginning running thence westerly parallel with the northerly side of 190th Street one hundred and fifty-three (153) feet and 4-100 of a foot; thence still westerly on a curve tangent to the last course, curving toward the south, and with a radius of one hundred and thirty-eight (138) feet and 17-100 of a foot, eighty-eight (88) feet and 62-100 of a foot; thence continuing southwesterly on a tangent to the last-mentioned course thirty-five (35) feet and 33-100 of a foot; thence northwesterly at right angles with the last-mentioned course fifty-nine (59) feet and 45-100 of a foot, more or less, to lands now or formerly of Isaac Dyckman; thence easterly along said lands, now or formerly of Isaac Dyckman, three hundred and one (301) feet 11-100 of a foot, more or less, to the westerly side of St. Nicholas Avenue, and thence southerly along the westerly side of St. Nicholas Avenue fourteen (14) feet and 42-100 of a foot, more or less, to the point or place of beginning.

SUMNER GERARD, Referee.

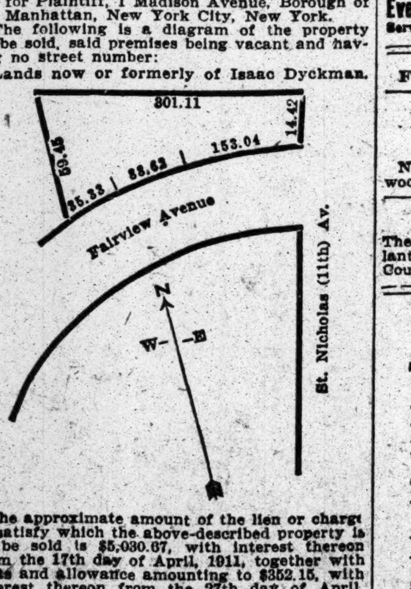
The following is a diagram of the property to be sold, said premises being vacant and having no street number:

Lands now or formerly of Isaac Dyckman.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $5,030.67, with interest thereon from the 17th day of April, 1911, together with costs and allowance amounting to $352.15, with interest from the 27th day of April, 1911, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is $5,746.06 and interest.

Dated New York, May 8th, 1911.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Temperatures have not changed materially in the Eastern States, but have fallen considerably in the Upper Mississippi Valley and the Plains States, and have risen in the Rocky Mountai nand Plateau regions. The indications are that there will be a continuation of showers Monday and Tuesday in the East Gulf States, Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, and the Lake region, and Monday in the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys. In the Eastern States, temperatures will not change materially, and the weather will be generally fair Monday and Tuesday, although there are some indications of local thundershowers.

The winds along the New England Coast will be light south and southwest; Middle Atlantic Coast, light variable, mostly south; South Atlantic Coast and Gulf Coast, light variable. Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have moderate south and southwest winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS, TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

New England, East New York, New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania.—Probably fair Monday and Tuesday; not much change in temperature; light, variable winds, mostly south.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

Margin of Safety in Investments

The wise investment of money is not simply a question of safety; nor, on the other hand, is it merely a matter of income. It is in reality a combination of the two.

While it is impossible to present any fixed rule, it is generally laid down by experts as an axiom that when a bond issue represents from one-half to one-third the true value of a property mortgaged, then the margin of security is ample.

If, moreover, the income applicable to interest charges on a given bond issue is from two to three times the annual requirement, then the margin of earnings is ample.

If, in addition, the bonds yield approximately 5 per cent. and have a reasonably broad market, then they combine:

1. Safety as to principal.
2. Liberality of income.
3. Convertibility into cash.
4. Opportunity for profit.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

It is not to be expected that the general business of the country will offer any such sudden response to the decision rendered by the Supreme Court on Monday last in the Standard Oil case as was made by the stock market, but it cannot reasonably be questioned that business as well as financial affairs will derive great encouragement from that decision. On the Stock Exchange the immediate effect of the interpretation put by the Suprme Court on the Sherman Anti-Trust act was the complete abandonment of the lethargy which, with little interruption, had been shown for many weeks. Not only did the stock market become much more active than it had been at any time since February last, when the denial of rate increases to the railroads was for a time the controlling influence in the market, but along with activity came a forward movement in prices which carried the average level of both railroad and industrial issues to the highest point of the year. By no means all of the buying which brought about this sudden change in the market's position represented fresh purchases for the long account, for undoubtedly short covering contributed largely to the upturn in prices, but there was enough of this kind of buying to make it very clear that the rendering of the decision in the Standard Oil case and the interpretation which that decision put upon the Sherman law have encouraged many to enter the market who had long been withholding from it. Proof of this was found not only in the character of the operations themselves, but also in the diversified and increased demand for money for use on the Stock Exchange, a demand which brought a substantial increase in interest rates. It was not until the third day after the announcement of the decision that the stock market halted in its forward movement. Even then such reaction as occurred was slight, compared with the extent of the improvement which had taken place from Tuesday morning until Thursday afternoon. Whether or not a little too much enthusiasm was displayed by those who brought about the advance which occurred, and who worked for even still higher prices during the week, is a debatable question, but this much is beyond reasonable dispute, that the interpretation which has now been put upon the Sherman law fully warranted a more cheerful stock market, as well as the hope that the favorable influence of this decision will before very long be manifesting itself in the general business of the country. Possibly the extent of the advance, at least in some stocks, has represented a too sudden discounting of the advantages to accrue in the future from this decision, but, on the other hand, it may be confidently expected that the importance of the decision to the business community will become more and more apparent as time goes on. It really means a very great deal to the great business undertakings of the country and to business men generally that the Supreme Court has held that there is no prohibition in the law against those "reasonable restraints" of trade, or rather of competition, which are in many cases a necessary accompaniment of industrial or commercial enterprise on a scale commensurate with the resources and commercial opportunities of this country.

Those who cavil at the decision on the score that it does not clearly draw the dividing line between what is reasonable and unreasonable in the way of restraint of trade, and who, therefore, argue that the decision leaves the business of the country practically where it was before the decision was rendered, choose, in taking this course, to pick the chaff and leave the wheat. The reason the impending decisions in the Standard Oil case and in the Tobacco case, which latter still remains to be decided, and the uncertainty which existed regarding the real meaning of the Sherman law were a restrictive influence upon all large business undertakings was the dread that great business undertakings, no matter how honestly handled and no matter how scrupulously they might adhere to recognized business morals, might yet be declared to be criminal combinations under the Sherman law. That dread is dispelled by the decision handed down by Chief Justice White on Monday last. It is inevitable that the business of the country should feel the favorable influence of this change. An obstacle to business expansion, which would have held trade and manufacture in check even though all other factors had favored business expansion, has been lifted, and a chance is thus afforded for the favorable elements in the situation to exert their normal influence. There are other restrictive influences which still remain to be cleared away or mitigated, but these do not in the immediate situation rank in importance with the uncertainty regarding the Sherman law which has been lifted by the decision rendered a week ago. Tariff discussion and political interference with business are still elements in the situation which confront the business of the United States, but the former at least is causing less disquiet than in the past.

This great change for the better in the relation of the law to large business undertakings comes at a time when in many respects conditions are highly favorable for a recovery in business. We are entering upon the season when some lessening of the volume of trade, even in active times, would be normal, and it may be that the Summer period may have its usual effect this year, but this is by no means certain, and it may well be that even before the crops are harvested general business will enter upon a recovery which from many points of view seems to be warranted by underlying conditions. The progress of the season has brought no impairment, but rather betterment, in the general crop outlook. Most sections of the country had last week the weather needed for the normal development of the farms, and average conditions from this time on assure to the country a most gratifying harvest. Money became firmer at this centre last week, but is still abundantly easy. Stocks of merchandise the country over, with few exceptions, are small, and merchants are undoubtedly in a position to embark confidently upon expansion in their business so soon as consumption shows signs of increasing. For the first time in several weeks the steel trade organs reported some increase in the volume of new business, with the significant feature that the railroads were contributing a larger proportion than in the recent past to the orders which are being entered on the books of the steel manufacturers. This, following the previous week's record of increase in retail trade, suggests the beginning of improvement, which can be set down as a hopeful sign, even though it be necessary to accept it with some reserve.

The report of the country's foreign commerce for the month of April deserves more than passing attention. It shows both that the very gratifying increase in the country's exports was still under way last month and that the economizing by the people, which some months back put a check upon unduly large imports, was still exerting its influence. The volume of merchandise exported in April exceeded any previous record for that month, going slightly beyond the previous high mark of April, 1907, and exceeding last year's April exports by nearly $25,000,000. Imports, on the other hand, were smaller than in three out of the last four years, and as compared with April, 1910, showed a decline of over $13,000,000. In place of an excess of imports of $811,000 in April a year ago we had last month a credit trade balance of $37,876,000. This is a most gratifying showing, even though some previous Aprils had shown a larger excess of exports. It is particularly satisfactory in view of the falling off which occurred last month in the country's exports of cotton. The full trade statement for April was, indeed, much more favorable than had been suggested by the earlier statement of agricultural exports, which, though larger than those of April a year ago, fell below those of many earlier years, owing largely to the dropping off in the exports of cotton, which earlier in the season had gone out in very large volume. Not the least favorable feature of this trade showing is that it contributes just so much more to the credits which this country has been establishing in Europe. While we have been drawing down our balances abroad our position in reference to the foreign money markets is more favorable than it has been at any time in years. This position of advantage cannot be lost except in the event of a wholesale return to this market of American securities. That is an unlikely occurrence, and there is assurance that our relations to the foreign markets will continue to supply the reserve strength which they are now contributing to this money market.

Formal announcement by the Treasury last week of the long expected issue of $50,000,000 of Panama Canal 3 per cent. bonds draws attention to a really interesting resort by this country to the open investment market in place of appealing to the special market provided for former issues of United States bonds, which were made available for circulation and which, therefore, appealed only to those purchasers who could use the circulation privilege, namely, the National banks. Low as is the interest rate compared with the interest carried by prime investments of other classes, the success of the issue seems amply assured. The securities of no other Government are on a 3 per cent. basis, and yet the advance bids being made for this offering of United States 3 per cent. bonds indicate that the issue will command a substantial premium. It will be a gratifying event if a large portion of these bonds go directly into the hands of individual and other permanent investors. The object lesson of the placing of an issue of United States bonds on a purely investment basis will not be without its influence in the direction of encouraging permanent departure from an artificial market for this Government's bonds predicated on the unscientific use of these bonds as a basis of circulation. The forthcoming issue happily carries no circulation privilege and their market will be established and maintained on a purely investment basis, modified only to the extent to which Government bonds may be accepted as security for Government deposits to the exclusion of bonds of other classes.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

BOURSE BUOYANT.

Markets Close Strong, Especially Rio Tintos—Outlook Favorable.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 21.—Last Monday's hopeful outlook was fully borne out. Throughout the past week practically all markets maintained a firm tone. Rio Tintos were the biggest feature, gaining over 20 points, and remaining strong till the close. Philadelphia, which is comparatively new on the Bourse, was also buoyant.

The bad news from London caused a slump in rubber, which closed at the lowest price for eighteen months.

Despite Moroccan news, it is the general belief that conditions are likely to remain favorable for business this week.

OIL DECISION RULED BOERSE.

Prices, Especially for Americans, Advanced Upon Its Announcement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 21.—The Boerse last week was completely dominated by the Standard Oil decision, which made a favorable impression, because it ended a long period of uncertainty.

Prices, especially for Americans, advanced perceptibly, and the market became firmer than it has been for several weeks past. Operations, however, were limited, owing to the buying public still maintaining an attitude of reserve.

Money continues easy.

Oil Decision Creates Roseate View in London and Stimulates Markets.

LONDON, May 21.—The Supreme Court's Standard Oil decision last Monday made the week a propitious one for the Stock Exchange, which experienced both better business and better prices. Financial authorities take a roseate view of the future, with favorable conditions in America as a chief factor in the auspicious outlook. One of London's most highly considered financial writers enumerates the most promising elements in the American situation as cheapness of money, leading to a strong demand for bonds, the existence of a considerable bear account, excellent crop prospects, and finally the continued favorable balance of American trade.

Both the Statist and Economist reflect the optimistic feeling predominant in Capel Court.

STEEL SCRAP SALES MAKE NEW RECORD

Largest Deal in Last Two Years —Price Said to Augur Well for Basic Iron Market.

NO SHADING IN BESSEMER

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 21.—From pig iron and crude steel, the market activity changed to steel scrap during the week. The largest single sale of scrap put through in two years was negotiated, by which the Pittsburg Steel Company took 11,000 tons of heavy melting steel scrap, paying $13, delivered at its works forty miles out of Pittsburg. A second independent steel interest took 5,000 tons more of heavy melting scrap, making a record week in that market, while pig iron almost stood still.

Pig-iron men declare the advanced price paid for scrap last week on these two sales (heavy melting scrap has sold at $12.60 to $12.75 during the past month) augurs well for the basic iron market. Basic generally paces heavy melting steel in price changes, since both are used in the making of open-hearth steel, often in almost equal quantities. Basic iron dropped from $13.75 to about $13.20 at Valley furnace during the three weeks following the recent 50-cent cut in Lake Superior ore prices.

The low prices of ten days ago at Valley furnaces have not brought out any new demand for basic, however, and it is hard to see how the present stagnant condition of buying could bring any price improvement. Stocks of basic have not accumulated since the first of the month, though there has been some accumulation of foundry iron at Valley furnaces. Practically all the resale basic is off the market, and producers have things pretty much in their own hands.

Consumers started out early in the week to feel the market in Bessemer iron, hoping for some sign of the predicted break from the $15 price. There had been rumors of sales of Bessemer at a shade under $15 by Valley furnace interests. A thorough canvass of the producers in this district, however, failed to show any price weakness, and the negotiations subsided without bona-fide sales being reported. There are some exchange deals pending in Bessemer, on the basis of ore-for-iron and billets for iron, but no definite price levels seem likely to be established for a week or two in actual open market sales at flat figures.

A good part of the iron industry is preparing to take a week off, beginning to-morrow, for the entertainment of the National Foundrymen's Association and the Brass Founders, who hold their annual convention in Pittsburg beginning Tuesday. An extensive exhibition of foundry and machine appliances has been provided and upward of 1,500 foundrymen will be here for the convention, the proceedings of which will be largely technical. The visitors will spend considerable time visiting iron and steel plants.

The bi-monthly settlement of the wage scale for puddling mills, on the basis of the sales sheets in bar iron, attracted some attention during the week by the unexpectedly low price average for the last two months as revealed by the sales sheets. Against an average realized price for refined iron bars of 1.35c. for the January-February period, the settlement on the March-April sheets showed an average of between 1.25c. and 1.30c., which reduces the wages of the puddlers 12½ cents to $5.62½ per ton, the lowest wage paid for puddling under the sliding scale in twenty months. It is said that the price averages by Western mills, particularly in Chicago district, where there has been much shading, were responsible for the poor showing, and that Pittsburg mills had a much higher realized price than the settlement sheets show for the entire Western Bar Iron Association.

These low prices for iron bars have had their effect on the merchant bar market, and though there was no decision at last Tuesday's meeting of manufacturers of soft steel bars, held in New York, on the question of an official cut on the present official base price of 1.40c., Pittsburg, the question is likely to come up again in a few weeks, for the agricultural implement interests, who are on the eve of contracting for their twelve months' supply for the period beginning July 1, have declared they must have a better price than 1.40c. on bars. That was the price basis for the agricultural implement contracts for the twelve months just ending.

Billets and other lines of crude steel continue to hold more firmly to official prices than was anticipated. Output is being curtailed to the bare consumptive demands of the trade in crude steel, this being easy to estimate on the basis of current operation of the independent finishing mills. Two small sales of Bessemer billets were made during the week, on both of which the price was $23, mill, which has been the open market quotation since early in the year.

Sheet mills find demand slightly better, and the hot weather of the last ten days has cut down the outputs of the sheet and tin plate plants from the normal Winter tonnages. The exports trade continues to be a feature of the sheet steel trade. Prices in sheets are a little better held, while in tin plate, for the first time in nearly two years, slight shading is reported by some of the smaller independents.

Railroads are taking deliveries of rails on first-of-the-year reservations in larger lots than was anticipated, and two of the trunk line systems already have intimated to the railmakers that they probably would increase their reservations before the close of the Summer. The Edgar Thomson plant of the Carnegie Steel Company last week actually booked more rail orders than would run the plant at total capacity for six days; but the buying included another 20,000 tons of standards for export. Car plants are slackening output, the chief new business in steel cars that has developed during the last fortnight having been in passenger and other coaches rather than freight cars. Part of this business is helped along by the Government's decision in the matter of steel underframe coaches for mail cars.

The Panama Canal continues to furnish large tonnages for steel lines. A Youngstown (Ohio) independent concern has taken the contract for supplying 50,000 feet of three-inch pipe to the Panama Commission, the seller underbidding the Steel Corporation by a 4 per cent. margin. The steel foundry of the Pennsylvania Steel Company, at Steelton, is furnishing 3,000 tons of castings for the canal work. Shipments of structural material and plates for the locks and lock gates are being made from Pittsburg by the independent structural interest that obtained the structural contract a year ago.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

The decision of the Supreme Court and Justice Harlan's dissent are reprinted in full to-day in THE NEW YORK TIMES WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW, which contains also a number of opinions of prominent men as to its effect upon business.

The plan of Chancellor Lloyd-George for workingmen's insurance in England is carefully set out in a special article, with the cost of such a system to our own large corporations estimated. The new credit bureau of the New Jersey banks, the subsidy policies of Canada, and the South American States, and the practices of savings banks regarding various kinds of accounts are described in other interesting articles.

OIL CASE AND BUSINESS.

Head of Marshall Field & Co. Says it Will Increase Confidence.

THE NEW YORK TIMES published in its business section yesterday telegrams from a number of leading bankers and heads of large business interests in the West, the general tenor of which was that the ending of uncertainty over the Standard Oil suit had already noticeably improved business. Other replies to the wire of inquiry were received later.

John G. Shedd, head of the house of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, wires his opinion of the effect: "I believe underlying conditions of business in general are sound, and with a better understanding of the decision of the Supreme Court will come a firm feeling of confidence in all lines. The present condition of the agricultural situation is the best we have known for several years. In the dry goods business the country has responded promptly to the changed weather conditions of the past ten days, and we are looking forward with confidence to a Fall volume of business considerably in excess of last year."

Festus J. Wade, whose position at the head of two influential banking institutions of St. Louis with a strong organization of correspondent banks in the Southwest makes him an authority on conditions in the West, telegraphed: "The decision in the Standard Oil case pall which has been hanging over the country, but until the American Tobacco case is decided and there is a recognition of the fact that railroads must be permitted to charge a fair toll for passengers and freight, no permanent improvement of trade and commerce may be expected."

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

6,760. PITCH PINE LUMBER.—A firm of lumber and commission brokers in Canada informs an American Consular officer that it is in the market for pitch pine lumber, and wishes to receive quotations from American firms on this product delivered in a Canadian city.

6,761. FISH OIL AND SOAP MATERIALS.—An American Consular officer in Italy reports that a firm in his district desires to secure the agency for American exporters of fish oil and soap materials.

6,762. SUPPLIES FOR THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.—Consul General John P. Bray of Sydney, Australia, has forwarded copies of tender forms, specifications, &c., covering the following supplies for the Commonwealth of Australia: Schedule 496, tenders for electric light material; schedule 502, tenders for accumulators and parts; schedule 505, tenders for chemicals for batteries; schedule 506, tenders for glassware for batteries. These forms and specifications can be obtained from the Bureau of Manufactures. All tenders must be filed with the Deputy Postmaster General, Melbourne, by June 13, 1911.

6,763. CRUSHING AND PULVERIZING MACHINERY.—A report from an American Consular officer in a European country states that a business man in his district is in the market for a crushing machine and pulverizing machine for marble, capacity 1,200 kilos per hour, suitable for a 10-horsepower steam engine. Another business man wants a bone pulverizing machine, capacity 500 kilos per hour. Correspondence in both instances should be in the French language.

FOG-BOUND SHIPS GET IN.

Two of the Big Liners Had Been Delayed Over Thirty Hours.

The fleet of incoming steamships, held captive since Saturday morning by the dense fog which closed in over the lower bay, came to their piers yesterday afternoon. The fog lifted about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The Crown of Grenada from Trinidad was the first to leave Quarantine. Behind her came the French liner Savoie from Havre, the Kansas City from Swansea, the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria from Hamburg, the Anchor liner Caledonia from Glasgow, and the Luisiana from Naples.

The Savoie and the Kaiserin were delayed over thirty hours outside the bar waiting for the fog to lift. On the Savoie many of the cabin passengers spent hours fishing for cod. It was just like being out on the regular fishing banks, said one New Yorker. Luck was good, and M. Gaillot, a first cabin passenger, made the record catch of eighteen ling.

The Caledonia was delayed only a few hours. She ran into the fog bank off Nantucket, and had to run slowly to port. When she approached the Ambrose Channel Lightship the fog lightened and she was able to come through to Quarantine. The Caledonia brought over 500 cabin passengers, among them Scotch and north Ireland families, who came here to settle in the West.

On the Savoie came the Count Anatole de Cousin de la Tour Fondue of Paris and Montreal. The Count, who is 72 years old, is on his way to Canada. Paul Studensky, a Russian aviator, also got here on the Savoie.

Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company

To Holders of Certificates of Deposit of the Consolidated First and Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company deposited under the Deposit Agreement dated August 17, 1908.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Plan of Reorganization has been approved and adopted by the undersigned Committee and that a copy hereof has been filed with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, the depositary under said Deposit Agreement, at its office, No. 28 Nassau Street, in the City of New York. Any registered holder of a Certificate of Deposit under said Deposit Agreement may at any time on or before June 10, 1911, file with the undersigned Committee at the office of said Depositary written notice of his dissent from said Plan. Unless on or before June 10th, 1911, holders of outstanding Certificates of Deposit representing at least one-third in face amount of the deposited Consolidated Bonds shall file such notice of dissent said Plan shall become effective and binding on all holders of Certificates of Deposit as provided in said Deposit Agreement.

Holders of said Consolidated Bonds who have not yet deposited their bonds but wish to participate in the Plan must deposit the same with all defaulted coupons with said Depositary on or before June 10, 1911, after which date no further deposit of such bonds will be received. An assessment of 12½% upon the face value of the outstanding Consolidated Bonds has been provided for, payable in three instalments, as follows: 2½% on or before June 15, 1911, 5% on or before June 30, 1911, and the remaining 5% within the time thereafter fixed therefor by the Committee. Printed copies of this plan may be obtained from the Secretary.

WHEAT HANGS FIRE WHILE DEALERS WAIT

COARSE GRAINS ARE TORPID

The wheat situation is possible of strong indorsement, either by the bulls or the bears, with no pronounced developments on either side. As a result speculation is timid, and after moving a cent or two up or down prices quickly swing back, drifting in an aimless sort of way until the wheat trade can be fully and definitely convinced that the crops of wheat this year are going to be sufficient to make a bear situation, even at 95c per bushel at the seaboard, and at under ninety cents in Chicago, or that foreign requirements will be so aggressive that, notwithstanding any possible size of the North American crop, there will be demand sufficient to advance prices from the current level.

A review of the facts shows, on the one hand, enormous demand for wheat from importing countries of Europe; this fact has been reiterated and is generally known. As yet there is nothing to indicate that the crops of importing countries will be as short as they were last year. The French crop last year was 100,000,000 bushels under the previous year, and France has been a large buyer of wheat. Recently the crop news from Western Europe has been of an ordinary character, not indicative of other than normal conditions. The weather has improved in Germany. Some uneasiness has been shown regarding the crops in Roumania and Russia, but private advices have reported rains in Russia this week. Very favorable advices have come from the Argentine, indicating a record area, with favorable conditions for seeding. It is generally expected, however, that Europe will continue a free importer of wheat for the balance of this year. Last week world's exports were 14,832,000 bushels, and the European visible showed a decrease of 4,100,000 bushels, following a decrease the preceding week of $7,800,000 bushels. The exports for the week ending Saturday night were estimated at nearly a record total for the season, figures being placed at 16,300,000 bushels, or over 6,000,000 bushels in excess of the corresponding week last year, and nearly 7,000,000 bushels in excess of the corresponding week two years ago. This immense movement shows that the extraordinary requirements of Europe this year, resulting in record-breaking world's exports, are being freely supplied at prices which are very close to the low level of the season.

The domestic movement of wheat continues limited, and the American visible has decreased very steadily. The decrease the past week, however, was disappointingly small. The decrease since Jan. 1 has this year been, in round numbers, 22,000,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 5,000,000 bushels last year, and a decrease of 27,000,000 bushels two years ago. Notwithstanding the fact that prices are from 10 to 14 cents per bushel lower than at this time last year, the demand for wheat is light, and the milling situation is still one of great dissatisfaction. Reports from mill centres show acutely dull conditions and a tendency to curtailment of output.

Spring wheat conditions, in regard to the new crop, have been very greatly improved through the American and Canadian Northwest by generous rains, and reports, even from conservative authorities, are very optimistic. In Winter wheat there is uncertainty, due to the absence of normal rainfall, and apprehension of possible loss in condition is a factor of some little importance. A few years ago, however, after a drought lasting through April and up to the third week in May, the yield of Winter wheat per acre was the largest on record.

A factor which is of very great importance in the situation is the manipulation in the Chicago market. This has resulted in completely tying up the May delivery, and there is apprehension that the control may extend through July. That the deal is causing a great deal of uneasiness is indicated in the report of effort on the part of the Board of Trade authorities to limit the manipulation there, and make it contrary to the rules of the board to offer grain, or other articles, for shipment out of Chicago at lower prices than the prevailing quotation in Chicago. It has been in the past a common practice to sell grain or provisions at frequently a large discount, in order to have the stuff shipped into distribution. As long as this manipulation continues it will naturally tend to restrict market operations.

CORN.

The market for corn has moved very quietly the past week, with an absence of any distinct tendency. There has been some weakening in the May and July delivery, compared with the September, at the West. At the low point May was about 3 cents under September, advancing to nearly a cent a bushel premium. The advance in cash corn was much more rapid than the advance in futures. With the higher prices, however, the movement of corn did not increase as hoped for, and there has been a rapid distribution of the corn moving. Recently, as a result of a quieter demand for cash corn, the near positions have softened somewhat, but the actual receipts of corn from the country are disappointingly light, and large interests, which send bids broadcast, are getting very unsatisfactory responses. The decrease in Western receipts last week was nearly 50 per cent. Planting is reported about complete on an increased acreage. Soil conditions were favorable during the planting season, but a general rain now would be desirable, the showers on Friday and Saturday naturally being of some benefit.

OATS.

The position of the oats market has been a very firm one, and prices have worked slowly higher on the new crop outlook. Although seeding was completed under favorable conditions, and in the Northwest the conditions are very favorable, still the absence of normal rainfall throughout the districts east of the Mississippi and in the Southwest creates an uneasy feeling and apprehension that the crop is not developing under proper conditions. There were rains, however, last week in Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, and the Northwest, which raised last year 450,000,000 bushels. The situation, apparently, depends on rains in other sections.

PROVISIONS.

Speculation in hog products has been of an extremely limited character. The fluctuations have been narrow, and trade has been professional. The live hog movement has decreased somewhat at the West, although packing operations are still large, while the weekly figures show smaller gains compared with last year than was the case earlier in the Spring. In the absence of distinctive feature in the demand, the trade seems to be waiting for conclusive indications of the probable size of the Summer hog movement.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Market fluctuations last week were dominated to a large extent by the disposition of leading refining interests, who apparently have adopted a more bullish attitude. Substantial gains were scored on aggressiveness from those interests, and while there are still many traders rather skeptical, little opposition was given to the upward movement.

Underlying factors have not changed radically, although undoubtedly an improved sentiment is prevailing as the result of a steadier pure lard market and fair inquiry from consuming interests. Crude oil is becoming scarce at the South, and in order to obtain small quantities, materially higher prices were paid, the advance at the South being relatively greater than that of the local future market.

While sentiment remains very much mixed, the interests working for the advance appear to have complete control of the situation, bears evidently awaiting developments. Some predictions are already heard that consuming inquiry will show a diminution on any further gains, as users of cottonseed oil seem to have become imbued with the idea that supplies for the balance of the season will be adequate. The diversity of opinion at present, however, is mainly as to whether the improved undertone in consumptive quarters has warranted the upturn in values, or if values are being advanced for the purpose of disposing of oil on hand.

Developments in the cotton belt have not as yet become a market factor, but conditions are being closely observed. Last week brought some damage complaints as result of dry conditions in the Eastern belt, but on Friday and Saturday beneficial showers occurred in many sections, and the outlook is viewed generally with a fair degree of optimism.

COTTON.

New high levels were a matter of almost daily occurrence for the old crop options last week, with July leading in the point of strength, it being apparent that the short interest in that option was previously underestimated. There were, however, intermittent spells of weakness indicative of a disposition on the part of leading holders to supply the exigencies of shorts, but at no time was the liquidation sufficient in volume to alter the belief that control of the bull party was unimpaired. The fluctuations are still dominated by technical conditions, to a large extent, as there is little fresh buying of importance and the support given to the list by spot interests discourages the bear. In absence, therefore, of alternative, commitments are gradually being closed. The situation is undeniably bullish, small supplies being almost an assured fact at the termination of the season, so that there is little inclination to accept a bearish view of conditions, but on the other hand current prices surely discount several bullish features.

The new crop months have been sympathetically firm and for several days the spread of apprehension resulting from dry weather complaints encouraged operations on the buying side. The consensus of opinion is, however, that excepting in isolated sections no damage has occurred to the plant from the deficiency of moisture and copious showers in many parts of the belt the latter part of the week doubtlessly ameliorated conditions complained of. As is natural, crop reports as received from private authorities differ in tenor, but on the whole the general situation at present is being viewed with a fair degree of optimism.

Several reports were compiled confirming earlier forecasts of an increased acreage, among the most important being the estimate by The New York Commercial placing the increment in acreage at 6.52 per cent.; their correspondents reporting that conditions on the whole were favorable for germination. The Mercantile Crop Reporting Corporation, with which Theodore Price is identified, estimated the larger acreage at 5 per cent. and the greater use of fertilizer at 4 per cent. The growing belief, however, that a fairly large crop will be a necessity next season, and that a heavy crop will not be altogether burdensome, tends to minimize the importance of good crop advices, but leaves the trade susceptible to damage complaints.

Spot interests have been conservative buyers of the Fall and early Winter months, and it is believed that this demand represents hedge purchases by milling concerns, who naturally are practically bare of supplies at present and entertain but little hope of having much cotton on hand at the commencement of next season. The sentiment prevailing in trade circles at present, while not entirely optimistic, is surely not so pessimistic as several weeks ago, with business in cloths on a slightly larger scale. There is a decided disposition to ignore bid prices in many instances, whereas, several weeks ago the solicitation of bids was not uncommon. A factor stimulating to this improved feeling is being attributed in some quarters to the disposition of the Standard Oil case. The pronounced strength of the stock market reflecting general satisfaction of the business world over the text of that decision was not ignored, and, although there are other factors, such as tariff uncertainties and a necessary revision in cotton goods values, prior to any general revival in cotton goods trade, evidently the rendering of this decision removed a cloud of uncertainty which was generally looked upon as restraining enterprise.

The foreign situation has been presenting but little feature recently, with the Liverpool market fluctuating largely in sympathy with American markets, the most conspicuous feature abroad being the diminution in spot business, partially reflected in the lessened inquiry reported by domestic spot handlers, from foreign sources. This falling off in demand has resulted in predictions of less bullish statistics as compared with last year for the balance of the season, while it was also thought that cotton may be attracted to the local market if the demand subsides materially. Recently Southern spot holders have displayed great tenacity in parting with the remnant of the crop, but nevertheless a comparison of spot prices with the near months in the New York market will disclose the fact that futures have advanced with greater rapidity than cotton at the South. This also in a measure confirms the assertion that technical conditions accounted for the abrupt advances at times in the Summer options, and on various occasions, Liverpool and Continental shorts were conspicuous in covering contracts previously sold in the way of straddles.

The visible supply continues to show liberal reductions each week, and as given by The Chronicle is only 81,000 bales greater than last year. The New York Cotton Exchange figures, however, placed the total slightly under last year with Hester's figures even more bullish in this respect, being 2,046,000 bales as a total against 2,555,000 a year ago. The Chronicle gives the insight since Sept. 1 at 11,158,000 bales, against 9,762,000 last year. Exports since Sept. 1 7,084,000 bales, against 5,479,000 last year; on shipboard 91,000 bales, against 60,000 last year. The stock of cotton at Great Britain aggregates 958,000 bales, against 693,000 in 1910 and at the Continent 510,000 bales, against 545,000 a year ago. At interior American points stocks total approximately 240,000 bales against 278,000 last year, and at ports 379,000 bales, against 480,000 a year ago. Ellison gives total European spinners' stocks on May 1 at 2,217,000 bales, comparing with 1,898,000 last year. Weekly consumption placed at 179,000 bales during April, against 170,000 in 1910.

HOME TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Further information regarding the following home trade opportunities may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

213. BREAKWATER CONSTRUCTION.—Sealed proposals for breakwater construction at Point Judith, R. I., will be received at the U. S. Engineer Office, Newport, R. I., until June 9, 1911, and then publicly opened. Information from Frederic V. Abbott, Col. Engineers.

214. PORTLAND CEMENT, SAND AND GRAVEL.—Sealed proposals for furnishing about 7,250 barrels Portland cement, also sand and gravel, for keystone lock, Bayou Teche, La., will be received at U. S. Engineer Office, Room 325, Custom House, New Orleans, until May 24, and then publicly opened. Apply to Lansing H. Beach, Lieut. Col. Engineers, for information.

215. DREDGING.—Sealed proposals for dredging Texas City Channel will be received at U. S. Engineer Office, Galveston, Texas, until May 25, and then publicly opened. Information from G. P. Howell, Major Engineers.

216. MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT FOR ARSENAL.—Sealed proposals in duplicate will be received at the Rock Island Arsenal, Ill., until June 6, for furnishing the following supplies: Four 16-inch sliding-head drill presses, with counter shafts, complete, including cup centre and "V" block; one spline milling machine, complete, with counter shaft and sets of cutters; one 26-inch heavy single head traverse shaper, belt drive, with cone and counter shaft; one induction motor; one variable speed planer, belt driven, with counter shaft; one 24-inch universal shaping machine, belt driven, with counter shaft; two 15-inch universal shaping machines, belt driven, with counter shaft; one radial drill, gear drive; one power-forcing press No. 1, capacity 15 tons, with pressure gauge on ram; one 36-inch new heavy high duty drill No. 25, with plain drive and compound table. Bids will only be considered on each item separately, and must be in accordance with the conditions, specifications and requirements, which can be obtained by addressing the Commanding Officer, Rock Island Arsenal, Ill. Prices must include delivery at the arsenal.

To Urge Repeal of Inheritance Tax.

Repeal of the State inheritance tax law, adopted last year, will be urged at a meeting under the auspices of the Allied Real Estate Interests of the State of New York in Albany on Tuesday night, to which members of the Legislature will be invited. Authorities on taxation are expected to advocate the repeal of the law on the contention that as the result of the workings of the statute millions of dollars in cash and securities are being taken every week from this State.

Says Swindler Made a Tool of Him.

Edwin Arden Noblett of 47 West Thirty-fourth Street, and Cyril Armstrong of 275 Central Park West, a broker, who were arrested on Saturday on the complaint of David A. Schultz of 568 Grand Street, who charges them with swindling him out of $560, were arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday, and held in $5,000 bail each for examination on Tuesday. Armstrong protests that he is innocent, and that Noblett made a tool of him. Noblett, according to the police, was released recently from Sing Sing, where he served eight years for a similar offense.

THIRD MORTGAGE BONDS

TO HOLDERS OF CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT FOR THIRD MORTGAGE BONDS OF INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY DEPOSITED UNDER THE BONDHOLDERS' AGREEMENT DATED APRIL 30, 1910:

Notice is hereby given that a plan for the reorganization of the affairs of the International and Great Northern Railroad Company has been formulated and adopted by the undersigned Committee, and that a copy of said plan has been filed with THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, the depositary under the above-mentioned agreement, at its office, No. 15 Nassau Street, in the City of New York. Any registered holder of a certificate of deposit representing Third Mortgage Bonds may, within twenty days from this date, file with THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK notice in writing that said holder dissents from said plan. Unless within such period of twenty days holders of outstanding certificates of deposit representing fifty per cent. in face amount of deposited Third Mortgage Bonds and defaulted coupons shall file such notice of dissent, said plan shall be binding on all holders of certificates of deposit representing Third Mortgage Bonds and defaulted coupons, as provided in said agreement.

All Third Mortgage Bondholders who have not yet deposited their bonds, but wish to participate in the plan, must deposit their bonds with all defaulted coupons with the depositary, THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK ON OR BEFORE JUNE 1, 1911, after which date no further deposits of bonds will be received for any reason whatsoever, and at the time of deposit must pay to said Trust Company, for the account of the Committee and as a condition for permitting such deposit, an amount in cash at the rate of $25 for each $1,000, par value, of bonds so deposited. All holders so depositing will be deemed thereby to assent to the plan, and, in the event said plan shall be abandoned or no securities are provided thereunder in exchange for Third Mortgage Bonds hereafter deposited, the amount of cash so paid and the amount of bonds and coupons so deposited will be returned upon surrender of the certificates of deposit representing the bonds so deposited.

ALVIN W. KRECH,
EDWARD T. JEFFERY,
FRANK JAY GOULD,
Committee of Third Mortgage Bondholders.

Dated New York, May 11, 1911.

TO THE HOLDERS OF THE CORPORATE BONDS OF THE SOMERSET COAL COMPANY

Secured by its Mortgage or Deed of Trust, dated Jan. 28, 1902.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That the said SOMERSET COAL COMPANY will redeem ALL of its outstanding bonds on the first day of August, 1911, that being a semi-annual interest date, in accordance with the provisions contained in the Mortgage or Deed of Trust, dated January 28, 1902, from the Somerset Coal Company to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee.

Said bonds will be redeemed and payment therefor made at the office of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, New York, the place at which said bonds and the interest coupons thereto attached are made payable.

Holders of the said bonds are notified to present them for payment at the office of the said Guaranty Trust Company of New York, on the first day of August, 1911, at which time and place they will receive, as provided in said Mortgage or Deed of Trust:

110% of the face or Par value of each bond with accrued interest to August 1st, 1911, and at which date all interest on said bonds will cease.

Dated at Baltimore, Maryland, the 23rd day of February, 1911.

J. H. WHEELWRIGHT,
Vice President, Somerset Coal Company.

The Company having deposited funds with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York for the redemption of the above bonds, holders thereof may present them to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, New York City, at any time on or after this date, and will receive therefor 110 and accrued interest.

Wonderful Hearing Devices

is now being successfully operated in over 400 Churches throughout the country.

It enables people who are hard of hearing to distinguish every word of Sermons and Prayers, even in the rear pews of the Church.

This feature has added greatly to the attractiveness of these Churches for deaf people and their friends—they are showing it in their attendance and patronage.

Is also made for personal use and may be tested before it is purchased.

THE TURNER INTERIOR TELEPHONE

is the most dependable, convenient and efficient Interior Telephone that modern science, combined with many years of experience in Electrical hearing devices, can produce.

It will work efficiently and persistently all the time—there is almost nothing to get out of order.

No mouthpiece—no germs—you may talk at 3 feet distance and be heard perfectly.

THE DICTOGRAPH

is the Instrument used by Detective Burns in recent famous cases to get evidence, etc. The daily papers have covered this fully in the past two weeks.

It also saves a vast amount of time to the busiest man in the modern office, bank, or institution.

He may dictate letters to his stenographer in the next room, or consult with a department-head four floors away, and not stand or sit within 10 feet of the instrument.

THE GENERAL ACOUSTIC CO., K. M. Turner, President.

THE MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE; THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE; GEORGE J. GOULD, ET ALS., COMPLAINANTS, VERSUS, INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY, DEFENDANT.

Consolidated Cause No. 2,501.

THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE, COMPLAINANT, VERSUS INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY, THE MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY, AND THOMAS J. FREEMAN, AS RECEIVER OF THE INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY, DEFENDANTS.

Equity Cause No. 2,514.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that in pursuance of a decree in these causes made and entered on or about the tenth day of May, 1910, foreclosing the mortgage made by the International and Great Northern Railroad Company to The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as Trustee, dated June 15th, 1881; and of decrees of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Texas, entered on or about the 25th day of June, 1910; the Eastern District of Texas, entered on or about the 27th day of June, 1910; and the Western District of Texas, entered on or about the 29th day of June, 1910; in the suits in equity in each of said last mentioned Districts pending, wherein The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, Trustee, is complainant, and the International and Great Northern Railroad Company, The Mercantile Trust Company, and Thomas J. Freeman, as Receiver of The International and Great Northern Railroad Company, are defendants, and in accordance with an order dated September 28th, 1910, made and entered in said Consolidated Cause No. 2,501, and in said Equity Cause No. 2,514; I, WILLIAM H. FLIPPEN, the Master Commissioner in and by said decrees appointed for the purpose, will, on Tuesday, the sixteenth day of May, 1911, at twelve o'clock, noon, at the passenger depot of the International and Great Northern Railroad Company in the City of Palestine, in the County of Anderson, in the State of Texas, sell at public auction, to the highest bidder therefor, and as an entirety, and without valuation, appraisement, redemption or extension, and with all muniments of title thereto and evidences of ownership thereof, the following property, premises, and franchises described in the said decrees, as follows:

"ALL and singular the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of the defendant International and Great Northern Railroad Company, whether owned at the date of the execution of the said Second Mortgage, namely, on the 15th day of June, 1881, or thereafter acquired by it, including its lines of railroad in the State of Texas, extending from the town of Longview, in the County of Gregg, in said State, through said County, and through the Counties of Rusk, Smith, Cherokee, Anderson, Leon, Robertson, Milam, Williamson, Travis, Hays, Comal, Bexar, Medina, Frio, La Salle, Encinal, and Webb, to Laredo in said last-mentioned County; and from the town of Mineola in Wood County to Troupe in Smith County; and from the City of Palestine in Anderson County, through the Counties of Houston, Trinity, Walker, and Montgomery, to Houston in Harris County; and from the town of Spring in Harris County, through the Counties of Montgomery, Waller, Grimes, Brazos, Robertson, Falls, McLennan, Limestone, Hill, Navarro, Ellis, and Johnson, to the City of Fort Worth, Tarrant County; with branches and branch lines from the town of Overton to the town of Henderson, in Rusk County, from the town of Round Rock to Georgetown in Williamson County, from the town of Phelps to the town of Huntsville in Walker County, from the City of Houston in Harris County to the town of Colombia in Brazoria County, from Navasota in Grimes County to Madisonville in Madison County, from Calvert Junction to Calvert, and from Waco Junction to East Waco; also, the railway and railway tracks and property appurtenant thereto, and certain tracts of land in and adjacent to the City of Houston in Harris County, State of Texas, known as the Houston Belt Terminals; a total distance of about eleven hundred and six miles of completed railroad, all in the State of Texas; also the trackage rights of the said International and Great Northern Railroad Company from Houston in Harris County to Galveston in Galveston County, in said State of Texas, over the railroad of the Galveston, Houston & Henderson Railroad Company, of 1882, accorded to it by an agreement between said last-named railroad company and said International and Great Northern Railroad Company, dated November 19th, 1895; also, all and singular the said International and Great Northern Railroad Company's railroads, tracks, rights of way, main lines, branch lines, superstructures, depots, depot-grounds, station houses, engine houses, car houses, freight houses, wood houses, sheds, watering places, workshops, machine shops, bridges, viaducts, culverts, fences, and fixtures, together with all its leases, leasehold-interests, leased or hired lands, leased or hired railroads, and all its locomotives, tenders, cars, carriages, coaches, trucks, and other rolling stock; its machinery, tools, weighing scales, turn tables, rails, wood, coal, oil, fuel, equipment, furniture, and material of every name, nature, and description, together with all its corporate rights, privileges, immunities, and franchises, whether held at the time of the execution of the said Second Mortgage, namely, on June 15th, 1881, or thereafter acquired (including the franchise to be a corporation), and all the tolls, fares, freights, rents, income, issues, and profits thereof, and all the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders thereof, as well as all property purchased or held by the Receiver herein, including any balance of cash, credits, and income which may remain in his hands after application thereof, as herein provided or as has been or may hereafter be directed by the Court herein, to the payment of receivership obligations and charges and to the payment of claims which may be allowed by the Court herein against the same with priority over said Second Mortgage dated June 15th, 1881; excepting, however, all land grants, lands, land certificates, town lots, and town sites, owned or controlled by the said International and Great Northern Railroad Company at the date of the execution of said Second Mortgage, namely, on June 15th, 1881, or at any time prior to said date, which were not, on the first day of November, 1879, or thereafter up to the said 15th day of June, 1881, actually occupied and in use by the said Railroad Company and necessary to the occupation and maintenance of its lines of railroad; and excepting, further, any portions of said premises and property which may have been released from the lien and operation of said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, and the releases for which have been duly filed for record in the proper county."

The said premises and property will be sold subject to the mortgage dated November 1st, 1879, made by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company to John S. Kennedy and Samuel Sloan, as trustees, and known as said Railroad Company's First Mortgage, and subject also to any unpaid indebtedness or liability contracted or incurred by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company in the operation of its Railroad, which the Court has, since the entry of said decree herein, ordered or decreed, or which it may hereafter order or decree herein, to be prior or superior to the lien of the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, except such as shall be paid or satisfied out of the income of the property in the hands of the Receiver herein under orders of the Court entered or to be entered herein; and subject also to such debts, claims, liens, and demands of whatsoever nature heretofore incurred or created, or which may hereafter be incurred or created by the Receiver herein under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein and which have not been or shall not hereafter be paid by said Receiver under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, or other parties in interest herein; or out of the proceeds of the said sale as in said decree directed; and certain specific portions of said property and premises, namely: The San Antonio Passenger Station, the Colorado Bridge and certain equipment, will be sold respectively subject to the existing recorded mechanic's lien, the First Mortgage Colorado Bridge Bonds and the unsatisfied recorded equipment liens, specifically and respectively affecting the same.

The Master Commissioner will receive no bid from any person until such person shall have deposited with him the sum of $100,000. Such deposit will be returned in case the depositor's bid be not accepted; but if his bid be accepted, then such deposit will be held by the Master Commissioner on account of the purchase price.

The purchaser, when the property is struck down to him, shall at once pay the Master Commissioner on account of his purchase a sufficient sum to make up with his deposit ten per centum of his accepted bid. The deposit required before bidding shall be paid in United States currency or in such certified draft, certificate or cheque as may be satisfactory to the Master Commissioner, or in a certificate of The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company duly made payable to the order of said Master Commissioner. Said further payment shall be made either as aforesaid, or in the bonds and coupons secured by the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, taken at a valuation equal to the amount said bonds and coupons would be entitled to receive in cash out of the amount bid for the said property. The certificate of the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company that it holds bonds and coupons as therein described subject to the order of the party named therein, such certificate being by him tranferred to the order of said Master Commissioner, will be accepted in lieu of such bonds and coupons. Should such further payment not be made, the property will be forthwith resold, without further advertisement, the Court reserving the right to consider such resale made on account of said successful bidder or as an original sale; and in case of such resale, the deposit received from the said successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price. Such further portions of the purchase price shall be paid in money as the Court may from time to time direct, the Court reserving the right to resell the premises and property herein directed to be sold upon the failure of the purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors or assigns, to comply with any order of the Court in that regard, and in case of any such resale or the failure of the said purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their assigns, to comply with the terms of the bid or the orders of the Court relative to such additional payments, the said money, bonds and coupons so paid in as aforesaid shall be forfeited as liquidated damages and shall be applied toward the expenses of any resale ordered, or toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property at such resale shall bring less than at the prior sale. The balance of the purchase price may be paid either in money or in bonds or overdue coupons secured by the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, each said bond and coupon being received for such sum as the holder thereof would be entitled to receive under the distribution herein ordered and according to the priority herein adjudged. The certificate of the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company that it holds bonds and coupons as therein described subject to the order of the party named therein, said certificate being by him transferred to the order of said Master Commissioner, will be accepted in lieu of such bonds and coupons.

Within thirty days from the confirmation of said sale or such further time as the Court may allow on application of the purchaser for good cause shown, the purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors and assigns, shall complete payment of the entire amount bid to the Master Commissioner; and on such payment the said purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors and assigns, will be entitled to receive a deed of conveyance and bill of sale of the property purchased from the Master Commissioner, and from the other parties to this cause as in said decree herein provided, and to receive possession of the property so purchased from the parties holding possession of the same, subject, however, to the said mortgage, dated November 1st, 1879, made by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company to John S. Kennedy and Samuel Sloan, as Trustees, and known as said Railroad Company's First Mortgage; and subject also to any unpaid indebtedness or liability contracted or incurred by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company in the operation of its Railroad, which the Court, since the entry of the said decree herein has ordered or decreed, or may hereafter order or decree herein, to be prior or superior to the lien of said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, except such as shall be paid or satisfied out of the income of the property in the hands of the receiver herein, under orders of the Court entered or to be entered herein, and subject also to such debts, claims, liens, and demands of whatsoever nature heretofore incurred or created, or which may hereafter be incurred or created by the Receiver herein under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, and which have not been or shall not hereafter be paid by said Receiver under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, or other parties in interest herein, or out of the proceeds of said sale, as in said decree directed, and subject also, as to certain specific portions of said property and premises, namely, the San Antonio Passenger Station, the Colorado Bridge and certain equipment, to the existing recorded mechanic's lien, the First Mortgage Colorado Bridge Bonds and the unsatisfied recorded equipment liens specifically and respectively affecting the same. And the Court reserves jurisdiction over said property, notwithstanding such deed or deeds or delivery of possession, for the purpose of enforcing such payment.

For a more detailed statement of the terms and conditions under which said sale will be made, reference is hereby made to the said decrees and each and every one of them on file with the Clerks of the several Courts hereinbefore mentioned.

BURGLARS CART OFF FURS WORTH $50,000

Detectives Find Only Finger Prints on Which to Run Down the Thieves.

SAY A WAGON WAS USED

Big Stock Carefully Sorted Over and Only the Most Valuable Furs Carried Away.

Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty has a burglary, the first one of any consequence he has been called on to investigate since the former head of the Pinkerton Eastern agency supplanted William J. Flynn. Although two of his best men have been at work on the case ever since it was reported early Saturday morning they have discovered no clue to the perpetrators. The establishment robbed was that of Menczner & Nadler, manufacturers of fur garments, on the top floor of the building at 7 and 9 West Eighteenth Street. Sometime between midnight on Friday and daylight Saturday burglars entered the building and after jimmying their way into the floor occupied by Menczner & Nadler carried off furs supposed to be worth about $50,000.

The most puzzling feature of the case is the fact that a wagon must have been used to cart away the loot. While a policeman is supposed to be on duty all night in that locality and while it must have taken an hour or more to rifle the fur establishment and pack the booty into the wagon, no report of a wagon being seen in the neighborhood was made to the West Twentieth Street Station.

The proprietors of the fur place say that a wagon must have been used because the stolen furs were too heavy for even half a dozen to carry off. Between 400 and 500 pieces of fur were stolen, according to the members of the firm. Some of them were finished garments, others were in the rough. The loot weighed at least half a ton, say the furmen.

That the burglars were experienced hands there seems no doubt, for not only did they pick over the stock of furs and select the most valuable ones, but they took the precaution of cutting the electric automatic burglar alarm wires which ran from the office of Menczner & Nadler to the headquarters of one of the large burglar alarm companies. They also clipped the telephone wires. A pair of old scissors which they used for this were found near the door.

Reproductions of the finger prints left by the burglars on the door and some of the furniture, as well as on the front window frames, have been taken by the detectives. These furnish the best clue the detectives have.

Among the most valuable of the stolen furs were black fox, Japanese mink, Northern mink, ermine, and Persian lamb. Most of the fur was insured, and the dealers will therefore not lose heavily.

When Menczner and Nadler arrived at the factory about 8 o'clock on Saturday morning they found the cashier and several of the factory force already on hand, inspecting the depleted stock and greatly excited over the burglary. The police were quickly notified, and also the burglar insurance firms. The police of other cities have been notified to watch out for furs bearing the private mark of Menczner & Nadler. Mr. Nadler was at the factory yesterday with several of the employes, going over their stock and trying to make up an accurate list of the stolen furs.

"Until we have checked up all the remaining stock and compared it with our book lists we cannot give accurately the value of the goods stolen," said Mr. Nadler.

NEW YORK MAYORS TO MEET.

Three Hundred Will Listen to Papers on Municipal Subjects.

POUGHKEEPSIE, May 21.—The conference of Mayors of New York State will open in this city next Thursday, and continue for three days. Three hundred delegates are expected, and evening sessions will be held in Columbus Institute. Gov. Dix will address the conference Thursday afternoon on "The Attitude of the State Toward Municipality."

Other speakers and their topics on Thursday will include E. A. Fisher, City Engineer of Rochester, "Paving and the Care of Streets"; A. Prescott Folwell, editor of The Municipal Journal and Engineer, New York City, "Paving Policies and Modern Streets"; G. R. Hall, State Controller's office, Albany, "State Examinations of Municipal Accounting, Purposes, and Results"; Homer Folks, New York City, Secretary State Charities Aid Association, "Budgetary Provisions for Social Work in Municipal Life"; Edward L. Heydecker, Assistant Tax Commissioner, New York, "Municipal Taxation and Assessments"; John A. Kingsbury, General Agent of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, "The Social Usefulness of the Police Force," and United States Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, "Commission Government."

The addresses Friday will include William A. Prendergast, Controller of New York City, "Budget Making and Uniform Municipal Accounting"; Harrison Williams, New York City, "Assessments on Railroad Properties Within City Limits"; Andrew W. Crawford, Assistant City Solicitor, Philadelphia, "City Planning and Municipal Indebtedness"; John MacVicar, Des Moines, Iowa, "Commission Form of Government"; Mayor Brand Whitlock, Toledo, Ohio, "Essential Principles of Municipal Government"; Mayor William J. Gaynor, New York City, "Forms of Municipal Government," and Speaker Daniel D. Frisbie of the New York State Assembly, "Restriction of a City's Power of Self-Government by State Legislature."

All addresses are to be followed by discussions, and on Friday afternoon there will be a symposium, during which each delegate will speak on "My City's Greatest Problem, and How We Are Solving It."

Saturday's sessions will be held at the Ashokan Dam, Ulster County, when there will be two addresses, one by Walter McCulloh, Consulting Engineer of the New York State Water Supply Commission on "Future of Municipal Water Supplies of New York State," and the other by Seth Low of New York on "The Catskill Water System."

Thursday afternoon following the adjournment of the session the delegates, accompanied by Gov. Dix and staff, will go by special steamer to West Point, where a special military programme will be carried out for the delegates.

The Mayors of nearly all the larger cities of the State have accepted invitations.

IN AID OF WORLD PEACE.

MOHONK LAKE, N. Y., May 21.—Arrangements are practically completed for the seventeenth annual meeting of the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration, which, at its three days' session, beginning Wednesday, will bring together more than 300 distinguished persons.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University will preside, and it is expected that in his opening address he will say much of interest concerning the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, of which he is a trustee. James Brown Scott, Secretary of the Endowment, will also be among the speakers. Baron d'Estournelles de Constant of Paris, Herr Prediger F. W. Simoleit of Berlin, and the Dean of Worcester and Dr. John Clifford of England will be among the foreigners to deliver addresses.

The Anglo-American arbitration treaty now being negotiated will be a leading topic. Ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster will lead the discussion for the United States and Senator Raoul Dandurand of Canada for Great Britain.

Fifty Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade in nearly all the large cities of the United States and Canada will send official delegates, before whom George W. Perkins, until recently of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Oscar S. Straus of New York will discuss the relations of business men to international arbitration.

ASKED A SOLDIER'S BURIAL.

Youth Wrote a Message for His Captain Before Drinking Poison.

Frank W. Gabe, 20 years old, of 18 Fair Street, Newark, a member of Company A, First Regiment, N. G. N. J., tried to end his life early yesterday morning in the home of Bertha Fischer, 72 Springfield Avenue, Newark, where he swallowed a mixture of carbolic acid and iodine. He was taken to the City Hospital, and later was locked up in the Fourth Precinct Station.

When he was searched this letter, dated May 19, was found in a pocket of his coat:

> Friend Joe: I wish to write you a few lines to tell you to see about the company for firing over my grave. Please do this for me. Tell Capt. Powell about it. Get every fellow if you can. Only tell them to go. Good-bye. FRANK GABE.

About six weeks ago Gabe lost his employment, and soon after he appeared at the place with a revolver saying that he was going to shoot the man who had taken his place, the police say.

FIGHTS IN STREET TO RECOVER CHILD

Crowd Sees Henry C. Easton Lose in Dispute with Mother-in-Law, Who Uses Her Fists

WHILE A LITTLE GIRL CRIES

A large and enthusiastic crowd assembled unexpectedly at the corner of Madison Avenue and Seventy-eighth Street just before church time yesterday morning to witness the second fight for the possession of four-and-a-half-year-old Dorothy Easton, daughter of Henry Clement Easton of 561 West 147th Street, a nephew of the late Edmund Clarence Stedman. While playing in Riverside Park with her nurse last Friday noon, Dorothy passed into the possession of her grandmother, Mrs. A. I. Jewell of 51 East Seventy-eighth Street, and yesterday her father tried to get her back. He did not. Instead he got a broken straw hat and two lumps on his head, inflicted by Mrs. Jewell's fists.

Mr. Easton went on Saturday and got a summons for Mrs. Jewell.

Mrs. Jewell accepted the summons and told the officer that she would gladly appear in court on Tuesday morning. Therewith, she told a reporter for THE TIMES yesterday, she thought she would have no further interference from Easton, and hence decided to go to church in the morning, taking her granddaughter with her.

Mr. Easton, according to what he told a reporter yesterday, did not trust his fortune to the summons. He said he feared an attempt would be made to take the little girl into the country, so he appeared in front of the Jewell home early in the morning to watch the grandmother.

When Mrs. Jewell and the child came out of the house, he concealed himself in a doorway until they had passed. Then he followed, seeking an opportunity to grab his daughter and run with her to the first car going north or south on Madison Avenue. The little girl clung closely to her grandmother's skirts, however, and the father did not get the chance he wanted until Mrs. Jewell and Dorothy were trying to board a south-bound car. Just as they were stepping on the running board he ran up exclaiming:

"You shall not take my daughter on that car, Mrs. Jewell!"

The little girl clung to her grandmother and began to sob and the car went on.

A heated discussion followed, in which Mrs. Jewell gradually retreated to the west sidewalk, the child in her arms, and, placing herself in front of the high iron palings surrounding a stone mansion on the corner, she defiantly threatened Easton with her umbrella, shrieking loudly for help and the police. The little girl added to the screams and cried. The father held aloof from his intended rush for his daughter for a few moments, and in that time a crowd of a hundred gathered.

A few street cars stopped, passing automobiles tooted their horns, and from every window in the fashionable neighborhood appeared persons intent on knowing the cause of the commotion. An employe in a florist's shop just a little south of the scene telephoned for the police reserves, yelling over the telephone that some one was being killed on the corner. Policemen George Stuerhof and Stephen Hurley of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station came along on the run and immediately took command of the situation.

Mrs. Jewell still threatened everybody with her umbrella. Her Prayer book had fallen out of her hand and was lying on the sidewalk near her.

"We'll decide right here on the street," she said to the officers, "who is to have the possession of this girl."

She set her granddaughter on the pavement and said to her:

"Dolly, do you want to go with your father or with me?"

Dorothy managed to clear her throat of the choking sobs, and said loudly:

Three times Mrs. Jewell put the question to the little girl, and each time she denied her father in the same words. The crowd thereupon took sympathy with the little girl's plea, and when Easton tried to explain that he was the rightful owner of the child he could not make himself heard.

"That woman stole my child away from me," he said to Policeman Stuerhof, "and I want her back. She is mine and I want her. If that woman had taken my pocketbook the case would not be the least different. I want my child, my only child."

The scene shifted slowly to the home of Mrs. Jewell half a block east of Madison Avenue, the policemen shielding the little girl from the outstretched arms of her father. By the time the house was reached six more policemen, under Capt. Hughes, were on hand to help settle the family dispute. In vain they pleaded for Easton to go his way and let Mrs. Jewell and Dorothy enter the house. Easton planted himself in front of the vestibule and said that he would not let the child enter while he was an able man.

Finally he made a grab for her, being very careful not to touch the grandmother, for fear of the assault charge which had been threatened. He took Dorothy in his arms, and the child began to cry hysterically, kicking frantically and struggling to be released.

Mrs. Jewell had her umbrella ready, but the vestibule was so small that she could not wield it, and she abandoned it for her fists. She is stout, and her first stroke crushed Easton's straw hat, and those that followed raised small welts on the top of his head. So fierce was the contest, in which the eight policemen and Capt. Hughes took no part, that Easton dropped the child and allowed the grandmother to lead her through the door and into the apartment without further resistance. The policemen scattered the crowd without making any arrests and Easton walked to the police station, where a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Jewell was refused him.

Mrs. Jewell said later that Easton had married her daughter when the latter was only 16 years old, and while she and her daughter were living in the old Madison Avenue Hotel, of which Easton's father was the proprietor and where the young man worked as a clerk.

"He comes from a long line of gentlemen ancestors," she admitted, "but he is not as illustrious as any of them, and I opposed the marriage from the start. He lived with my daughter only a short time, and has seen little of his daughter. My daughter died a few weeks ago, and two days after her funeral he came and wanted the child. The scene which he precipitated gave me a nervous breakdown, and I was unconscious for more than two days. It is not the love of the child by which he is actuated, but his mother, who is a Christian Scientist practitioner, has an intuition that her son will be spurred on to greatness through this child, and that is why they are fighting for the child."

At the home of the Eastons an ulterior reason for the possession of the child was credited to Mrs. Jewell. "There is a mystery about this case," said Mr. Easton's mother, who professes a great love for her grandchild. "For some reason or other Mrs. Jewell wants to keep Dolly in her possession for ten days. We think there is a fortune in Dolly's name somewhere, and we think that Mrs. Jewell wants that money."

Young Easton said that E. S. Volk, a theatrical manager and a brother of Mrs. Jewell, had offered to set him up in business or give him a cash equivalent of $5,000 if he should give up his right to the child. It was suggested further, Easton said, that the girl would be made the heir of Mrs. Jewell under this agreement, and that if this arrangement was not complied with the girl would be returned to the Eastons "as naked as when she was born," and minus one cent of inheritance, and with an appended bill for all expenditures for food, care, and clothing for the last year and a half, in which young Easton and his wife were separated.

FEEDS HER HEN QUININE.

And Gets Two Eggs a Day, Says Mrs. De Camp of Bloomfield.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., May 21.—A discovery by Mrs. Archibald De Camp of North Park Street, East Orange, may or may not have settled the question of cheap eggs for future generations. Mr. De Camp, who relishes a fresh egg for breakfast, keeps only three hens and a rooster, as his yard space is limited. The fowls are of the brown Leghorn variety, and they have succeeded during the Winter in keeping Mr. De Camp supplied with his favorite breakfast.

A week ago the best of the three hens became ill, stopped laying, and moped around the back door with drooped head. Several remedies were tried, but were of no avail, and Mrs. De Camp feared that the hen would die. Mr. De Camp, who is subject to malaria, before going to business last Thursday morning, took some two-grain quinine pills. It occurred to Mrs. De Camp that if quinine helped her husband it might help the sick hen. Taking a pellet from the bottle, she picked up the chicken, opened its bill, and dropped the pellet down its throat. In less than two hours the chicken took on new life and became the liveliest one in the small flock. On Friday morning the chicken laid an egg, and in the afternoon it laid a second one. Since that time the chicken gets its quinine pill every morning, and it keeps up laying two eggs daily.

Mrs. De Camp says that if any one doubts this story he is at liberty to visit her home and watch the chicken.

FIRE KILLS FIVE SISTERS.

Mother's Mistake in Using Gasoline in a Lamp Causes Tragedy.

UTICA, Kan., May 21.—Five daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Roach of this place, ranging in ages from 7 to 16 years, were burned to death late last night in a fire which started in the Roach restaurant. The parents were badly burned.

The mother by mistake filled a lamp with gasoline, preparatory to ascending a stairway leading to the second floor, where the daughters were asleep. She applied a match to the lamp and an explosion followed. The fire ran to a two-gallon can of gasoline, sending a burst of flame up the narrow stairway.

The woman's dress caught fire, but the flames were extinguished by her husband, who had been asleep in an adjoining room. He rushed up the burning stairs and caught his youngest daughter, 5 years old, in his arms. Calling to the other girls to follow him and leap into his arms, he ran to a window and jumped to the ground. He stood with upraised arms to catch the other girls, but for some reason they failed to follow him, and a few minutes later, when another window was broken, the bedroom in which the girls were sleeping was a mass of flames. Half an hour later the bodies of the five were recovered. They will be buried together in one grave to-morrow.

SHOT AT EXPLOSIVE, DIES.

Hunter Aimed at Can of Nitroglycerine Unknowing—Another Dying.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 21.—Clarence Henderson, a bookkeeper in a bank in Beggs, Okla., is dead, and Edward Bright, son of a real estate man of the same place, will die as the result of mistaking a quart can of nitroglycerine for muddy water.

The young men were hunting to-day when they discovered the can of explosive under a boulder. They placed it on top of the rock and one of them fired into it from a small-calibre rifle. Henderson was so badly mangled by the explosion that he died within an hour.

Bright was cut in more than a hundred places by particles of the can. He crawled to a farmhouse a mile and a half away and told of the accident. There is no hope for his recovery.

The accident occurred in the oil fields, and the nitroglycerine had been hidden by well-shooters when they left work last night.

MAY RESIGN AS CONTROLLER.

Murray of Currency Bureau Offered Pittsburg Bank Presidency.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—It was learned here to-night that negotiations now under way may result in Lawrence O. Murray, Controller of the Currency, becoming President of the First National Bank of Pittsburg. So far as can be learned no definite arrangement has been reached.

It is said that George E. Roberts, now Director of the Mint, and until recently President of a large National bank in Chicago is being considered to succeed Controller Murray as head of the Currency Bureau in the event of the latter going to Pittsburg. Friends of Former Controller Ridgely are also urging his name.

FALL CLIMBING PALISADES.

Two Boys Tumble 75 Feet and Are Badly Hurt.

Leslie J. Reardon and Henry E. Parry, each 18 years old, who live at 205 West Eighty-seventh Street, started to climb the Palisades opposite Yonkers yesterday afternoon, and had got up about seventy-five feet when they tumbled.

Their cries brought their fathers, who had remained in the launch in which the four had made the trip. The fathers got their injured boys into the launch and took them to Yonkers. The young men are now in St. Joseph's Hospital, Reardon with a broken arm and a scalp wound and Parry with a fractured skull.

CAPTAIN'S FIANCEE A SUICIDE.

Miss Willoughby Brooded Over Harrison Swain's Ill-Health and Her Own.

NASHUA, N. H., May 21.—Uncertainty as to the fate of Miss Blanche S. Willoughby, whose coat, hat, and gloves were found on the bank of the Merrimack River last Monday, ended to-day with the finding of her body floating in the stream.

Miss Willoughby is said to have brooded over the illness of her fiancé, Capt. Harrison D. Swain, U. S. M. C., retired, of Nashua, who had made preparatons to go West for his health, and also over the fear that she herself had contracted tuberculosis.

GET THREE HORSE THIEVES.

Two Found with Property Stolen from Jersey Farmers.

RED BANK, N. J., May 21.—Three men were arrested here to-day charged with knowing something of the disappearance of many horses and rigs from Monmouth County citizens within the last few months. One of the prisoners was arrested as he was towing a stolen buggy through Red Bank. He implicated the other two. All were held by Justice Sickles.

The prisoners are Jacob Shivock, Jacob Rosenberg, a painter and paperhanger, and Joseph Weldman, a blacksmith, all of Long Branch. Detective Rue searched Rosenberg's house and says he found a blanket which Joseph Shrout, a liveryman of Keyport, identified as stolen from him.

SAY EXPRESS MEN SMUGGLED OPIUM

GOT THE DRUG IN CANADA

Inspectors in Trouble for Passing Suspicious Packages en Route Without Examination.

After months of patient work the customs men assigned to ferret out the method by which smuggled opium found its way to the distributing centres in this State believe that a long step toward stopping the illicit traffic has been taken in the arrest a few days ago at Plattsburg, N. Y., of W. C. Stevens, a messenger in the employ of the National Express Company, and of J. R. Pierson, another messenger for the same company. A report of the affair is now in the hands of the Collector and the Surveyor. It is said that other arrests may be made.

The first step in breaking up the opium smuggling ring came in the raids on a Seventh Avenue resort and the clean-up of several suspicious places in Chinatown. The former place, it was said at the time of the raid, was regarded by the Federal officers as the national distributing centre for the traffic in the East. From that point the trail led to express messengers.

Stevens was on the run between Montreal and Weehawken. He was in the employ of the express company for thirty-five years, and the officials say he has confessed that for ten years he has been a dealer in opium. He was arrested in his express car when it reached Plattsburg, bound north, a week ago. The traffic must have been profitable, for Stevens had a fine home in the best residential district of Montreal, also a Summer home at St. Ann's.

The arrest, the customs men say, was made just in time. The Canadian officials, acting on information from New York, had made a search of the Stevens house in Montreal. His wife telegraphed him the news and, it's thought, he was making his last run when he was arrested. Pierson was a trusted messenger of the company. He lived in a fine home at Ballston, N. Y. He had been with the express company twenty-three years.

The customs men were amazed with the ease with which the smuggling was accomplished. Stevens, for example, made four trips to New York each month. He was well-known to the customs inspectors, who examine baggage on the run. Many of them had known him for years and as a trusted employe of an express company he was not regarded with suspicion. Packages were examined and passed by the officials in perfunctory fashion.

Stevens is said to have carried the illicit packages in his valise, but toward the end, when there was a goodly consignment to go through, even this precaution was not taken. All he did, he said, was to toss them into a corner of the express car. The Inspectors looking upon him as an institution did not bother to look at a few innocent looking packages tossed into a corner and vouched for by the messenger as containing "nothing of consequence."

While it is believed that most of the smuggled opium came through to New York, customers could get it at way stations, and the Government investigators are of the opinion that Stevens's field of activities spread over a large area.

With the discovery of the method employed and the arrest of the two prisoners, the official eye is now turned toward the Government employes who were responsible for the condition of affairs found to exist. Three inspectors whose duty it was to make train examinations have been suspended and others are liable to suspension, as the scope of the investigation in that direction is enlarged.

The raid on Charley Boston's place in Seventh Avenue was made on Jan. 25. In the place the inspectors found many letters showing that the Chinamen carried on a mail order business. Some of the letters bore testimony to the popularity of Boston in official circles in Pittsburg. Letters from city officials were found couched in the friendliest language, and in most cases the writer acknowledged the receipt of gifts.

The fight against the opium smugglers began soon after the passage of the law in 1909 against the importation of opium. This law forbade the importation of any compound containing opium in any form except for medical purposes. Safeguards were put out to prevent any except recognized dealers in the drug from importing it, and these are obliged to keep a record of all purchases and sales.

In February the Treasury Department issued a statement giving the results of the campaign against the illicit traffic. At that time more than fifty raids had been made and four tons of opium had been seized. It was discovered that smuggled opium came into the country principally from Canada, Mexico, and through the Puget Sound district.

MILK-DRINKING GARTER SNAKE

Employes of the Bergen Point Iron Works in Bayonne were relieved yesterday when the thief that has been stealing the milk from their pet cat was discovered.

The cat, then a kitten, was taken to the plant by one of the men, and became the pet of all. Several times a day they filled its saucer with milk, and pussy prospered until three weeks ago. Then she began to get thin.

Thomas Quinn filled the saucer yesterday and stood behind a desk to see what might happen. Something did. Pussy scarcely had sampled the milk before a three-foot garter snake came from a closet and crawled to the saucer. The cat fled, and the snake thrust its head into the saucer and drained it. But it never got back to the closet, for Quinn slew it with a club.

Caught Car Pickpocket at Work.

As an elevated train of the Myrtle Avenue line, bound for Manhattan, stopped yesterday morning at the Covert Avenue station, Queens, Central Office Detective Edward Shelvey saw Harry Meyers of 843 Broome Street put his hand into a stranger's pocket and pull out a wallet. Shelvey grabbed Meyers, dragged him to the platform, and after a tussle subdued him. The man who was robbed and didn't know it rode away on the train. Meyers was taken to the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, where he practically admitted his guilt. The police say he has been arrested before for the same offense. He will be arraigned in the Flushing Police Court, Queens, to-day. The wallet contained $6.

ALMOST THROWN OFF BRIDGE.

Louis Beshansky, an employe of the Ridgewood Independent News Company, was driving across the Williamsburg Bridge at 5 A. M. yesterday when the tooting of a steamboat whistle frightened the horse. Beshansky lost the lines and held to the seat for safety. At the Brooklyn anchorage the runaway bumped into a milk wagon.

The impact hurled Beshansky from his seat toward the outer guard rail. He struck the upper part of the rail, and the quick grip he obtained with his hands prevented him from being tossed off the structure, 100 feet above the ground.

The horse continued its flight, and at a point above Berry Street Policeman Anthony Bolz undertook to stop the runaway. By running alongside the animal he got a hold on the bridle, but he was knocked off his feet and dragged along the pavement about fifty yards before he let go. Policeman Rempe also made an unsuccessful effort to stop the horse.

The terminal gate was closed against the animal, and it struck the gate with much force and was severely injured. The wagon was wrecked.
